

BROAD

Five minutes more rest and the two boys were at it again. It was indeed a lively bout and both men struggled hard to win but after 14-12 minutes McDonald won the deciding round. His famous toe held once more the trick. With one hour and minutes of wrestling between two men as Taylor and McDonald, a fan who were present at the match certainly got more than their money's worth.

HOPE

Duty

What 35% extra in your Auto—better access—more power—more care in—and greater get that 35% duty saved. show what this motor and de-

HOPE "6-48" Gray & Davis Electric Lighting and Cranking. tire and full equip-passenger Torro body $2,500 f.o.b. Orillia

Limited, Orillia, Canada

"The Car Ahead"

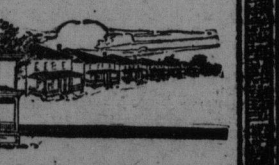

with Gray and Davis Electric Starter Extra.

Ltd., 96 Charlotte Street St. John

ords
ords

are bought for what mileage in the past.
see their friends' tireleage is bound to win.
Tires.

rn of Goodyear

d 1912 have seen some in Bowmanville.

use our output of tires from or day in scarcely more than involved bringing in hundreds of their families.

me our pay roll has increased on fold. In 1912 we em-men. To-day over 600
clock.

le community of men work
y plentifully supplied with ure air.

any time as we have been factory additions, we have as for these Goodyear men.
we built go, and we realize just a start.

meral Hotel has just been d turned into a Goodyear a swimming tank, billiard reading rooms.

the Town of Goodyear has its own organizations—ball clubs ten—bowling clubs—gun its own athletic grounds.

men build brains as well as to No-Rim-Cut Tires. We home-life to be happy and

OF CANADA

factory, Bowmanville

, London, Toronto, Montreal, St. John

. JOHN, N.B.

motor Cycle Tires, Truck Tires

MARITIME PROVINCE HAPPENINGS DAY BY DAY

FOREIGN NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF

French Troops Repulse Tribesmen hit Sedale—Millionaire Shot by Train Robber Probably will Die.

French Troops and Rebels Clash.

Rabat, Morocco, May 2.—A French column, part of Colonel Mangin's forces, fought a fierce engagement on April 28 at Sidali with a strong body of tribesmen affiliated with the rebel El Hiba. The French troops were ambushed but succeeded in repulsing the tribesmen after seven hours. The French lost 18 killed and 41 wounded. The rebel casualty list was very large.

To Create Bishopric in Egypt.

Cairo, May 2.—At a general meeting of the congregation of All Saints Church, Lord Kitchener said that the question of moving that church from its present site must be postponed till October, owing to the intervention of a proposal to create an Anglican bishopric for Egypt, for which it is understood that the Archbishop of Canterbury has prepared an appeal for funds. The creation is necessary owing to the growing needs of the local Anglican community. Bishop Blyth's increasing difficulty to spare time to visit Egypt from Palestine, and the inability of the Bishop of Khartoum to include Egypt in his diocese.

Pope Anxious to Resume Work.

Rome, May 2.—Pope Pius is most impatient to resume his duty, has decided to resume his receptions of the Cardinals tomorrow, commencing with Cardinal De Lai, Secretary of the Consistorial Congregation, and Cardinal Pompili, Vicar General of Rome. The Pontiff wishes to discuss the Cardinal De Lai several questions concerning America, while he has not seen Cardinal Pompili since he was appointed Vicar General.

Big Losses by Prairie Fires.

Moosjawa, Sask., May 2.—W. S. Woodward, government immigration agent for Moosjawa, returned from a trip through the burned out South country where he gave relief to settlers suffering from prairie fires. A conservative estimate of the loss is a quarter of a million. Gus Linberg and daughter, Mrs. Pease, were burned to death and a son, Arthur, is now in Weyburn hospital in a precarious condition.

Millionaire Shot by Bandit.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—A wealthy mine owner probably fatally shot, an unknown bandit also dangerously wounded but escaped, and a score of passengers out of $1,000 in money and jewelry, was the outcome of a robbery executed in a spectacular manner on board the Kansas City Southern train No. 5, shortly after it started from this city for Joplin and the south, early today. The victim of the bandit's bullets is Jesse E. Shaw, a millionaire mine owner of Neck City, who was said at the hospital today, to have little chance of recovery. The lone bandit boarded the train and went through the car, relieving passengers of valuables. Short, however, fired at the bandit, who in turn fired back, sending the lone bandit into short and then jumped from the train.

May Be a St. John Man.

Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., May 2.—The police of this place yesterday picked up a respectable looking young man who appeared to be demented. On him was found a card on which was inscribed: "Local Union No. 273, St. John, N. B." with the letters "T. L." printed in black on a red flag. The name given by the man in lucid moments is Wilfrid Guthrie.

Another Serum Discovered.

London, May 2.—Another new serum which, it is said, cures both consumption and leprosy, is announced this morning. The discoverer is a young and accomplished German bacteriologist, Frederick Mehnart, who worked with Doctor Koch in Africa on the sleeping sickness. After this he pursued his researches alone in Africa and other tropical countries. He reached South Africa in 1911. Mehnart said that while he was in the Belgian Congo he discovered his serum.

Mexican Rebels Dynamite Train.

Mexico, May 2.—Zapata forces dynamited a train on the Inter-Oceanic Railway, near La Cascade yesterday, killing many and wrecking and burning the train. How many are dead is not known. The train was followed by a military train, which retreated to Ootumba, when news of the attack reached the officer in command. After the explosion the rebels fell upon the passengers, slaughtering even those who were unarmed.

The Daily Hint from Paris.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mrs. W. B. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes: "A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at night. I tried many kinds of pills and medicines, but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never troubled with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine and can highly recommend them to all sufferers."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct, specify "Doan's"

TEXAS AND NEW YORK GIRLS ENGAGED FOR METROPOLITAN

MISS LILLIAN EUBANK, Soprano; MISS SOPHIE BRASLAN, Contralto.

To the long list of Americans in the Metropolitan Opera Company two new names were added recently.

Miss Lillian Eubank is a mezzo-soprano, born in Abilene, Texas, and has studied singing in New York at the Institute of Musical Art, after which she specialized in operatic singing with Mr. Fernando Tanara, formerly assistant conductor of the Metropolitan.

Miss Sophie Braslan is a native of New York, although her parents are Russian. She studied there with Mr. Bucci-Pecchia, the teacher also of Miss Alma Gluck.

WANT CHANGE IN TRAIN CREWS.

Moncton, May 2.—An effort is being made by railway employees to have I. C. R. freight special crews run between Moncton and Springfield Junction instead of Moncton and Truro as at present. At a meeting of members of different lodges it was decided to memorialize Mr. Brady, of the managing board, asking that the present arrangement be abandoned. The Truro crews are also reported hostile to the present plan.

Three Year Old Girl LOST IN THE WOODS FOR THREE DAYS

(Hartland Observer.) To have spent part of three days and the whole of two nights in the woods in April is the experience of the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Phillips, of Mount Pleasant. That she was found alive and not likely to suffer serious consequences is considered miraculous.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Phillips visited at the home of Walter Craig.

For a few minutes the child was left alone on the verandah. She disappeared as though the earth had swallowed her. Search was immediately begun and it was not long before more than a hundred people were scouring the country round about. The Decagium flows sixty rods from the house, but while it was not thought possible the child could have strayed so far, the stream was searched for miles with no sign. The deep woods were near, and it was considered most likely that the little one had strayed there, and this proved to be the case. After continuous searching, night and day from Sunday until Tuesday forenoon, the girl was found standing near a tree by Burton McBurney. She was unable to speak but made a feeble beckoning motion with her hand.

On Monday the half-crazed mother lost consciousness and lay in a stupor until after the finding of the child. People from far and near joined in the search which from first to last was participated in by more than 300 people. On Monday afternoon foot-prints were found in the woods and this gave much hope. At eleven o'clock Monday night nearly a dozen teams were dispatched from the house bearing willing men to join the quest. A prayer of thankfulness went up from many a heart, when Tuesday the glad news of discovery was heard.

GOES WEST IN C. P. R. SERVICE.

Luther Tingley, who has been employed in the I. C. R. general offices at Moncton, left yesterday for Winnipeg, where he will reside in future. After continuous searching, night and day from Sunday until Tuesday forenoon, the girl was found standing near a tree by Burton McBurney. She was unable to speak but made a feeble beckoning motion with her hand.

Mexican Rebels Dynamite Train.

Mexico, May 2.—Zapata forces dynamited a train on the Inter-Oceanic Railway, near La Cascade yesterday, killing many and wrecking and burning the train. How many are dead is not known. The train was followed by a military train, which retreated to Ootumba, when news of the attack reached the officer in command. After the explosion the rebels fell upon the passengers, slaughtering even those who were unarmed.

The Daily Hint from Paris.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mrs. W. B. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes: "A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at night. I tried many kinds of pills and medicines, but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never troubled with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine and can highly recommend them to all sufferers."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct, specify "Doan's"

QUEER TALE OF WOUNDED MAN

Shivering Russian Says He was Shot at Petitediac, but Does Not Know the Gunman.

(Moncton Times.)

As Officer Thompson was patrolling on Main street, yesterday afternoon, he noticed a man very thinly clad and shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

He said that he had been working on a bridge near Petitediac, and that he had been shot by a man who was shivering with cold, walking aimlessly about. The officer approached the man and spoke to him, but he appeared to be unable to speak any English or French.

Under the circumstances, there was nothing to do but to take him to the police station. When he arrived there, an interpreter was secured in the person of Harry Killam, a local junk dealer, and through this medium, the police were able to hear the man's story.

here his ignorance of the English language prevented him from locating the hospital, and it was that building he was looking for when he met Officer Thompson.

The man's wounds were dressed by Dr. Myers. When asked whether he intended to prosecute the man who wounded him, he said he was not sure that he could prove that the man was the one who had shot him. The police are investigating.

Another Scotch Miners' Strike.

Cardiff, Wales, May 2.—Twenty thousand coal miners today laid down their tools at various pits in South Wales, as a protest against the employment of non-unionist workmen in the mines.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

A meeting of the Shareholders of The Canada West India Company will be held at the office of J. C. Hartley, at 130 p. m., on the 8th day of May, 1913, for the purpose of considering the affairs of the company. All members are particularly requested to be present.

(Sgd.) B. F. SMITH, President.

TO BUILDERS

SEALED TENDERS from all trades marked "Tender for Observatory," will be received by the undersigned until Friday, May 16, 1913, at 5 P. M., for the erection and completion of the Observatory Building for the Meteorological Service of the Dominion Government at Saint John, N. B.

A certified bank cheque of ten per cent of its amount, payable to the order of The Honourable The Minister of Marine must accompany each tender. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of Garnet W. Wilson, Architect, 50 Princess Street.

Saint John, April 29, 1913.

TO BUILDERS.