SODA FOUNTAIN IN THE ROYAL PHARMACY

A new counter soda fountain has been installed in the Royal Pharmacy, King street, by the proprietor, S. McDiarmid. The fountain which is of Canadian manufacture, is among the most up-to-date and is one of the two Canadian-made fountains in St. John. It was constructed by the J. J. McLaughlin Co., of Toronto, the manufacturers of the wall fountain formerly used by Mr. McDiarmid. The exterior parts of the fountain are composed of marble, and the draft tube is of onyx, surmounted by a handsome cluster of electric lights, making a remarkably pretty effect.

A feature of the fountain which Mr. McDiarmid believes to be unique, is found in the provisions which have been made for cleanliness. The fountain is supplied with a constant flow of hot water, in which all the glasses are washed, and, in addition, the fountain is equipped with the usual rinsing devices. The plant includes pumps attached to the syrup tanks, and each glass is supplied with a gauged amount of syrup, making the drinks uniformly strong. Besides presenting an excellent appearance, the new fountain will enable Mr. McDiarmid to dispense better soda water than ever, and should prove a valuable asset to his business.

LIBERALS WILL NOT PUT UP CANDIDATE.

Brookville, Ont., June 11.—At the Liberal convention held here today it was definitely decided that no candidate would be placed in the field for Brookville riding at the next provincial elections. The fight will be between E. A. Donovan, Conservative, and W. T. Rogers, the temperance standard bearer.

RT. REV. LOUIS O'LEARY, D.D. CONSECRATED AUXILIARY BISHOP OF CHATHAM

Imposing Ceremony at St. Michael's Cathedral, Chatham, Yesterday—Monsignor Stagni, Apostolic Delegate Officiated—Over hundred Clergy at Ceremony—New Bishop Only 36 Years Old—Has Had Brilliant Career.

Rt. Rev. T. F. Barry, D.D., Bishop of Chatham

The Sermons.

Chatham, June 11.—The consecration of Right Rev. Louis O'Leary, D.D., Bishop of Hieropolis and auxiliary bishop of Chatham, N. B., took place at St. Michael's Cathedral, Chatham, today with all the impressive solemnity of the Catholic church. There was a large attendance of ecclesiastics, especially from the Maritime Provinces, over a hundred priests being present. Archbishop McCarthy, Halifax, Bishops LeBlanc, St. John, and Morrison, Antigonish, were absent because they are making their ad limina visits to Rome.

Although it is over seventy years since Bishop Dollard took charge of the diocese of New Brunswick, the ceremony of consecration of Catholic Bishops has been performed five times only in this province. Rt. Rev. John Sweeney was consecrated Bishop of St. John in April, 1860; Bishops Barry up in a scallop about four feet from the floor. Around the building, between twenty and thirty shields covered in yellow with a white cross in the centre and decorated with three flags, two white and yellow pupals and a Union Jack at the upper corners and middle of the shield, are hung between the windows and draperies. The large gallery is decorated in white and yellow bunting. The floor is carpeted with a green carpet 200 feet long by twelve wide stretching from the front doors to within four feet of the altar.

Mgr. Stagni, Consecrator.

St. Michael's Cathedral was filled with an assemblage of interested multitude. Every available space in the edifice was occupied, and fully three thousand persons were present. The Most Rev. Peter Francis Stagni, Archbishop of Aquila, and Apostolic Delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, was the consecrator and was assisted by Bishop Henry O'Leary, Charlottetown, and Bishop O'Brien, of Peterboro, Ontario. Fathers Babineau and Carrier were deacons of honor; Father Sormany, deacon of mass; Father Sweeney, sub-deacon, assisted by Father M. LeBeau, Mons. Varrilly was master of ceremonies. Rev. A. W. McShan was chaplain to the Auxiliary Bishop, Bishop McNally, of Calgary, and upwards of one hundred priests were present.

In the sanctuary were members of the hierarchy and clergy from many parts of Canada.

The ceremony, one of the most imposing in the ritual of the Catholic church, was followed with interest by over three thousand people.

Rev. F. Etcheberry, of the Franciscan Priests, Three Rivers, Que., preached the consecration sermon in English, taking 1st Corinthians: "Minister of Christ and Dispensers of the Mysteries of God." After dwelling on the Catholic belief about the transmission of the spiritual power of Christ to the bishops and priests, the speaker said: "The significance and importance, then, of today's ceremony will stand revealed to its full value when we reflect that the consecration which is taking place will give to the chosen candidate the plenitude of the Priesthood. What does that mean? It means that he alone who possesses it can communicate it to others. A priest cannot ordain a priest. No matter how holy he be or how holy be his congregation, they must both become extinct if there be no bishop. Let there be left only one bishop in the whole wide world, and it would suffice to maintain the continuity of the Christian priesthood. But let that one bishop disappear (which of course, God will never allow), and the end of the Church would come. There would no longer remain any minister to absolve in the name of Christ; no longer any priest to speak in His name; no longer any priest to keep Christ's Sacramental Presence on the earth or to offer up the saving sacrifice of the Holy Mass.

This truth has been grasped even by those outside the church. Speaking in the University Pulpit at the beginning of the year, Dean Henson of Durham, England, said: "Observe the fatal simplicity of the reasoning and its inexorable character. It takes for granted that the Divinely-appointed guarantee of a valid Eucharist is an Episcopally-ordained priest, and that the vitalizing factor in a Christian Church is a valid Eucharist. Apart from the bishop there can be no true priest. Apart from a true priest there can be no valid sacrament. Apart from the valid sacrament there can be no visible church. The logical process is simplicity itself. A church without bishops is not a church, and can only be called a church by courtesy."

But not only does the bishop ordain priests, not only is he the "Generator of the Priesthood," but he is likewise their governor and guide. It is he who directs the instruction and the formation of the clergy. It is he who establishes ecclesiastical schools and seminaries. He supervises their studies and discipline. He chooses the masters, he examines the candidates. "Episcopus," "Overseer," is his title, and to "oversee" or look after his flock is his office.

Father Etcheberry then went on to explain the various ceremonies of the consecration. He pointed out the significance of the reading of the "Apostolic Mandate" and of the "Profession of Faith." He called attention to the "laying on of hands," "the blessing of the pastoral staff and ring and mitre."

In the peroration, he continued: "And now the ceremony is over. The new bishop is consecrated! The grand liturgical song of triumph peels out: 'Te Deum Laudamus, Te Dominum Confitemur.' That finished the consecrator recites a last prayer and that prayer we all echo from our inmost heart. Right Reverend Lord Bishop!

"Firmetur manus tua, et exaltetur dextera tua; Justitia et iudicium preparatio sedis tue." "May thy hand be strengthened, and may thy right hand be uplifted! Uplifted in blessing and in supplication; uplifted to bring down the Immaculate Victim among God's adoring children; uplifted to beckon down the Holy Spirit upon the little ones to be confirmed; uplifted! oh! many, many times in the act of priestly ordination; uplifted as it bears the pastoral staff to guide thy people to the pastures green, by the running waters of the sevenfold streams of grace, within shadow of the Great Rock that is Peter's Chair; uplifted in the performance of all the sacred
