JUDGING LIVESTOCK

When a man judges livestock he has certain points in mind which clearly demonstrate the superiority of one animal over another. If this judgment is backed up by the experience of others which clearly shows that the animal he placed first is really the best in its class, then his judgment is verified by fact.

Livestock breeders should judge livestock advertising on a similar basis. The theoretical points on which to base the "placing" are quantity of circulation—distribution of circulation—cost of advertising—and editorial merit. The Guide has the largest farm-paper circulation in Western Canada, distributed uniformly over the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and its advertising rate is low in proportion to the volume of circulation. Anyone who has followed it closely knows that its livestock editorial policy is both progressive and elaborate. On these points we believe The Guide should receive first place in this class in this field. Practical experience, moreover, has shown many breeders that The Guide produces the best results on livestock advertising, as the following letters will show:—

Stock all sold up to date and enquiries still coming in and am unable to fill any more orders this year.
Hastota, Man.
ED. W. McCONNELL.

Regarding the ad. I put in The Guide for pigs. I must say that I have had wonderful results from same. Will sure use your paper again when wanting to advertise.
Stoughton, Sask.
JOHN B. SLIMMON.

The only fault I find with your classified ads. is that I get too many replies. They keep coming after my cattle are sold and gone for ever so long.
Rising Sun, Alta.
D. W. MACKENZIE.

Last year I received good results through The Guide by trading pigs and figure that money was never better invested than in this manner.
Decorah, Man.
A. O. QUALLY.

List your surplus stock in an advertisement and send it in today. The rate is economical—5 Cents per word per issue, payable in advance.
