opening of the new century. The first of importance is that Russia will adopt the Gregorian calendar. This will be done by omitting thirteen years, the amount of error that will have accumulated after the close of February, 1900. The Russians will then write Jan. 1, 1901, instead of Dec. 19, 1900, or rather instead of both, according to the dual system now in vogue in that country and in Greece. The other important announcement is that it is not at all unlikely that the astronomical day, which now begins at noon of the civil day, will be in with the civil day at midnight. The present method of having the astronomical day to begin twelve hours after the beginning of the civil day is apt to be confusing. On the other hand, to have the former begin at Cathay, and other relatives in that part midnight, just when astronomers are applying to Her Majesty for a well- Before leaving the west he took a trip often busiest, will be to them some what inconvenient.
