MISS MANTELL FOLLOWS PARENTS ON THE STAGE.

Miss Ethel Mantell

Like father, like daughter, even though she be a stepdaughter, is a variation of the old one about father and son that works out well in the Mantell family. All of which is introductory to the story that Miss Ethel Mantell, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Robert Mantell, has decided to go on the stage in her father's company.

A poem by Pauline Johnson, which was published recently for the first time in the Canadian Magazine:

Something so tender fills the air to-day,
What it may be or mean no voice can say,
But all the harsh hard things seem far away,
Sometimes so restful lies the lake and shore,
The world seems anchored and life's petty war
Of hate and labor gone for evermore,
Something so holy lies upon the land
Like to a blessing from some saintly hand,
A peace we feel, but cannot understand.

THE VERY LATEST IN FRENCH WRAPS.

Patterned silks in most conspicuous effects are the selection for smart evening wraps now and plain satins are entirely out of it for this style of garment. This wrap of Post Impressionist silk shows the favor shown modern art ideals in Paris now. These stiffly set, gay colored floral patterns on a ground of contrasting hue are all the rage, and some of the flowers even spring out from little flowerpots. The wrap pictured is rose colored in tone, the big conventionalized roses being in purplish tint. Purple velvet is box pleated into a frill trimming for neck, front and sleeve.

Chicago Gown Eighth Wonder

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The Chicago gown is the eighth wonder of the world. Leading modistes who saw a pretty girl don it to-day and demonstrate its many virtues at the annual convention of the Chicago Dress-makers Club, pronounced it just that. The "Chicago" is built to suit any taste and for any occasion. With a single gown, the wearer may prove herself an example of propriety or

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Lady's Two Piece Skirt. This skirt shows the misshapen tailor effect. In the back the seam is placed well over at one side and the same arrangement is followed in front. The lower portion of the front is drawn up in folds at the seam edge. These skirts are made of crepe, satin, tulle and other soft fabrics, as well as of wash materials in general. The skirt pattern, No. 6273, is cut in sizes 22 to 30 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper. Eight days must be allowed for receipt of pattern.

The Well Lighted Dining-Room Aids Digestion

The soft glow of light falling on the snow white linen, and upon the sparkling glass and silver, adds to the enjoyment of a meal. Tastes differ in dining-room illumination; some prefer ceiling fixtures giving an even light to the entire room, while others prefer domes or the semi-indirect fixture. If you are interested in any way in lighting fixtures, SEE OUR DISPLAY—IT'S INTERESTING.

shock a city—she can go as far as she chooses.

The model who took the spot light first wore what appeared to be a three-piece street suit. She made an exit and reappeared minus the coat wearing a gown of crepe that covered her fully from chin to foot.

Entrance three brought a slight gasp. The model wore the same gown, but it was extremely décolleté. She bent over and tumbled with a hook and eye and it became a slit skirt. More tumbling and the slit extended to the knee. All these changes can be made on the single gown in the time it takes to powder your nose, announced Mrs. Alla Ripley, the designer.

a Grecian maiden of long ago in flowing vesture of pale green. Again the bugle call, again the light, the magic of color; the setting of yore, when out walks a lady of ancient Rome. There were dames of many ages came from their ancient cities—perhaps the houseboat of the step 4—to show the pomp and pageant of the past. Louis XIV fellis and what not. The strange headgear of the past, the flashing coronets, the early Victoria lady with her hoop skirts, all made up a picture of the wonderful ways and means the world of to-day is up to, for Fashion's wiles and smiles. And the furs—the novelty in furs dyed in many new colors, tango, green, any shade, one fancied is the latest Paris fad. The old but ever new fashions revolving again, for history has a cute old trick of coming back the same old way. When one leaves it all behind one sighs—with relief to breathe the natural atmosphere of Nature's great out-of-doors.

Aigrettes on the autumn military are stiffly aggressive rather than soft and flowing.

Frocks admirably illustrate the old truism that smartness depends not upon trimming nor lack of trimming but cleverness of cut.
