THREE BOYS HAD ECZEMA OF HEAD

One Mother's Trials - Little Oncs Treated at Dispensary for Three Months - Did Not Seem to Improve - Suffered Five Months.

ALL WERE PERFECTLY CURED BY CUTICURA

"My three children had eczema for five months. A little sore would appear on the head and seemed very itchy, increasing day after day. The baby had had it about a week when the second boy took the disease and a few sores developed, then the third boy took it. For the first three months I took them to the N— Dispensary, and they told me that the children had ringworm, but they did not seem to improve. Then I heard of the Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would write you about my case, and when I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment I bathed the children's heads with warm water and Cuticura Ointment. In a few weeks they had improved, and when their heads were well you could see nothing of the sores. I should be very glad to let others know about the great Cuticura Remedies. Armed with sticks, they ed the coat away, but saw only the hole into which the snake had glided. The surgeon had accidentally blocked the entrance to the reptile's abode, and it had lain all coiled under the back of his neck, waiting patiently for him to move so it could enter.

Nowhere Is It More Incumbent Upon Men to Walk Warily Than When Some Sudden Great Temporal Success Comes to Them-Dangers In Success Only Averted By Reliance Upon God's Guidance.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Diver, To-ronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3.—In this sermon on the sudden rise of Jehu to power the preacher shows us that God sometimes uses strange instruments to accomplish his purposes and that un-expected temporal success is often the cause of a man's destruction. The text is II Kings ix, 20. "For he driveth furiously."

The world always makes way for its intense men, whose hearts are pumping arterial blood filled with red corpuscles. But pity is not the armor bearer standing by the chariots of war and waiting to run to the bidding of its military heroes. The stouter the fist, the broader the lungs, the deeper the voice and the more flashing the eye of the king, the more inclined are his subjects to kneel down and worship subjects to kneel down and worshir subjects to kneel down and worship him. When the lion tamer enters the cage of the wild beasts his eye must never quiver nor his hand which holds the lash tremble even for an instant or the powerful beasts will be leaping at his throat. The world has but little use for weaklings. It admires chiefly the man who can lead all his contemporaries in the athletic arena and strike the hardest blows in the battlefield and who is ready to face every emergency and conquer or die.

severy emergency and conquer or die. Such a man was the hero of my text. What he attempted to do he did with his whole body, mind and soul. Jehn's spirit was like a floodgate. When he attempted to do anything he opened his floodgate and let all the waters of his energies rush forth in one terrific onward effort. When he played he played with his whole heart. When he worked he worked in the same way.

This life of Jehu reminds me This life of Jehu reminds me a great deal in its intensity of the great English diplomat, Sir Charles Ewan-Smith. Some years ago he represented his queen at the capital of Fez, in the empire of Morocco. While there a great Moorish uprising against the Christians took place. A movement like the Boxers' uprising in China was about to be enacted upon the African shores. The Sultan hastily sent his messengers to the English embassy, saying: "Come quickly! Come to my palace, or I cannot proembassy, saying: "Come quickly!
Come to my palace, or I cannot protect you! Then in the morning I will send my troops to escort you and your family to the coast." Sir Charles calmly replied: "I do not intend to leave; neither do I intend to come to your pales for protection." Tis true. your palace for protection. Tis true, I may be killed, and my wife and children may be killed, but you go back and tell your Sultan that if I am killed within one month there am killed within one month there will be another British minister in the capital of Fez, and he will be accompanied by a British army, and when that British army comes there will be no Moorish Sultan in Fez."

The Sultan realized he was dealing with a giant. At the royal command the Mohammedan uprising against the Christians in Morocco instantly ceased. What Sir Charles Ewan-Smith did in Morocco, Jehu, the mighty soldier, did in Samaria. When God selected him as king to succeed the indier, did in Samaria. When God selected him as king to succeed the infamous Joram, who was the son of the infamous Ahab, he immediately entered his chariot. He gathered his army. He swept on to battle. He claimed the throne, scattering all opposition before him even as the winds scatter the chaff from off the thrashing floors of the east.

Ah, yes, Jehu was a man of intense energy. When he attempted to do anything, he was like an exploding cartridge burning up every grain of powder which it had stored behind the ball. Thus to-day the figure of my day.

This biographical sketch, in the first place, teaches us that sometimes Godplace, teaches us that sometimes God-

present generation never think of Thomas Paine except as a blasphemer and an enemy of Jesus. When we mention his name there rises before us his book, "The Age of Reason," which has done as much damage as any book ever penned by man, if not more. He sent forth his "Age of Reason" on its mission of spiritual and moral and physical destruction. That book brought down a hurricane of odium upon Thomas Paine. We hardly ever think of him except as the infidel, the blasphemer and the enemy of so-ciety. But amid your exceriations of this book do you recall the fact that Paine the infidel was also Paine, one Paine the infidel was also Paine, one of the great leaders and most powerful factors in the struggle for American liberty? In the darkest days which preceded the preparations of the Declaration of Independence his pen was busy. He published a book at that time called "Common Sense." It was a plea for national independence. It was written in simple language and was read everywhere. Dare guage and was read everywhere. Dare any man, facing the historical facts, declare that God did not forge out of the blasphemous pen of a scoffing infidel a golden wand to guide the American people into Independence hall of old Philadelphia?

Study the life of Benedict Arnold. Benedict Arnold did not attempt to betray West Point until 1779, or until the Revolutionary war was fail betray West Point until 1773, or un-til the Revolutionary war was flaif over. During all the preliminary struggle and during the three years of carnage his was a name to con-jure with, and no man was braver, no man truer, to the American flag than he. We find the same apparent incongruity in the character of Cath-erine the Great of Russia, whom history regards as one of the greatest and wisest rulers Russia ever had, although her own heart was a selfish of stone and her evil domestic life the symbol of all that is base and

Study the life of Napoleon Bona-Study the life of Napoleon Bonaparte. Who will say that even his cruel, selfish life was not used by God as a means of ultimate good? Mme. de Stael denounced his inhumanities in these words: "Far from gaining assurance in meeting Bonaparte oftener, he intimidated me daily more and more. I confusedly felt that no emotion of the heart could possibly take effect upon him. He looks no emotion of the heart could possi-bly take effect upon him. He looks upon a human being as a fact or as a thing, but not as a fellow creature. He does not hate any more than he loves. There is nothing for him ne does not nate any more than he loves. There is nothing for him but himself. All other beings are so many ciphers. The force of his will lies in the imperturbable calculation of his selfishness." And yet this man, thus characterized by the far-sighted Frenchwoman, this selfish monster, this human Frankenstein, who conquered and betrayed millions of homes with no more compunction than a cook would break a few eggs to make omelette for breakfast, was the man who stopped the horrors of the French revolution and demolished the guillotine with one stroke of his sword. Dare we state that God does not at times use even the sirs of his Jehus times use even the state of a good purpose?

In your life and mine we may be doing good in a way. We may be kind the state of the state doing good in a way. We may be helping some men. We may be kind to some people. But a good deed here and there does not make us children of God. Jehu was able to avenge the death of Naboth. In the rumbling of his chariot wheels we can see the tall, gaunt form of Elijah the Tishbite bending over a bleeding corpse and pointing his condemning finger at the cringing and cowering king and queen while he says, "Thus saith the Lord, In the place where does licked the blood of Naboth shall saith the Lord, In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood—even thine." And of Jezebel also spake the Lord, saying, "The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel." But because Jehu was commissioned to fulfill Elijah's was commissioned to fulfill Elijah's prophecy that did not make Jehu a child of God. Do not deceive yourselves. Not all God's instruments are his children. Wicked men, to serve their own interests, may do things which fulfill God's purposes, but he does not reward them by making them his children. Let no man think that he is necessarily a child of think that he is necessarily a child of God because he has done him service. Jehu executed vengeance on Ahab, but he was a murderer.

We can find helpful lessons from a bad man's life as well as from the life of a good man. Thus to-day, as we see the revolving wheels of Jehu's chariot rushing on toward Jezreel, we charto that when success comes to a great, strong life it gefferally comes suddenly. It is not a gradual coming. It is a sudden change. A man wins fame, as a rule, suddenly. A man goes to work as a youth. He works and labors year in and year out, for the most part in comparative obscurity. Then, after he has gathered all the material and dug the foundations for the temple of fame, it seems as though that temple comes to gether and takes form in the twinkling of an eye. Opportunity knocks at the man's door, crying: "Wake up! I am here! Follow me at once!" The man leaps from his couch and follows Opportunity, and, lo, in an hour his success is won! Such was the meteoric career of our Jehu. learn that when success comes to a day.

This biographical sketch, in the first place, teaches us that sometimes Goduses a very bad man to work out his purposes. He sometimes says to his Jehus: "You, O selfish and sinful men, are to be the agencies by which I will execute my warnings. You are to carry my chalices even though your hands are sinful. You are to unsheathe my avenging sword even though you have evil hearts. You are to run my errands even though you are answering the calls of greed and crime." Thus all doers of good are not necessarily disciples or God's children. Though we to-day find Jehu to-poling over the throne of an infamous king, yet Jehu himself was just as heartless, as merciless and as much of a criminal as Ahab or Jezebel, who slew Naboth in order that they might annex his vineyards to the royal domain.

The sinful life of Jehu as a fulfiller of Elijah's prophecies finds its duplicate in the lives of many sinful, men whom God at times has used for certain purposes. Study, for instance, the life of Thomas Paine. Most of the my side, "he might be if he had the chance, but he never held anything but a subordinate position. He has been doing barrack duty for a long time. He is one of those men whose names are not known by the world outside of their own company." Just then some one knocks at the door. Then this powerful soldier, Jehu, calls, "Come in." In walks a young prophet, "Is Captain Jehu here?" he asks. "I would like to see him alone a moment." No sooner are the twain alone than the prophet lifts his hand and begins to pour the anointing oil upon the soldier's head as he says: "Captain Jehu, thus saith the Lord God of Israel. I have anointed the king over the people of the Lord, even over Israel." In an instant opportunity was given him. Thus it is with most strong men. They must labor in obscurity for years. They must in obscurity for years. They must do barrack duty in Ramoth-gilead. They must pave their way for suc-cess by the hardest, the bitterest, the most grinding, work, and then when the opportunity comes they must grasp it at the instant, else it will be gone from them forever.

But as we hear the onrushing wheels of this war chariot there is another lesson we learn from this furious driver. At every plunge of his horses I see the driver's face become more stern and as the Lakink into horses I see the driver's face become more stern and set. As I climb into that chariot and stand beside him I hear Jehu mutter: "Yes, I will grasp that throne. I will get it at once. But it will be necessary to make it secure. I will kill the king and his mother. Then I must kill all the princes of the royal blood. Then I will kill all the leading men of this country who were friends of the late king. Yes; I will kill them all! All who might be a menace to my throne I will slay." "But." one may ask, "Jehu, is that right? Does God want thee to do thus?", With that the flashing eyed charloteer turns upon us a look of thus?", With that the flashing eyed charloteer turns upon us a look of scorn as he answers: "God? Who is God? God may place me upon the throne, but it will be my right arm and sword that will keep me there. Now, what do I learn from the murders and crimes of this ancient Jehu, who would slay men and women and children if thereby he thought he could hold his crown with more ease? Why, simply this—the higher a man goes in life the greater temptations he has to bear. Unless we take Christ with us in our temporal prosperities we

has to bear. Unless we take Christ with us in our temporal prosperities we shall surely fail spritually. As far as I can make out, Jehu was a square, true man until he was anointed king of Israel, but no sooner did prosperity come to him than he was swept by temptation off his feet. O man, you who are now doing barrack duty in Ramoth-gilead, beware if you attempt to go to the royal palaces of Jezreel without Christ! Beware when you begin to win financial and temporal success! If you do not cling close to gin to win financial and temporal success! If you do not cling close to Jesus, your spiritual fall will be as complete as was that of Jehu.

Oh, the awful temptations of success! Who in his own strength can withstand them? Not one, not one. An old proverb tells us that "many a man going up the hill of prosperity meets his soul coming down." Mr. Spurgeon teaches this truth by the opposite symbol: "Many horses fall at the bottom of the hill because the driver thinks the danger is past and the need of holding the reins with firm grip less pressing. So it is often with us when we are not specially tempted to overt sin." That simile in plain English means: Many a man when going through the financial struggles of obscurity, many a man doing the daily tasks of ordinary work may be outwardly honest and struggles of obscurity, many a man doing the daily tasks of ordinary work, may be outwardly honest and true. But give Jehu a throne what then? Let him move his chariot and drive from Ramoth-gilead to Jezreel, then that man, intoxicated by fame or success, throws all his integrity and powity and instice to the four or success, throws all his integrity and purity and justice to the four winds. O ye men who are moving out of your cottages into your mansions! O ye merchants who are now coining your gold! O ye women who are pushing into the front ranks of social success! Read the tragedy of Jehu! Read about the brusque soldier who became a temporal king, but a spiritual pauper.

we should learn from this swift chari-oteer. When God called Jehu to the oteer. When God called Jehu to the Israelitish throne, God anointed him king of Israel by the hand of a humble man. He did not call Jehu to be the king of the Hebrew people, as Saul on the Damascus road was summer that the company of the through the same of Saul on the Damascus road was summoned to the apostleship by a divine voice from the clouds. Jehu never talked with God face to face, as Moses talked with him. Jehu was called to his greatest opportunity of life by the anointing hand of a common man. Thus God has called us in the past to his greatest opportunity of life by the anointing hand of a common man. Thus God has called us in the past to our highest thrones of spiritual life by the anointing hand of a mother, a father, a humble village minister, a wife or a child.

My brother, are you willing to let the anointing hand of a dear Christian loved one of the past lead you to-day to your spiritual throne, as Jehu was raised to Israel's throne by the touch of a prophet's hand? Some time ago I read a beautiful story of a young college lad who spent a summer in one of the little fishing villages of Massachusetts. While there he became very fond of a little girl baby only a few months old. He said to the mother, laughing, one day, "Will you give that baby to me for my wife if I wait for her to grow up?" The mother laughingly replied, "Yes, if you will wait." Time passed on. Summer after summer the young man went back to that little town. There, year after year, he played with the little girl until in time she grew up into a young woman, and then he married her. A pretty story in the sequel. Yes, but it ought not to be any more beautiful in its sequel than the biography of your own life. When you were an olithe child your Christian mother and father gave you to Christ. All these years he has waited for you. You were anointed by them for the divine nuptials. Christ to-day as the Divine King is standing by your side ready to lead you to a throne far greater than any human throne. Oh; my brother," my sister, as Jehu was anointed for kingship by the human hand, so you have been anointed for your Christian loved ones of the past. Will you to-day put your hand in Christ's hand, as the bride puts her hand into the hand of the bridegroom at the wedding altar?

A RAZOR'S EDGE.

Results That Come From Stropping and Long Use.

Very thin is the edge of a razor blade. Its thickness has been estimated at about one half millionth of an inch. A writer says of this wonderfully thin bit of steel, when seen under a powerful microscope: "The extreme edge of the section is distinctly bent to one side. This is nearly always seen in razor edges. The actual bend repre-sents the effect of the last stroke on the strop which this blade has received. Now, this bending of the metal quite near the edge, minute as it is, has some very important practical consequences. If the razor be used in such a way that the bend is toward the skin there will be a tendency for the edge itself to burrow downward into the skin, in-stead of sliding easily over the surface and merely cutting away the projecting hairs. If, on the other hand, the blade be applied to the face in such a way that the bend of the edge is away from the skin the edge will slide much more smoothly, with less tendency to cut or scratch the skin, while it will act upon the hairs in a slightly upward direction and thus tend to pull them tight while cutting. The direction of end of the edge can be regulated by the last few strokes on the strop. "This minute amount of bending undergone by the metal near the edge of a razor blade has another practical result. We all know that a piece of wire which will quite easily stand being bent double will be broken if it be bent backward and forward many times. What really takes place is that the metal, which was strong and ductile to begin with, is gradually made hard and brittle and then finally breaks off. Now, the metal near the edge of a razor is being subjected to very similar treatment. Every turn on the strop reverses the direction of the bend near the edge, and, although the amount of bending is too slight ever to bring about actual breakage of such an elastic metal as hardened steel, it is yet sufficient to bring about a change in the metal which renders it less elastic and able to stand the strain. This is why a razor which has been used long ceases to cut well or to hold

"Now it has been discovered that steel which has lost its proper elastic qualities by such a process of 'fatigue,' as it is called, is capable of recovering its good qualities under favorable circumstances. It will recover in this way if left at rest, though this is a comparatively slow process, which ex-plains the fact that a tool which has become useless through continued use will be as good as ever after a prolonged rest. But recovery will take place much more rapidly if the steel be warmed, so that a few minutes' expo sure to the 'emperature of boiling wa-ter will bring about recovery to an extent that would have required several tures. This fact explains the advantage to be derived from the familiar practice of 'steaming' a razor before use."

Don't Starve Your Bird.

It is a common mistake to think that pets can only be taught when hungry and to commence a bird's training by depriving it of breakfast, dinner supper is a most unhappy beginning. In reality the feathered folk are just as apt and full of fun after a comfort able meal as before it, and to starve under difficulties. Woodcock, Nashwaak Bridge, N.S., writes: "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. She tried several physicians but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and is to-day in good health. My wife and I cannot speak too highly of B.B.B.

Dr. Grenfell's Mills.

Or. Grenfell's Mills.

Dr. Grenfell, of the Labrador mission, will soon be in Ontario again, and it is interesting for those who know and esteem him here to see what those people think of him who are on the spot where his work is done. The Bay Roberts' Outlook, referring to Dr. Grenfell's lumbering operations at Canada Bay, says: "A survey of the work done at this one locality by Dr. Grenfell gives a complete refutation to the unfounded charges against him, voiced by The St. John's Daily News, that the benefits to the people accompanying his enterprises and labors panying his enterprises and labors were practically nil. At Canada Bay there are one hundred and twenty families, who, owing to the failure of the fishery are this season dependent on work given by Dr. Grenfell for their very existence. A large number are now engaged logging and others are cutting timbers to be used in the construction of a schooner which will be built there during the winter months. The lumbering property there panying his e be built there during the winter months. The lumbering property there has hitherto been run at a loss owing to mismanagement, and an effort will now be made by Mr. Bishop, who has had a wide experience of this business, to establish the industry on a paying basis. Dr. Grenfell has expressed his intention, if such can be effected, not to retain any profits which in that case might accrue, but to reinvest the surplus in other industries for the people of the Bay."
