"Advice" to a Boy.

In one of the large railroad offices this country is a comparatively young man, who is at the head of a large department. When he entered the service of the company, five years ago, he was poorest paid work in the department-The very first day of his employment by the company, a man who had been at work in the same room for six years approached him and gave him a little advice. "Young fellow, I want to put a few words in your ear that will help you This company is a soulless corporation that regards its employees as so man machines. It makes no difference how hard you work, or how well. So you want to do just as little as possible and retain your job. That's my advice. This is a slave pen, and the man who works overtime or does any specially fine work wastes his time. Don't you do it." The young man thought over the advice and after a quiet little struggle with himself he decided to do the wish to become members. best and the most he knew how, whether he received any more pay from the coinpany or not.
