COBALT STOCK SLUMP.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—It is generally understood in local stock market circles that yesterday's remarkable sharp break in the prices in the shares of Northsing and La Rose mines was due to a row between Hayden Stone & Co., Boston, and Trippe, Thompson & Co., New York, the brokerage houses most intimately connected with the proposed amalgamation of the two properties. It would appear that these houses could not agree as to terms and as the result of the falling out one of the parties threw a big block of shares on the market, causing a slump.
