

NEWS BY THE ENGLISH MAIL.

THE CONFERENCE.

There is now no doubt of peace. At the close of last week orders were transmitted from the Executive Government to counteract the further embarkation of troops for the Crimea, and it is said, on reliable authority, that the French Government, like our own, are so convinced of the war being over, that they are pursuing a similar course.

We attach, it is needless to say, little importance to the gossip which reaches us from Paris; and Mr. Disraeli was weak enough, the other night, to attempt to elicit from Lord Palmerston some account of the doings of the Conference. The result was a retort which turned the laugh against the member for Bucks, and when Mr. Disraeli grew angry the amusement of the House was increased. The high spirits of the aged Premier are quite allowable in the present state of things. The recent accounts from the Crimea show that the British army there is in a state of perfection as regards discipline, health, and thorough military efficiency, which contrasts most favorably with that of our French and Sardinian allies. As we have advanced, so rapidly towards military perfection, they have retrograded, and the storm of indignation which prevailed in this country twelve months ago, at the hardships to which our Crimean heroes were exposed, has given way to felicitations of the most pleasant and satisfactory kind. The pending accouchement of the French Empress comes opportunely, and as with the return of peace we shall have cheaper provisions and more employment for the people. Lord Palmerston's term of office seems likely to last, unless new and unheard-of combinations arise, as long as he has physical strength to remain master of the situation.

Nothing can show more clearly the pacific course of the Conference than the request transmitted to Berlin that Prussia should take part in it. If every thing had not been going "merry as a marriage bell," this compliment to the irresolute monarch would have been spared. But it is a graceful mode of gently snubbing the brother-in-law of Nicholas, and as the fight is over the crowned heads of Europe can have no desire to leave any rankling feeling behind. Count Orloff is said to be delighted with the Emperor of the French, and has expressed deep regret that his master, the late Czar, did not know him, as he is just the sort of man with whom Nicholas would have been pleased. If the Count really gave expression to this sentiment, he is entitled to the credit of sincerity, for the primary origin of the war—or rather the cause of the reckless policy of Nicholas, was his sincere conviction that England and France would never combine to resist his aggression. Deceived in this essential point, the crafty policy of thirty years became, after the first campaign, as feeble as a rope of sand—cut short the life of the autocrat, and has compelled his successor, at the end of the second campaign, to acknowledge the error of his predecessor by suing for peace.

THE PEACE CONFERENCES.

Paris, Wednesday Evening.—The Congress held its eighth sitting to-day, and it was observed that when it broke up Count Orloff was particularly gay. This has increased the confidence of the partisans of peace.

The Times Paris correspondence writes:—"The Emperor is said to be of opinion that too much is said, and that too little is done, and that a change in the proceedings is desirable. If I may credit the information which has reached me, it would seem that at the next sitting it will be proposed to come to an understanding on the more important conditions:—to adopt them formally and irrevocably with a view to a definite treaty of peace, and to leave secondary points to be settled by a committee."

The following despatch was published in the Paris journals of Thursday evening:—"Berlin, Wednesday. Count Orloff has made known at St. Petersburg that a definite understanding has been come to on the fifth point, and that, thanks to the instructions brought by M. de Schouvaloff, peace is assured. Some special deliberations which are to take place between Russia and Turkey are reserved."

The Paris correspondent of the Times assures a very early and favourable solution of the peace negotiations.

Prussia has been invited, in the name of the congress, and for reasons of European interest, to send representatives to the Paris conference, and she will accept the invitation.

Paris, March 13.—The Moniteur announces that Prussia, who signed the treaty of July 13, 1841, has been invited to send plenipotentiaries to Paris. M. Manteuffel, the Prussian prime minister, and M. Hatzfeldt, are appointed plenipotentiaries for Prussia. The former leaves Berlin this day for Paris. The Independence, in its comments on the admission of Prussia to the Conference, insists that this step is equivalent to peace being concluded, and supports this view by showing that if the Conference of Paris has reached a point where the treaty of 1841 has to be considered, it is evident that the points, the rejection of which could lead to a renewal of the war, have already been definitively arranged.

Berlin, Thursday, March 13.—M. de Manteuffel will leave for Paris to-morrow (Friday) evening or Saturday morning. The invitation of Prussia to send a representative to the Conference is specially based upon the ground that the discussion respecting the treaty of 1841, by which the Dardanelles were closed to ships of war, is to begin forthwith.

The Daily News of yesterday says—"The admission of Prussia to the Conference confirms the statement we were enabled to make in our Wednesday's issue, that the conclusion of a peace will be announced almost immediately. Prussia can only have been admitted to sign, not to discuss, the terms of peace. Her admission shows how far the negotiators have advanced towards a final settlement."

Relative to the admission of Prussia to the conference, M. Monstier, the French minister at Berlin, handed to the Baron Manteuffel, on Wednesday, the invitation from Count Walewski to take part in the conference. M. Hatzfeldt, the Prussian minister at Paris, will attend the conference as second ambassador.

The Morning Post says:—"We believe that the labours of the conference at Paris are drawing rapidly to a close, and that we shall shortly have to record the signature of a definitive Treaty of Peace."

The five points have been proceeded with, as we believe in inverse order, and have been duly weighed and debated in detail. Difficulties have naturally arisen, but none that have not been susceptible of a satisfactory adjustment.

SEBASTOPOL.

The fine aqueduct which supplied Sebastopol with water has been blown up by the French engineers.

MARSEILLES.—Orders are received here for the conveying of 10,000 infantry and a battery of artillery to the Crimea, to replace troops returned home.

Money for temporary loans was 8 per cent on the average. Consols for money lowest, 92 1-4; highest 92 3-4. For account 92 5-8, lowest; highest, 92 7-8; closing 92 3-4. In Liverpool the Corn market has a decidedly upward tendency. Wheat with a good consumptive demand closing at 6d per bushel and Flour 2s to 2s 6d per sack below the rate of last week. Corn Meal 18s to 20s. Sugar has given away 6d. Tea is not very active, but prices are maintained.

It is believed that in case of peace a French army of occupation, consisting of 40,000 men, will remain in the East for a certain time.

A supplement to the London Gazette contains despatches from General Codrington, enclosing the weekly medical returns.

He writes on February 16th, that a Russian force, estimated about 3000 infantry and Cossacks, appeared on the morning of the 12th on the ridge above the valley of the Bairdar, but retired after a short reconnaissance.

The French blew up on the 12th two portions of the aqueduct which formerly supplied the docks. Mining progressed.

Sir Colin Campbell rejoined the army on the 14th.

Dr. Hall reports, on 18th February, "The sanitary condition of the army is excellent, indeed it could scarcely be excellent; and the mortality at present is under that of the Household Cavalry in England, where they are as well taken care of as any troops in the world."
