

the stranger's lodging. Look after their horses and mules, and see that their train lack nothing. Let them have change of vestments if they require it, and fire, and water to wash, and wine and ale; and bid the cooks add what they hastily can to our evening meal; and let it be put on the board when those strangers are ready to share it. Say to them, Hundebert, that Cedric would himself bid them welcome, but he is under a vow never to step more than three steps from the dais of his own hall to meet any who share not the blood of Saxon royalty. Begone! see them carefully tended; let them not say in their pride the Saxon churl has shown at once his poverty and his avarice."

The major-domo departed with several attendants, to execute his master's commands. "The Prior Aymer!" repeated Cedric, looking to Oswald, "the brother, if I mistake not, of Giles de Manlevener, now lord of Middleham." Oswald made a respectable sign of assent. "Hi brother sits in the seat, and usurps the patrimony of a better race—the race of Ulfgar of Middleham; but what Norman lord doth not do the same? This prior is, they say, a free and jovial priest, who loves the wine cup and the bugle-horn better than bell and book. Good! let him come, he shall be welcome. How named we the Templar?"

"Brian de Bois Guilbert," said Cedric, still in the musing, half-forgoing tone, which the habit of living among dependents had accustomed him to employ, and which resembled a man who talks to himself rather than to those around him. "Bois-Guilbert! that name has been spread wide both for good and evil. They say he is valiant as the bravest of his order; but stained with their usual vices, pride, arrogance, cruelty, and voluptuousness; a hard-hearted man, who knows neither fear of earth nor awe of Heaven. So say the few warriors who have returned from Palestine. Well, it is but for one night; he shall be welcome, too. Oswald, breach the oldest wine-cask; place the best mead, the mightiest ale, the richest most, the most sparkling cider, the most odoriferous pigments, upon the board; fill the largest horns Templars and Abbots low good wines and good mead. Elgitha, let thy Lady Gowena know we shall not this night expect her in the hall, unless such be her especial pleasure."

"But it will be her especial pleasure," answered Elgitha, with great readiness; "for she is ever desirous to hear the latest news from Palestine." Cedric darted at the forward damsel a glance of hasty resentment; but Rowena, and whatever belonged to her, were privileged and secure from his anger. He only replied, "Silence, maiden; thy tongue outruns thy discretion. Say my message to thy mistress, and let her do her pleasure. Here, at least, the descendant of Alfred still reigns a princess." Elgitha left the apartment.

"Palestine!" repeated the Saxon; "Palestine! how many cars are turned to the tale which discloses crusaders, or hypercritical pilgrims, bring from that fatal land! I too might ask—I too might enquire—I too might listen with a beating heart to fables which the wily story-tellers do cheat us into hospitality—but no—the son who has disobeyed me is no longer mine; nor while I concern myself more for his fate than for that of the most worthless among the millions that ever shaped the cross on their shoulder, rushed into excess and blood-guiltiness, and called it an accomplishment of the will of God."

He knit his brows, and fixed his eyes for an instant on the ground; as he raised them, the folding-doors at the bottom of the hall was cast wide, and preceded by the major-domo with his wand, and four domestics bearing blazing torches, the guests of the evening entered the apart ent.

The Star.

J. E. COLLINS, Editor.
FREDERICTON, NOVEMBER 6, 1879.

It is unnecessary to remind our readers that we are prepared to do all kinds of Job work in the STAR JOB OFFICE with neatness and haste.

GUY FAWKES' ANNIVERSARY.

We notice by the Telegraph that a certain association in St. John have either celebrated or are about to celebrate the anniversary of Mr. Guy Fawkes the celebrated gunpowder man. But that we know how to use the loyalty of the brethren is to their immortal king, we should begin to think a little heresy had taken root in the ranks of the order. But then it is meet and just that Guy Fawkes' memory should not be allowed to grow dim. Our readers of history all know about him, but it is as well some of them should be asked to join in a festival to his honor. He was a great man. He rolled barrel after barrel of gunpowder under a building where there was a lot of unsuspecting persons, with the express purpose of blowing them up. Why now-a-days a man must have more than ordinary nerve to load a gun and fire at his brother, Guy planned the destruction of hundreds and he is therefore a great man. But the merits of the celebration do not end here. In hundreds of years to come, no doubt, some body of men will be assembling to do honor to the hero who laid the torch to St. John: If the example of doing honor to Guy Fawkes had not been set the illustrious incendiary of St. John should be allowed to moulder on without a paragon of praise, or a bumper to his qualities. The triumphs of William at Agincourt on the banks of the Boyne were good; the noble courage of Guy who wanted to "blow the beggarly Scotch back again to their native mountains," was better, the daring of that hand who would set a city in flames and turn out thousands to mourn and starve, was best of all. There is nothing like anniversaries. Through a mishap in the STAR office last evening five lamps got smashed, and a case of type went to pi: we in end, D. V. celebrating the anniversary of said event whenever it comes round. How would it do to ascertain the precise date the first struck the potatoes, that the weevil attacked the corn, that the bug first marched with devastating attitude over the potato fields, and celebrate the anniversaries of each? Rest assured we shall always be ready to help out any kind of an anniversary.

THE "NEWS."

The St. John News publishes a prospectus for 1880. It outlines its course for next year, and promises its readers just what every good newspaper should give them. We have no doubt but the News will perform what it promises; indeed now it is not second to any newspaper in the Maritime Provinces. The variety, quality and extent of its editorial for the past few months have been the subject of much favorable comment. We wish success to the News, though it does happen to see the wrong side of political things once in a while.

But the News will not add anything to the high estimation in which it is deservedly held in Fredericton by giving place in its columns to correspondence whose object is to, undo what city papers are trying to do in the way of affecting city reforms; in the way of asking that the low idlers that hang around our thoroughfares and insult inoffensive people be dispersed. We are constrained to believe that this degrading protest against city morality is not in mistake; for we cannot think the responsible parties on the News would give their space and countenance to anything coming either from the low class of peace disturbers we have spoken of, or from their agents. And it is from such a source the correspondence referred to must have come. It is the first plea in favor of squinting tobacco on people, and boasting and jeering at passers by, that we have ever seen in any paper. We know no one will regret the fact more than Mr. Willis himself; but likely enough it hasn't come under his notice before.

THAT OPPRESSIVE N. P.—A NEW FREDERICTON INDUSTRY.
Mr. Geo. Burns of this city, called into the STAR office yesterday. He proposes to start a factory for canning beans. Under the McKenzie regime this article was imported to this city, chiefly from Boston, where it could be prepared for $2.00 a dozen. To this was added the freight which brought the Fredericton selling price up to $2.25, or thereabouts. Nobody thought then of disputing the market with the American manufacturer. But the wheel has gone round and new times have come. The dreadful N. P.—National Plague—is in force, and there is added 25 per cent. duty to canned goods. The Grit papers tell their readers that the poor man is taxed that amount on his beans, and for no good. But the worst of the story they forget to tell. The monopoly of the American manufacturer is broken. Take the case of Mr. Burns. He intends, at once, going into the packing business himself. He will be able to prepare this article at as low a figure as American manufacturers can; and he will sell them to the people of this city at the Mackenzie regime figures, less the freight from Boston here. Is it not a ruinous policy, sure enough, that takes trade out of the hands of the stranger, and gives it to our own people! It is just shocking, when one comes to think of it. We wish Mr. Burns success, and success, no doubt, will be his reward for taking advantage of the dreadful N. P.

THE WAR CLOUD DEEPENS.

It hangs now directly over Germany and Russia. The troops of the Czar hang on the frontier of Poland; but Bismarck has given orders that they be removed forthwith. It is hard to say how this order will be answered. It must be either one way or the other: the troops must either retire, or the Czar refuse. Such a refusal, the most of Europe seem to think, would mean war. The late turn the intricate war problem has taken, puts what seems to us, a very different face on affairs. Germany is ambitious, and like the tiger, who, on tasting one drop of blood must have more; is now thirsting for new conquests. She has within a few years moulded all the straggling states into a compact confederation; she has won back Alsace and Lorraine from France, she is every day adding to her armaments and her war forces. It is hard therefore to tell what "slice" Bismarck has in his eye, should a war which he might wage with "the enemy of Europe" prove successful to Prussian arms. On the other hand Russia hates Germany intensely; and has the love for conquest which has from Ivan to Peter the Great, from the latter down to Nicholas been her fond dream. If there is no probability of other powers taking sides, Russia will not hesitate long about closing with Germany; and it does not seem likely then the latter will show the white feather. Russia's tone is warlike, the people war either with England or Germany: the press of the country is insolent in its tone and goes far to stir the people up to patriotism. It is a wise man could tell though, what the upshot will be.

THANKSGIVING.

This has been a day of thanksgiving all over Canada. The custom of setting apart one day in the year to thank Providence for His gifts is time honored and salutary. In olden times the chiefs set apart a day after autumn had yielded the grain and the land had given its fruits. Huge tables were set under the shade of the trees, laden with the pride of the orchard, the field and the chase. The old people talked of when they were young, and told the younger ones how they killed the tusked bear, and compelled their opponent to ask mercy at quarter staves. Then—

"Many a pasture circled in the shade
The young contending as the old survived."
In later years, when a crown of gold adorned the leaders' head, public thanksgiving days were proclaimed; and thus the custom is brought down to us. Our people have reason to be thankful that they have had neither famine nor plague the past year; that good harvests reward their toils; and better than all, that the cloud of Bad Times has broken and a brighter era is promised.

We call the attention of our readers to the state of our finances for this year as compared with last. The tables will be found—turned—in another column. It appears our trustees have made a call on Treasurer Edwards for $2,800, but that officer says the city is only about $200 in funds.

In consequence of the STAR appearing only three times a week, and the people pretty generally being of a mind that this is only half enough, we publish to-day. We must not be understood, therefore, as having made, or intending to make an apology for issuing the STAR to-day.

The Newcastle Advocate is proving too many guns for its disreputable contemporary, the Advance. Respectability must always in the end prevail.
MODERATE winds; cloudy to partly cloudy weather; light areas of snow, are the probabilities.

TEA has risen five pence a pound in England lately.

Notes.
Miss Ada Dowling, of this city, has gone to Dalhousie to take charge of a school there. Miss Dowling will be a great loss to the St. Dunstan's Choir; but she will be as great a gain to our Dalhousie friends. We feel assured she will make an excellent teacher.
WHO WILL EXPLAIN?—A few days ago five or six pupils were transferred from the 8th grade of the Model School to the 7th grade of Mr. Raymond's school. But to make room for the pupils so transferred, as many pupils were sent from Mr. Raymond's grade to Mr. Nicholson's grade No. 7. This at least requires explanation. Why were not the pupils from grade 8 of the Model School sent to grade 7 of the Model School? Why should such an abnormal grading as from No. 7 to No. 7 take place? Is there any choice of schools? Clearly there must be. Is there any favoritism to pupils? Clearly so. Else those who were in Mr. Raymond's grade should have been allowed to remain there, and those pupils who were graded should have been sent to the school where vacancies existed.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observation of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics, in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and we make the unqualified statement that Scott's Emulsion is being used with better results and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrophula, Anæmia, General Debility and the wasting Disorders of Children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

See What Physicians and the People Say About It.
Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September 2, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.
C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen,—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice, extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879.
Yours respectfully,
A. H. SEXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen,—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly agreeable and elegant form.
December 10th, 1878.
Yours truly,
J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen,—In September, 1877, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; my symptoms grew worse, night and morning cough, night sweats and short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life and was at the point of death. I then purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning, and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friends on the street who ask, "What cured you?" and I answer, "SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, some friend on the street who asked, "What cured you?" and I answer, "SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, and he bought two more, then got a dozen, and says it is food and medicine for him. He has given up to die a year ago, but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the curiosity of many people, and shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
January 10th, 1879.
Very truly yours,
H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. SCOTT & BOWNE:—
About the 27th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so emaciated that no one who saw me thought I could live longer than a few weeks at most. I could eat nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose, until from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk, and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it, and am sure I shall entirely recover.
I am gratefully yours,
R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.
