The Evening Chit-Chat

By ROSE CAMERON

cheer yourself up by thinking of some of your 'rights.'

One of the lady's young proteges had been telling the lady—who-always-knows-somehow how unreasonable and unfair her employer had been to her.

She had fulminated against his injustice in refusing to admit it when he made a grammatical mistake in dictating.

She had bitterly scored his habit of coming to her at half-past four with half a dozen letters, when he had been sitting idle most of the afternoon.

She had raved about his rudeness in attending to his finger nails in his office, instead of the privacy of his home.

And when the lady—who-always-knows-somehow brought out her suggestion, her protegee looked extremely dubious.

"I don't think I have any 'rights,'" she protested.

"Oh, yes, you do," reminded the lady. "Doesn't he often give you an extra afternoon off? And doesn't he urge you to bring in a book or some fancy work to amuse yourself with when he is away? And you said yourself that lots of men wouldn't let you do that because it looks unbusinesslike."

"Yes," admitted the lady's protegee. "He is awfully good about that. And except for the finger nails, he is always very courteous to me. He never scolds and he never uses bad language in the office, as so many of the men do. And when I was sick, he was simply dandy to me."

"Don't the 'rights' pretty near balance the wrongs?" queried the lady.

"Overbalance, more likely," admitted the lady's protegee, thoughtfully. "In every relation of life—the marriage relation, the relation of servant to mistress, of pupil to teacher, of employer to employee, of sister to sister, of father to son, and all the rest—there are wrongs, or at least what seems wrongs to us, to be suffered."

But in every relation of life there are also "rights" to be rejoiced over.

And, just as we remember our troubles and forget our blessings, as we seem to remember our wrongs, but forget our "rights."

Now, let's be original. The next time a sense of injustice possesses us, and we think we are unfairly treated by anyone, and start thinking of the wrongs he has done us, let us try the antidote of thinking of the rights we have received at his hands.

He has been unjust in some things, but has he not been kind and merciful far beyond the exactions of the law in many others?

In nine cases out of ten, I think we will find that he has.

Wrongs are plentiful, but so are "rights" if you only look for them.

Let's.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentlest and kindest always kinder-estated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps.

Household Notes.

It is best always to add a pinch of salt to boiled milk.

The old-fashioned natural pongee should be ironed rough dry. Sprinkling is very apt to spot it.

White marks on a polished table caused by hot dishes or water may be removed by rubbing camphorated oil well into the wood.

Hang skirts and dresses on the clothes on the straight of the goods when drying, and you won't have an uneven skirt when it is laundered.

Make covers for radiators of crash or denim, and save both walls and curtains from the dust that is blown into them by the ascending heat waves.

Rinse with cold water the utensil in which you boil milk before putting the milk in it, and there will be no sticking or scorching in the bottom of the pan.

Utile blankets that have lost their fresh look by covering them with a dainty silkline or saten for use before it is cold enough for the thicker cotton or down puff.

Chafed and Aching Feet

Make walking a misery to many who do not know of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

How far can you walk without suffering in one way or another from discomfort to your feet? Modern footwear is a prison house and the result is chafed, scalded, inflamed feet.

You can get a world of comfort by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment when your feet give you trouble. This treatment is so delightfully soothing and healing that helps you at once.

Unlike unsanitary powders which clog the pores, Dr. Chase's Ointment makes the skin soft and smooth and prevents corns and bunions.

When the feet are chafed, scalded, itching and tired, it takes out the stinging and burning and its benefits are both quick and lasting. This ointment also affords relief and cure for chiblaina and frost bites. Whenever there is itching of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with most satisfactory results. Get a box at all druggists or Berman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

taken not to place it over the hottest part of the stove. Set it to one side so it will heat slowly and come to the boiling point gradually.

The odor of fresh paint may be removed from a room by simply standing a pail of water in an inconspicuous place. The water should be renewed every three or four hours.

A little powderedorris root placed in the water in which fine linens and lingers are boiled after washing will give them a deliciously faint odor of violets after they are ironed.

New windows that stick may be made to move readily by applying paraffin to the groove in which the windows slide. If stuck with paint, run a case knife all around the edges first.

A handful of coarse salt and a cupful of vinegar shaken up well in a cloudy decanter will clean it like magic. Rinse well with very hot water several times to remove all taste of salt.

If you wish to iron a starched garment and have not much time to wait, try this scheme. Sprinkle, roll in a damp cloth or paper and place in a cool oven for about five minutes to steam. It will then iron nicely.

An easy way to remove the tops from pineapples. Hold the "pine" with the left hand, and with the right give the top a twist, as though you were wringing its neck. Out comes the top and part of the core.

Boiled potatoes make an excellent substitute for soap if your hands have become blackened with contact with pots and pans. Take a little of the potato and rub well into the skin, then rinse it off with warm water.

A highly-polished table may be used as a card-table without marking it. Cut a piece of felt larger than the table and run a casing around the outer edge with an elastic in it. This can be easily put on and will save many a finger-mark.

Fill tub half full of boiling water, then pour in half a can of concentrated lye and with an old broom scrub sides and bottom well. Rinse with clear water and wipe with soft cloth. This will remove all spots and make the tub look new.

For removing the dark stain which is frequently seen in vinegar cruets, make a suds of hot water and white soap and put into the cruet about a half teaspoonful of fine shot. Shake the shot around and the discoloration will entirely disappear.

When ironing a skirt or blouse having a row of buttons, fold a Turkish towel over the buttonholes and lay the skirt or blouse down on it. Iron on the wrong side, and it will be smoothly finished, the buttons sinking into the soft folds of the towel.

When washing a striped bed-spread never put it through the wringer after the last rinsing water. Hang it on the line dripping. It will dry without a crease or wrinkle, will not require ironing, and the fringe will be as straight and fluffy as when new.

An easy and sure way to keep ribbons fresh and smooth is to roll them on a glass bottle when not being worn. The bottle should be perfectly smooth and round. Several sets of ribbons can be wound on one bottle and will wear doubly as long as those that are folded or crumpled in to dresser drawers.

The Human Eye Tells of God.

HELPS BELIEF IN DIVINITY.

Only "External Agency" Could Have Created Eye — Brain Works Upon Soul.

A new statement of the relation of the soul to the senses of man has been enunciated by Prof. MacDonald at the meeting of the British Association at Portsmouth. Prof. MacDonald's view is regarded by physiologists as offering a great stimulus to research, and it provides for the general public a new exposition of the theory of belief in divinity; following the general lines of Paley's famous argument from the watch.

"External Agency."

Prof. MacDonald began by arguing that the eye of man was as perfect an optical instrument as could be devised, and could only be made by "some external agency" cognizant of all the properties of light. This agency, he said, had full knowledge of the part played by matter and the special arrangement of matter in reflecting, refracting and absorbing light. This perfect instrument, he added, was formed in the embryo before direct light could reach it.

Brain and Mind.

Starting from this study of the human eye, the professor showed that similar arguments applied not less forcibly to the brain and mind of man, and he used this analogy to help the belief that man had a soul. Man's brain, like his eye, Prof. MacDonald said, was affected by mysterious causes. Such phenomena as sleep and deep anaesthesia familiarize with as the fact that the mind is not necessarily always associated with the brain, but only when in a certain condition. It was still possible, he thought, that the brain was an instrument traversed, as freely as the ear by sound, by some unknown influence which found resonance within it. The brain's workings and the will power suggested, he said, that he brain was mysteriously affected by invisible and untraceable harmonies. In this connection Prof. MacDonald said he could not avoid the use of the word "soul," and argued that "soul" might be independent of life or living matter, as we know it.

Brain Soul Harp.

As in the case of the eye, it was natural to suppose, he declared, the existence of some external agent over and above natural selection, which would have done no more than assist in the process.

In a passage of great imaginative power Prof. MacDonald then compared the action of the brain on the soul with that of the harp acted upon by what they used to call "music spheres."

The Self-Made Man.

"I'm a self-made man," said the proud individual.

"Well, you are all right, except as to your head," commented the other part of the conversation.

"How's that?"

"The part you talk with is out of proportion to the part you think with."
