TERRORISM UNDER WAY.

The only war topic of interest continues to be the course of the new German frightfulness and the international developments involved in it. So far we have heard of no sinkings and no manifestations of barbarism beyond what we have learned to expect, but there are signs that the action of the United States has met with defiance from the Central Powers and that the open declaration of war will not be long deferred. There appear to be few Americans and fewer American ships on the high seas at present, but this cannot continue for long. Sooner or later will come the overt act, dreaded by some and anticipated by all, which will shatter for good the frail hopes still retained by President Wilson that war will be avoided.

One very serious consequence of America's break with Germany is noticed by Baron Newton. It would be impossible to estimate the value to the Allies of the services of Mr. Gerard and other American diplomats in Germany, not to speak of the small army of American doctors there, on behalf of Allied prisoners. These will be now lost, and it will be hard to find substitutes. Not only did these gentlemen interest themselves actively on behalf of sick and ill-treated prisoners, but their prestige as representatives of the great nation with whom Germany for so long wished at all costs to avoid rupture was a most potent factor in the effectuation of their representations. Probably they will be replaced by the present by Spain, obviously an inferior substitute. Should that country, and even the Scandinavian countries as well, be compelled to act as America has acted, by no means an impossible contingency—the situation would be extraordinary and most serious. The whole Allied confederacy, which would be thus swelled greatly, would find itself able to act, in these and similar matters, solely through the offices of some neutral, such as Switzerland or Holland, possessed of no prestige to speak of and probably quite unable to cope with the demands made upon it.

Fortunately, the Allies have an assurance which will go far to quiet apprehension on account of their prisoners in enemy hands. This is the two-edged weapon of reprisal. Despite strict censoring, facts have a way of getting known, and if the German fury threatens to vent itself upon defenceless captives it will be met by a counter-threat which will prove effective. A good instance by way of proof is provided by the case of Captain Blake, whom the Germans would gladly have done to death as they did Captain Fryatt, had not a sharp warning come from Britain. This utterly despicable form of frightfulness the Allies feel that they can discount, but they expect and are prepared for many others. Britain awaits an intensified renewal of the Zeppelin raids secure in the confidence that they will be met with more stinging effectiveness than in the past. If, finally, desperation drives Germany to a last-ditch effort of arms, which to be of the slightest avail would have to come in the west, the bloody path to peace will be much shortened. Far better that she should break herself to pieces against the impregnable lines of the Allies than that these should have to assume the more costly offensive, even though the same result would follow in the end.

1st Nfld. REGIMENT.
Casualty List.
Received February 6th.
2085—Private Rupert Green, Burgess. At 10th General Hospital Rouen, January 28th; gunshot wound in back; severe.

J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

Our Volunteers.

Five young men presented themselves for enlistment at Headquarters yesterday, as follows:—

Baxter Bugden, English Hr., T. B.

To-Morrow's Parade.
Display of War Trophies.

All arrangements were finalized last night in connection with the parade and exhibition of the German machine guns or war trophies by the committee in charge. The parade, the order of which has already appeared, will start from the regimental headquarters at 2.45 p.m. The route has been extended so that after calling at Government House, the parade will proceed via Military Road, Theatre Hill, New Gower St., thence coming down Water Street and halting in front of the Court House where Acting Premier Bennett will address the assemblage. Included in the parade will be gallant young men who participated in the big battle on October 12th when these guns were wrested from the enemy and who now bear honorable wounds received on that day. Other marked brave men of "Ours," who figured in previous engagements will also be in the turnout. By the co-operation of citizens generally in the way of displaying hunting, etc., and because of the uniqueness of the event, it is earnestly desired that to-morrow's demonstration be made a historic one.

George Gray May Come Here.

Contemplated Visit by Great Australian Billiardist.

Negotiations are in progress which may possibly result in a visit to St. John's by George Gray, the great professional cueist of Australia. He has lately been touring Canada and been giving exhibitions in the large cities. He is at present in Sydney. While it may not be possible to make the necessary financial arrangements there can be no doubt that an exhibition here by the exponent of "red ball play" would create great interest and give a stimulus to the game. Gray is in the very front rank of billiard players, having defeated in recent years practically all the champions of England. His play would be an eye-opener to our amateurs, most of whom have never had the opportunity of witnessing anything first class.

Creo-Cough Cure is a recipe of our own, and is useful for relieving and curing recent colds. Creo-Cough Cure does not upset the stomach nor kill the appetite. It may safely be given to children, and is so palatable and pleasant that no child will refuse to take it. Price 25c. a bottle.

Red Cross Oil has so many uses that it is hard to give any list of complaints for which it is useful. In brief it may be said that Red Cross Oil is useful wherever there is pain, internal or external, and for all cases of chills and colds. Price 25c. a bottle.

Graduated from McGill

We learn that Mr. J. B. O'Reilly, son of the popular Inspector, who has been studying medicine at McGill, has just graduated from that University. Mr. O'Reilly deserves the more credit in that a course that normally takes two years was condensed by him into one. He is an ex-pupil of St. Bonaventure's College. He intends to offer his services here for medical work with the forces, and failing that to join a Canadian contingent. His scholastic success and his patriotism are alike to be commended.

It is semi-officially stated that Switzerland in reply to President Wilson's note will decline to depart from the line of strict neutrality which is the vital principle of Swiss policy.

U.S. TAKES OVER WIRELESS.

TUCKERTON, U.S.A. To-day.

With the arrival here last night of a squad of marines from Philadelphia, the navy yard of the United States Government assumed charge of the Tuckerton wireless stations and removed its German operators. The operation of the plant, which is the only sending station working direct with Germany in this country, will be continued under the direction of the United States officials.

"PREPARE FOR ACTION"

PHILADELPHIA, To-day.

Orders were received here by telephone from Washington instructing members of the naval militia to "Prepare for action" with the expectation of a German anti-service on Saturday night. Two divisions are already organized and officers were instructed to form as many divisions of "full strength" as possible.

1.15 P.M.
U.S. ANXIOUSLY WAITING.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

With the prospects for another day of waiting for development of the ruthless submarine campaign that may bring war between the United States and Germany, immediate interest here centered today upon the destruction of the British steamer Eaststone in which an American seaman lost his life. Apparently officials are confident that this incident will not prove to be an overt act that will cause hostilities but nevertheless complete reports are awaited with grave anxiety. Earlier in the war the State Department received several similar reports of the shelling of vessels by submarines and injury of the passengers or crew in lifeboats, but investigation in each instance led to the conclusion that the vessels were resisting or trying to escape. If this is found to be the case with the Eaststone, the act will not be regarded as illegal. Meanwhile a conference of neutral nations is being discussed on the suggestion of one of the European neutrals most severely affected by war, and although it is believed the idea has been favorably received by President Wilson, there is no definite indication that the plan will mature. Relations with Austria are not on a sound foundation owing to the known adherence of the dual monarchy to Germany's war programme, but with certain differences. In the uncertainty just what the United States Government may decide to do, the Senate today was ready to adopt a resolution endorsing the President's action in breaking relations with Germany and the House is expected to place itself on record in a similar way. The War and Navy Departments continue to formulate plans for mobilization of industrial and commercial resources as a military, so that these might be placed in operation under Government direction on short order.

THE GERMAN MERCHANT SHIPS.
NEW YORK, To-day.

Immigration officials at Ellis Island today continued the examination of German seamen from German merchant ships in this port who sought permission to enter the country as immigrants. Eighteen members of these crews were allowed to enter yesterday. The German ships are still under heavy guard, and there are reports that their machinery has been ruined. Federal officials refuse to comment on these rumors. They say that the ships are the property of the German owners, and that the United States Government has no power to interfere with them as long as the men aboard do not violate the laws of the country.

SPANISH PRECAUTIONS.
MADRID, To-day.

There are still a number of Spanish vessels at sea which cannot possibly reach home ports before the time set in the German note. The Minister of Marine has instructed the authorities at all ports to allow no ships to clear unless provided with proper appliances for saving life in the event that a vessel is sunk. The cruiser Catalonia is guarding the entrance to Las Palmas Bay to prevent German and Austrian ships moored there from leaving. No vessel is allowed to enter or leave port between sunset and sunrise.

Agrees to Obey Orders

San Quentin, Cal., Jan. 27.—After spending 24 hours in the dungeon of the state prison here, J. B. McNamara, agreed to obey orders and to-day began work in the jute mill. McNamara, who is serving a life term for his confessed part in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building in 1910, had been working in the prison laundry, but his work was found unsatisfactory and he was ordered to the jute mill. On his refusal to go there he was placed in the dungeon. Every day he was taken out and asked if he were ready to obey orders and until yesterday he regularly refused.
