Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

LIKE THE INCESSANT DRIPPING OF WATER.

Is there anything in the world that distracts one's mind from true worth and from the joys of companionship, or prevents one from forming a new liking more surely than an unattractive, reiterated mannerism? I met a woman recently to whom at our first meeting I felt drawn. At the second meeting she began to talk, and while what she said was interesting I found myself unable to keep my mind on it for this reason. She had the habit of putting in the phrase "you know" at the end of almost every sentence.

I Could Not Think of Anything Else. "I won't think of it," I assured myself. "I will take it as a matter of course. I will think of what she is saying." But in spite of myself I kept thinking "She's going to say it again, she's going to say it at the counted the phrase five times in one sentence).

The Worst of Them All.

An old friend of mine has developed, what to me is the worst of all these reiterated mannerisms, a nervous laugh. Even if it were an attractive laugh (the rarest of charms) one would grow weary of hearing it so often. But alas, it is harsh, high pitched and entirely unmusical. And it is so utterly unconnected with the context of her conversation that one is embarrassed by its lack of meaning besides being jarred by its dissonance. I think this is the commonest as well as the "you know" (Not exaggerated a bit! I most trying of reiterated mannerisms. You probably have, at least, one acquaintance who inflicts it on you?

When Slang Becomes Unbearable.

The habit of catching hold of some bit of slang and using it until everyone feels ready to scream is another irritating mannerism. "Now what do you know about that?" "I'll tell the world so." "You said a mouthful!"—doesn't it make you shrink inside to have these phrases recalled to you? I really wonder that no murderer was committed because the murderer had heard "I'll tell the world so" one too many times.

A nervous cough is another irritating mannerism for which there is little excuse. It is equally hard on the throat of the cougher and the ears of the hearer.

Even a charming mannerism grows tiresome when reiterated. Think what a mannerism, ugly to begin with, must become to anyone who hears it 30 times a day. Think, and beware!

Naval Prize Money and the G. W. V. A.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I beg space in your valuable paper to make a few remarks in reference to a letter which appeared in your issue of November 3rd, under the heading of "Naval Prize Money." There are certain statements made therein, which I would like to contradict.

About the calls made at the G.W.V.A. Office by Mr. Rodgers I know nothing, but the first meeting of the R.N.R. called by Mr. Rodgers was held in the L.S.P.U. Hall and not in the G.W.V.A. Club Rooms as stated in the letter which I refer to. At that meeting several men spoke against the foolishness of paying rent for some other hall, when we had one of our own, in which we could hold our meetings free of charge. I also made known the offer made to me by the Secretary of the G.W.V.A. that he would be only pleased to do any correspondence as to the way of arranging meetings with the Prime Minister and his Cabinet; also that, if we wished, the G.W.V.A. would pay for all our advertising. Considering these matters were not being held under the auspices of the G.W.V.A., it seemed to me very proper to be a very liberal offer, but Mr. Rodgers stated his wish to keep the matter independent of the G.W.V.A., a resolution that was backed up by a small majority of those present. This resolution was broken many times as two meetings were afterwards held in the G.W.V.A. Club Rooms and reference was often made to the G.W.V.A. files for correspondence re Prize Money. The President was asked to draw up the last petition which we presented to the House of Assembly. This petition was drawn up by Mr. J. G. Higgins with the understanding that he was being appointed as President of the G.W.V.A. and was read and approved by Mr. Whitty as Secretary and by myself as Vice-President (or the Naval Vice Pres.) of the G.W.V.A. Copies of correspondence from the G.W.V.A. were attached when presented at the House. Moreover, the final meeting between the Committee appointed by the House and the Naval deputation was attended by Mr. Higgins and Captain Whitty as Officers of the G.W.V.A. as they were requested to do so.

In spite of what your correspondent says to the contrary, quite three months before Mr. Rodgers called the first meeting of R.N.R.'s, a deputation appointed by the G.W.V.A. interviewed the Executive of the Government and discussed the matter of Prize Money with them. The deputation consisted of Mr. Gray and myself and several soldiers spoke on other matters. We were told that the Executive would go into the matter and would write on their decision, but once our backs were turned the matter was apparently forgotten—as all matters pertaining to ex-Servicemen are forgotten or neglected. The Secretary kept sending letters to the Colonial Secretary for information on the matter, but received very vague replies. From that time until the assurance was given, naval men that Prize Money would be paid, the G.W.V.A. kept at it and although I readily admit that the hand of the Government was forced by the fine and determined stand taken by the R.N.R. men in their parade to the House and insisting on their money being paid, I also claim that they were helped in many ways and upheld in all their efforts by the G.W.V.A.

I just wish to say in concluding Mr. Editor, that I am not writing this in the spirit of taking due credit to myself, as I was a member of the Naval Committee as well as the G.W.V.A., but with the intention of contradicting a statement which, if not disputed, might damage in more ways than one the well-being of the only sailors' and soldiers' organization in the country, many other things accomplished, but recovered in various matters pertaining to naval men over ten times the value of the Prize Money.

Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Doherty sign themselves "on behalf of the R.N.R.," but I doubt if any meeting of R.N.R. ever empowered them to write such a letter to their behalf.

Yours sincerely,
CHESELEY KEARLEY, Ex-R.N.R.
