

The Successful Summer Class.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Will you please insert in your paper a few remarks about the Summer School of 1923, which has just closed. The outcome of this class was the result of the labours of Dr. Blackall, who was the organizer. It began its work on July 28th with an attendance of 30.

The course was confined to three subjects, Mathematics, Language, and English, as a means of brightening up and setting forth an avenue for continued private study. The classes were conducted by Dr. Blackall, Miss E. Dawe and Mr. I. Samson, on the system known as the "Dalton Method." Much might be said about this system as by it students can attain to a greater degree of efficiency.

The class was an unqualified success and all the Teachers enjoyed it heartily, deriving much benefit therefrom, and which we hope to find will be put into force by those whose privilege it was to attend it. The outcome of the work of this class will no doubt have an impressive influence on the pupils in the schools of this Dominion.

Each Saturday at 1.15 a luncheon was partaken of by the students at Wood's West End Restaurant. These were provided by kind friends and to them we express our sincere gratitude for their thoughtfulness and interest in the work of Education. Our thanks are also due to Messrs. Fox and Hutton, who helped to make the affair more enjoyable by their musical and vocal talents.

The teachers deriving a source of benefit from this class hope that it will be possible for the Government to make a grant for the conducting of this class annually. At the final luncheon given on Saturday, August 18th, the following address and presentation were made to Dr. Blackall and his staff:—

Dr. Blackall and Staff of Summer School.

We, the students of the Summer School of 1923 wish to place on record our appreciation of the instruction, invaluable, and inspiring help given us by Miss Dawe, Dr. Blackall and Mr. Samson during our attendance at the sessions of the Summer Class.

We are deeply grateful to Dr. Blackall, the organizer of the movement, who is always ready to help on the work of our profession, and to Miss Dawe and Mr. Samson who express heartfelt thanks for their untiring efforts.

We ask you to accept the accompanying gifts as a slight token of our esteem and appreciation for the services rendered us during our attendance at these classes.

In conclusion we hope that you may be long spared to carry on this noble work of uplifting and enlightening those whose duty lies in the cultivation of the child mind.

(Signed)

STUDENTS OF SUMMER CLASS.

Before presenting the address a few preliminary remarks were made by Mr. Cook, who pointed out the character of the work of this Summer Class and of the benefits derived by the students. At the conclusion of his remarks he called on V. L. Randall to read the address, which he did in an admirable manner. Miss Wakely in a graceful manner presented the gifts, consisting of a case of pipes for Dr. Blackall and Mr. Samson, and a silver bouquet holder to Miss Dawe.

The recipients in well-chosen remarks thanked the donors for their kindness and appreciation thus bringing to a close a very successful and beneficial Summer Class. Thanking you in anticipation. We are, Yours truly,

The Fighting Race.

(Saturday Night)

At different times we have been requested to republish "The Fighting Race," a poem written back in 1898, the year of the Spanish-American war, by Mr. Joseph I. C. Clarke, whom I believe is still of this earth though a man well on in years, a resident of New York City. The poem is as follows:—

"Read out the names!" and Burke sat back.

And Kelly dropped his head, While Shea—they call him Scholar Jack—

Went down the list of the dead. Officers, seamen, gunners, marines, The crews of the big and yawl.

The bearded man and the lad in his teens, Carpenters, coal passers—all. Then, knocking the ashes from out his pipe,

Said Burke in an offhand way: "We're all in that dead man's list, by Cripes!"

Kelly and Burke and Shea. "Well, here's to the Maine, and I'm sorry for Spain."

Said Kelly and Burke and Shea. "Wherever there's Kelly there's trouble," said Burke.

"Wherever fighting's the game, Or a spice of danger in grown man's work."

Said Kelly, "you'll find my name." "And so we fall short," said Burke, getting mad.

"When it's touch and go for life?" Said Shea, "it's thirty-odd years, be-dad."

Since I charged to drum and file Up Mary's Heights, and my old can-tee.

Stopped a rebel ball on its way. There were blossoms of blood on our sprigs of green—

Kelly and Burke and Shea— And the dead didn't brag. "Well, here's to the flag!"

Said Kelly and Burke and Shea. "I wish 'twas in Ireland, for there's the place,"

Said Burke, "that we'd die by right. In the cradle of our soldier race, After one good stand-up fight."

My grandfather fell on Vinegar Hill, And fighting was not his trade. But his rusty pike's in cabin still, With Hessian blood on the blade.

"Aye, aye," said Kelly, "the pikes were great. When the word was 'clear the way!'"

We were thick on the roll in ninety-eight— Kelly and Burke and Shea.

"Well, here's to the pike and the sword and the like!" Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

And Shea, the scholar, with rising joy Said, "We were at Ramillies. We left our bones at Fontenoy

And up in the Pyrenees. Before, Dunkirk, on Landen's plain, Cremons, Lille and Ghent, We're all over Austria, France and Spain."

Wherever they pitched a tent, We've died for England from Waterloo

To Egypt and Dargai; And still there's enough for a corps or a crew,

Kelly and Burke and Shea. "Well, here's to good honest fighting blood!"

Said Kelly and Burke and Shea. "Oh, the fighting races don't die out. If they seldom die in bed, For love is first in their hearts, no doubt."

Said Burke then Kelly said: "When Michael, the Irish Archangel, stands,

The angel with the sword, And the battle-dead from a hundred lands

Are ranged in one big horde, Our line that for Gabriel's trumpet waits,

Will stretch three deep that day. From Jehoshaphat to the Golden Gate—

Kelly and Burke and Shea. "Well, here's thank God for the race and the sod!"

Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

Rod and Gun.

The September issue of Rod and Gun in Canada contains a wealth of information and amusement for the sportsman.

"The Clerical Fishing Party" by the Rev. W. A. Bradley is an original account of a real trip, while there is a practical article on making use of the birch-bark. "By Canoe through the Wilds of Quebec" by Alfred Keator is an interesting account of a novel route, while Bonnydale Dale, and F. V. Williams have contributed two good stories.

The last Close Call of Martin Hunter is contained in this issue while a table showing the Game Seasons for 1923 will prove of interest to all sportsmen. Robert Page Lincoln has a fishing department of interest while C. S. Landis, W. C. Hotley, F. H. Walker and J. W. Winslow have their regular contributions all up to the standard. Guns and Ammunition in the September issue is particularly large and interesting, while an article on the North American Buffalo and a story by H. Mortimer Eaton complete a particularly good number.

METHODS OF HANDLING MAIL TO BE DEMONSTRATED AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, August 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Postmaster General, Hon. Chas. Murphy, will have an exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, Poorly addressed and improperly addressed mail will be shown and the proper methods indicated, while other departments, such as C.O.D. parcel handling, postal insurance, registration of mail, will also be demonstrated.

The exhibit will be part of a campaign to secure more complete cooperation between the public and the postal department.

For about an hour a man from Denver had been boasting to a Britisher about the magnificence of the Rocky Mountains.

"You seem mighty proud of them," the Britisher observed.

"You bet I am," replied the man from Denver. "And I ought to be, since my ancestors built them."

The other thought this over for a few moments and then asked, "Did you ever hear of the Dead Sea?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the man from Denver.
