OFFICIAL AT REST

Market Clerk Joseph M. Wilson Died on Sunday.

ILLNESS WAS A SHORT ONE

Mr. Wilson Proved Himself a Good Citizen During His Many Years' Residence in London.

Joseph M. Wilson, for over twenty years clerk of the Covent Garden Market, in this city, died at 7 o'clock last evening, after an illness of about three weeks. Mr. Wilson was a faithful and conscientious servant of the city, and he will be greatly missed by the many with whom he was constantly brought in contact, through the performance of his duties.

The late Joseph M. Wilson was the tenth child of the late John Wilson, of county Wicklow, Ireland. He was born on Jan. 19, 1840, and two years later came to Canada with his parents. He learned the trade of a cabinetmaker, but later entered the service of the Great Western Railway, where he remained for twenty years, following which he spent another score of years as market clerk. Mr. Wilson took an active interest in municipal affairs, and sat for fourteen years as a member of the board of education, being chosen chairman for two terms. In 1866 he was a member of the artillery company, which went from London to assist in repelling the Fenian invaders. Mr. Wilson was an enthusiastic lover of trees and flowers. Over forty years ago he planted the first shade trees on the old Central school grounds, and he afterwards took a lively interest in the beautifying of the city by tree-planting. In 1864 Mr. Wilson married Miss Catherine Allen, the daughter of the late Henry Allen, one of Delaware township's oldest and most respected settlers. Two sons and three daughters survive, they being: John and Fred, of St. Louis; and Fannie, Josie and Katie, at home. Two sisters and two brothers—Mrs. Collins (Sarnia), Mrs. Hy Jeffrey (London), Rev. W. H. Wilson (Pittsburg, Pa.), and Mr. Nicholas Wilson, of the Collegiate Institute teaching staff—are the only survivors of a family of thirteen children.

It is said that after notice of attachment had been served on the railroad company, the cars were plac-ed on a transfer and brought to Detroit. Another story is to the effect that the papers were not served while the cars were on Canadian territory. Deputy Sheriff Rumpull boarded the boat, but was unable to find Martin, as he was in Detroit all the time. For some time after the boat landed on this side, Rumpull waited around the depot yards watching the property, but as a Canadian officer he was powerless. The prisoner has retained Frank H. RALLY OF LOCAL

lines His Platform.

W. W. BUCHANAN ALSO SPEAKS

Socialists Take a Hand in Meeting-Mr' Hazelgrove Speaks.

A rally of the supporters of Mr. F. W. Daly, the local prohibition candidate, was held in the city hall on Saturday night. There was a good attendance, the seats in the lower part of the hall being filled, and many standing at the door. All present, however, were not prohibitionists, as it became evident during the evening that many present were members of the Socialist Labor party, who had come to cheer the utterances of their candidate, Mr. Fred Hazelgrove, in his reply to Mr. Daly.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Jos. Brown, and the following gentlemen occupied the platform with him: F. W. Daly, B.A., the candidate; W. W. Buchanan, editor of the Liberator; Lieut. McMillan, of the Salvation Army; Rev. A. K. Birks, Rev. C. T. Scott, Rev. H. D. Moyer, Rev. T. E. law court. The temperance man who Harrison, James Bowman, D. A. Mc-Dermid, George Rowntree, J. Gordon afford to sneer at the hotel man for Wright.

After a few introductory remarks by Mr. Brown, Rev. H. D. Moyer, of Belmont, was called upon. He gave instances of the alleged violation of the license law in East Middlesex and of the manner in which the inspectorship is conducted. Mr. Moyer said that after the election there would be a re- day, as experience has shown that the count at the throne of God, and many would be found to have either elected or defeated themselves for a place near said he had it on good authority that consternation had entered the ranks are hard to secure, and instead of there troit Free Press will interest many a ward, each party has now only two Londoners, in particular those whose or three. This, Mr. Daly thought a bills were not paid by the showman hopeful sign, and it presaged victory for the cause of prohibition. The people of London were sick of politics, and Mr. Daly instanced the condition of of the city. "If they do this in public for their party, what won't they

The argument that prohibition was the papers. The Free Press and The Advertiser had editorials trying to prove that Col. Leys and Adam Beck were better prohibitionists than Mr. Daly himself. The Free Press claims that Mr. Beck is a total abstainer. A man may be a total abstainer till the hibition. Col. Leys, speaking to the temperance deputation at Toronto, had tenths vote for prohibition before he would enforce it. Neither candidate has expressed himself on the platform in London, for the simple reason that both were afraid of losing the liquor vote of the city. Mr. Daly then mentioned the various planks of his platform, which included prohibition, clean politics, independence of party, the development of New Ontario, the building of government railways; the development by the government of electric power at Niagara; a more vigorous immigration policy; government printing of schools books, and technical education. He expressed his personal views and convictions on Speaking of the referendum, Mr. Daly said the Ross Government's course had been hostile to the true principle of the referendum. The principle of the referendum, not as applied only to prohibition, but to all questions, should have been adopted as a part of the constitution.

In conclusion, Mr. Daly said he expected to pol la very large vote, as he pected to poll a very large vote, as he temperance vote, the young men's vote and the labor vote. He said he felt his interests safe in the hands of the people of London.

The Socialist Candidate. Mr. Fred Haselgrove, the candidate of the Socialist Labor party, was next called to the platform to give his views FAT VS. BRAINS Food That Makes Brilliant Newspapers.

Nervous prostration cannot continue if the right kind of food is used, but food that will build fat does not always contain the elements necessary for rebuilding the soft gray matter in the nerve centers.

A lady tells how she got well from using Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food. "I was treated by several physicians at the hospital. My disease was pronounced neurasthenia (nervous prostration). The doctors gave me various nerve tonics without producing any beneficial results. I finally got so weak that I could not work either physically or mentally.

"About two years ago I began the use of Grape-Nuts and a marked improvement set in at once. In eight weeks I had regained my strength and could do my old work even better than sentees and sick began today and will before, that of writing for the press. continue tomorrow; and appeals will be invitation issued to all local candidates to appear and discuss the question. Mr. Haselgrove did not confine himself to a discussion of prohibition. In a vig-orous address he administered forcible and impartial knocks to Mr. Daly, the prohibitionists, the capitalists, the clergymen, the London Trades and La-bor Council, the South African war, the educational system, the Ross Government, and the opposition. The Socialist Labor party, he said, was the only one which offered a true solution of the many vexed social problems.

Mr. W. W. Buchanan. The last and principal speaker of the evening, Mr. W. Buchanan, then came to his feet. He opened by complimenting Mr. Daly on his address. He also spoke appreciatively of Mr. Hazelgrove's speech, and said it was one which should prove of benefit to everyone who heard it. He showed the many points at which his own views were in sympathy with those expressed by Mr. Hazelgrove. Coming to a consideration of the prohibition question, Mr. Buchanan said that while a majority of the people of Ontario had declared their de-sire to go out of partnership with the liquor business, neither political party was found ready to take up prohibi-tion as a policy. Would Premier Ross have had the courage to turn down all his sacred promises to the temperance people if he did not know that the men on the opposite side of the house already had their guns spiked and dare not appeal to the sentiment of the prohibitionists? Why would not Mr. Whitney come out and place himself at the head of the temperance party which would sweep him into power? Because he, too, was afraid of the power of the liquor trade.

Mr. Buchanan resented the statement made in a local paper that he was a rabid Tory who had always been bitter against the Ross Government. He said that in all his residence in Ontario he had been a Reformer, and he had never been connected in any way with the Conserva-tive party. During a campaign, however, said Mr. Buchan, the were hardly responsible for what they said. Mr. Buchanan said he was glad to see preachers getting into the arena of affairs. If there is any class of citizens who should be foremost in the discussion of political affairs, it is the ministers. Speaking of the referendum, Mr. Buchanan said that it was in some respects a very good act, and in others a very bad act. It was one which could be supported by the large class who, while not believing in absolute prohibition, believe that the saloon is a curse and a menace. The saloon tosupports the political parties cannot afford to sneer at the hotel man, for partments of state. Let temperance men declare that the province shall go out of partnership with the traffic. The referendum bill was bad in several respects. For one thing, the day for voting should not have been made separate from the provincial polling people will not turn out to vote for an abstract principle half as readily as they will to support a candidate. Another bad feature of the bill was the forsaking of the majority principle.

"The Liberal party boasts that it has made a secret ballot," said Mr. Bunext speaker. Mr. Daly, in opening, chanan, "yet that government stuffs the ballot box in advance with 260,000 anti-prohibition ballots. The friends of the old parties. Campaign workers of temperance must toil through the December snows or mud to vote for prohibition, but its opponents can sit comfortably at home."

The referendum is also not a true

STEPS TAKEN TO being 20 or 30 willing canvassers to prohibition, but its opponents can sit comfortably at home."

referendum, because by it the government does not adopt the measure, but merely gives it to the people to adopt or reject it. It is a violation of the principle of responsible government. The government can be impeached more strongly on its maladministration of the liquor license act than on any other point. There is plenty of public opinion behind the law, but not enough official opinion.

Mr. Buchanan closed with an illustration drawn from the harnessing of Niagara Falls for the purpose of securing limitless power. In like manner, he said, the immense power of the church should be utilized for everyday affairs, to lift the burden from toiler and to secure better conditions for the masses. He asked that all vote for Daly and prohibition.

What the Drummer Said.

This concluded the meeting.

Asked if he brought any message from Senator Hanna or any other member of the Civic Federation, Mr. Easley replied in the negative. Despite Secretary Easley's reticence, however, his presence here at this time is regarded as significant, from the fact that he spent part of yesterday in Washington in conference with Senator Hanna and Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, and a member of the National Civic Federation.

TALK WITH SOFT COAL OPERATORS President Mitchell remained close to headquarters all day, going over matters headquarters all day, going over matters pertaining to miners in many states. His time was principally taken up by a conference with the Illinois soft coal operators over a few disputed points in the Springfield, Ill., bituminous district. The matter was finally disposed of, an agreement being reached which was satisfactory to both sides.
