HARD ON DE WILD.

How a Winnipeg Editor Bisposes of His The Winnipeg Times is after the prophet of Bond street church with a sharp stick. Its editor, Edward Farrar, claims to be a lineal descendant of Brian Borru and knows whereof he speaks in discussing matters of Irish history. This is how he answers Dr. Wild's argument that Jeremiah is buried

To begin with, there is no Irish tradition whatsoever relating to the prophet Jeremish. The traditions or bardie histories go back a long way, one even describing. go back a long way, one even describing the advent in Ireland of a colony, headed by the woman Casar, forty days before the deluge. Tara, Dr. Wild says, is a Hebrew word. As a matter of fact, it is one of the commonest Irish words in the language. Teamhair (prenounced Tawer) is the Irish for a hill. The genitive of Teamhair is Termhrach (pronounced Taragh), hence Tara. Besides the great Tara in Meath, of which Dr. Wild is speaking, there is a Tara in Down a Tara in King's county, and a onesides the great Tara in Meath, of which Dr. Wild is speaking, there is a Tara in Down, a Tara in King's county, and a Tara in Wexfard; white every county in the land has a Tarabaking Thelegach of the speaking the color of the same land has a Teamhair. It is near the estate of Viscount Gormans. town, whose family name is Preston, but for a century past it has belonged to the family of O'Driccoll. Again, Tara was pever a wonderful city, nor was it ever destroyed by the Romans, for the sufficient reason that the Roman legions never set foot on Irish soil. There are no ruins there, nothing but the traces that remain after many centuries of an ancient Irish rath and enclosure. No tradition connects Tara with the prophet J. remish or with any queen whatsoever of his period; nor could Tara's harps have had the remotest connection with King David the remotest connection with King David or the temple. My visit was more for the purpose of seeing the timber I had head so much about. I was surprised to find that the only good timber limits were in the hands of American speculators, and there is no chance for any one else to get timber. The herdsmen of the Cochrane ranche told me that last winter they lost seven thousand head of cattle. All along the country carcasses are to be seen. Most of the cattle on the ranches are the poorest I ever saw, in fact nothing more than skeletons. The country all the way west of Mo sejaw is very little good for agricultural purposes. The only salvation of the country west of that will be its mineral wealth. The prospectors out there are much pleased with the prospect, and judging from the samples I have seen, they have every reason to be so. The coal found is very good. I also saw one or two very fine sulphur springs. But as a matter of fact the whole country is one gigantic monopoly. Fruit in Summer.

From the British Medical Journal Lightness is the first essential slike in the food and drink taken in warm weather. There is then less work to be done, less waste of tissue, less need of the pre-eminently muscle-forming and heat-producing substances meat and bread; and fruit, as being both palatable and easily obtainable is much in use. Its advantages are that it provides a seasonable change of diet, light and wholesome if well chosen, and a palatable tonic and stimulant of digestion with able tonic and stimulant of digestion with aperient properties. There are few who cannot enjoy it in one form or another. For diabeties, the only least desirable kinds, as certain nuts and almonds, are available, all others, as containing sugar, being forbidden. Sufferers from acid dyspeps in must select carefully and limit their consumption to the least irritating—a few strawberries or a few grapes. Diarrhœa and dysentery preclude the use of all fruit. On the other hand, for constipated persons it is sometimes the only reliable remedy which they can use continuously with comfort; it is also of benefit in renal diseases, by its action on the bowel. Atonic persons generally take it well, and feel the better for its digestive property. These in normal health may property. Those in normal health may eat almost any ripe fruit. The bland varieties are the most wholesome and nutritious -strawberries, apples, pears, grapes and gooseberries. The last named, however, with currants and raspberries, are less herd boy in the highlands of Scotland. Mr. Smith is of medium height but is very much stooped and greatly emaciated. Those who remember seeing him about 35 or 40 years ago say that he is much smaller every way now than at that time, and greatly reduced both in bone and muscle. His eyesight is tolerable good; he can see distinctly at a great distance and can distinguish obtained as mountain six or seven miles distinctly an amountain six or seven miles distinctly femiles in greatly are indigestible.

jects on a mountain six or seven miles distant with greater ease than most young persons. In fact he can see better at that distance than very much nearer. He is of course very dull in hearing, as might be supposed. His teeth were all gone 40 years ago, but those who are more intimately acquainted with him affirm that his third set are now fast appearing. His other senses are comparatively good. His mental faculties are not much impared either, except that he is getting rather between meals. A succulent and pleasantly acid variety is best for both of these purposes, while it is also a food. The quantity of fruit which should be taken depends on the kind. If it belong to the bland nutritious class, a healthy person may now and then partake of it as freely as of any other wholesome food; but he will gain most benefit if he take only a little and take it required.

Referring to the advertisement of this association in The World of Tu-sd-y last, it may be explained that the much larger sum called for by the valuation made by Professor Cherriman, under the government standard for Canada, then is required by the valuation made by Mr. Homans on the standard for the State of New York, arises solely from the greater severity of the Mortality Table of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain as compared with the "American Experience" Table of Mortality, as the same rate of interest was used in each case.

The reason why the valuation made by this Association's own actuary C. LEFFOR A STILL LARGER RESERVE than even that required by Professor Cherriman's valuation arises from the fact that the directors consider THAT SECURITY TO THE POLICY-HOLDERS is the FERST thing, and, therefore, not content to provide simply as in other companies, they add an additional TEN per cent. to the liability under all BONUS ADDITIONS and PAID UP ASSUTANCES as well as those being paid up, such as TEN and FIFTEEN payments.
