Port Wade

Business being good between this place and Digby necessitated the running of the Perry boat every day last week.

Men in charge here were wired Saturday morning that the ore Steamship would be here in a few days. Belleisle, make note of this.

Thing boat along easily in Belleisle—only can variety of politics there. If the correspondent of that place was found in the position that poor Kendall finds himself in Ward 7—the uncertainty has been dreadful. One day the Conservative member would have a majority of ten; next day the Liberal would have a much larger one, so its no wonder we lose our equilibrium. Before we hear from you again the fun will be all over.

Obituary.

DR. J. B. HART.

The death of Dr. Joseph B. Hart took place very suddenly at Vancouver, B. C., on Saturday morning Nov. 5th, reports the Kentville Advertiser.

Dr. Hart had married less than four weeks before Miss Frances P. Messenger, B.A., of Wolfville, daughter of Mrs. Lewis Messenger. They were happily settled in a beautiful home and Mrs. Messenger left Wolfville to take up her residence beside her daughter. The death took place on the morning that Mrs. Messenger arrived in Victoria.

Dr. Hart complained of a severe pain and his wife left him for a moment to procure aid or something to alleviate pain, and on returning found him dead.

He was a man highly esteemed, had been previously married and leaves a large estate, with no children.

The friends of Mrs. Hart in Kings Co. will deeply sympathize with her in her unexpected bereavement.

Harris took place at his residence, The Waverly Hotel, Canning, on Sunday, at 10.30 p.m. His illness had only been of a month's duration and only within the last week considered serious. Afterwards he engaged in fruit growing for several years and the last five years has been proprietor of the Waverly Hotel, Canning. He married about thirteen years ago Annie Chipman, of Round Hill, who survives him. The sorrowing wife and relatives will have much sympathy in their bereavement.—Kentville Advertiser.

Anniversary Address

Address to Mr. and Mrs. Phineas Whitman read on the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary, October 31st, 1910, by Miss Annie Fair:

The dates Oct. 31st, 1860 and Oct. 31st, 1910, signify that today you have been married fifty years. We wish to offer congratulations on this golden anniversary of your wedding day.

How many happy memories cluster around that night of half a century ago, when, surrounded by father, mother, sisters and brothers on both sides, in the dear, old home, where the happy bride had been tenderly cared for from babyhood by loving parents, who had fit, oh so hard, to give away the precious daughter, whom they have always cherished with parental devotion; yet the feeling is somewhat softened by the thought, that the one who takes her is worthy. Gladness and joy filled your youthful hearts as you anticipated many happy years together in the future pathway of life, and God in his benevolent kindness has granted you these years though not without alloy.

Hand in hand together you have walked down life's rugged pathway, sometimes luminous and bright, and anon shadowy and dark, sharing each other's joys and sorrows, and bearing together life's grievous burdens, until your lives have become as it were, blended in one. Children like ours have grown up around your table, bringing sunshine and cheer into your hearts and home, and the tenders of your hearts have wound around them, as you have tenderly, and thoughtfully, to their wants by day and by night. Carefully and prayerfully you led them, moulding their juvenile minds, until they had reached years of manhood and womanhood; when the all-wise and ever-erring Father called two of your darlings to a brighter home above, and perchance their happy spirits mingle unseen among your guests tonight.

The others, excepting one, (who with his esteemed wife remains to care for you in life's eventide), have one by one flown from the home nest to erect homes for themselves. You have lived to see, as said the Psalmist of old, "your children's children" until you now number twenty-two, to celebrate this golden milestone on your life's journey.

The writer lovingly wishes you much happiness in this glad occasion, and hopes you are each far down on the western side of life's high noon-day, yet we ardently hope and trust you may yet be spared to have many more family gatherings. And when the sunset of your life approaches may you catch a gleam of the brighter light from the other shore to guide you safely to the home beyond, where you will meet the loved and lost to go no more out forever.

Oct. 31st, 1910.

The old, old story, told times and over again, and repeated over and over again for the last thirty-six years, but is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

HEED THIS!

The London Lancet recently called attention to the large number of nervous break-downs among the telephone operators, and draws the conclusion that the work must be trying beyond what the public casual realizes.

The writer urges that the life of the operator be made as easy as possible by the public learning to be less severe upon mistakes. Over every telephone, especially those belonging to any irascible individual, should be the motto, "Don't scold the telephone girl."

Those cross, jerky, abrupt, inconsiderate telephone subscribers, who treat the young lady operators, either by commanding voice or in coarse, snarly tones, as if they were their menials or inferiors, should read the above from the London Lancet and try and improve their manners so as to make them fit to talk to these ever-obliging, hard-worked telephone girls.—Truro Daily News.

Any barn or out building can be made water tight by applying Carpenter-Morton Roofing. FRAUDS IN WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Among an astonishing proportion of dealers, both wholesale and retail, the familiar units of measure have become merely figures of speech. Under a lax administration of the law, pounds, pints and yards, have grown more and more elastic, limited only by the conscience of the tradesmen and the credulity of the customer.

So general has this deception become and so much a matter of course that to-day many leading merchants and commercial exchanges actually defend short weighing and short measuring as an established "trade custom," and argue, in all seriousness, that to return to the old standards would disorganize trade.

It has been found that more than two-thirds of all the scales used in New York are three per cent. "fast" or worse. The minimum deception of three per cent, is alone equivalent to the interest paid by savings banks or first-class bonds. A legal rate of interest, the common "ward of industry," is therefore counted against the purchaser before he enters the store.

The annual loss of the consumer aggregates tens of millions of dollars.—From "Exposures of Trickery in Scales and Measures," by Francis Arnold Collins, in the American Review of Reviews.

A number of changes have been made in the interior arrangement of the Monitor Office recently. For the better convenience of our subscribers when coming in to "cash up," and other customers the business office has been brought from the rear to the front of the building. The mechanical department has also been re-arranged, and the Monitor is in better position than ever to handle its constantly increasing business.
