

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
INTRODUCTION

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

Thursday, November 3, 1983

The Special Committee of the Senate on the Canadian Security Intelligence Service which was authorized to examine and consider the subject-matter of Bill C-157 intituled the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act has, in obedience to its Order of Reference of June 29, 1983, proceeded to that inquiry and now presents its report:

1. The nature of the threat — the need for a security service	1
2. Introduction	4
3. The distinction between law enforcement and security intelligence	6
4. The mandate and functions of the CSIS	10
a) The primary function and nature of security assessments	10
b) Exclusion of information from foreign status and persons regarding defence and international affairs	13
5. The powers and functions of the CSIS vis-à-vis employees	20
a) Interference investigation including use of physical control of their site	20
b) The protection of CSIS employees	21
c) Disclosure of identity of CSIS employees	21
6. Management, supervisory responsibility for the CSIS	22
7. The monitoring and review of CSIS operations	24
a) The Inspector General	24
b) The Security Intelligence Review Committee (SIRC)	30
c) A Special Parliamentary Committee	31
8. Other matters concerning the CSIS	32
9. The Security Services Act — Part IV of Bill C-157	33
CONCLUSION	33
APPENDICES	37
MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS	43