

He complained that only one man in the Senate represented the feeling of the people of Nova Scotia. The old loyalists were satisfied to remain a part of the British Empire, and now they were told that they would form part of a new Kingdom. His Province would not shrink from its duty in a military point of view, but he warned the House and Government not to adopt any ill-advised measures which might cripple our finances for all time. They would show the Imperial Government that the views of the Antis were the views of the people of Nova Scotia, and they had a right to demand a reconsideration of the Union scheme.

Mr. Croke, coincided with his honourable friend from Hants, and the other Antis from Nova Scotia. He complained of the high tariff of Canada, and annual deficits, for which there was little to show, while the debt of Nova Scotia was for valuable public works. He thought, however, the act might be so changed as to meet the approval of Nova Scotia. In any steps towards that end he would lend his assistance.

The House adjourned at 11.25.
