FRENCH CHAMPIONS

One a Lawn Tennis Phenom and Other a White Hope.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Paris sporting world is jubilant over the appearance of two athletic phenomons, who are expected to become world champions.

One of these is Robert Laurent, who, although not yet 18 years of age, has been the greatest surprise of the Anglo-French tennis tournament held here this week.

Laurent won every single in which he played, defeating such men as Donon, Gordon, Smith and Lowe.

He has been equally victorious, playing the strongest game of the tournament.

Englishmen were given the surprise of their careers by being nearly whittled out of the tournament.

Robert, who holds the French championship, was also an easy winner.

Experts say that Robert and Laurent will go to America to take part in the next open tournament.

He is considered one of the speediest and hardest players seen on European courts of recent years.

French enthusiasts declare that it is so wonderful at 18, he is sure to become a world champion before he attains his majority.

The other phenomenon is Charpentier, the boxer, who recently won a fight from Young Jacobs for the middleweight championship of England.

Charpentier, too, is still under 18 years and a middleweight. Now every French boy is aspiring to learn to box or play tennis in the hope of becoming a champion.
