ONTARIO AND RAINY RIVER RAILWAY

The bonuses that have been granted and that are asked for in connection with the construction of the Ontario & Rainy River Railway aggregate slightly over $100,000 a mile. The actual figures are $2,936,800 for 29 1/2 miles. This includes the bonuses that are asked for by the Ontario and Rainy River Governments. Part of the district through which this railway will be run is a valuable mining country, while another part is a rich agricultural country. The territory to be traversed by the railway is not only rich in mining and agriculture, but its reputation is already established as such in money-lending centres. The capitalists who are seeking these bonuses, aggregating more than $100,000 a mile, will have no difficulty in bonding the road for a sum that will much more than meet the deficiency between the actual cost of construction and the bonuses. If the promoters receive the bonuses they are after they will not only be enabled to build the Ontario & Rainy River Railway without putting up a dollar of their own, but they will be able to pocket a large part of the money received by the company's bonds. The promoters stand to make fortunes out of this enterprise. In the first place, they will receive profits on the construction. They will have a large surplus from the bonds. Finally, the whole capital stock of the company will be theirs. The Ontario & Rainy River Railway has much better prospects ahead of it than had the C.P.R. when it was first started. We firmly believe that the railway will not only earn enough to pay interest on its bonds, but it will not be long till the company is able to pay dividends on its common stock. When we consider the immense deposits of iron in the Atikokan district, and the copper and gold mines that will be opened up by the railway all along the line; when we consider the large local business that will offer in the shape of lumber and agricultural products, and the volume of through business that will be done between Winnipeg and Lake Superior, we cannot but come to the conclusion that the Ontario & Rainy River Railway will be a paying venture from the start. At any rate, of this we are certain: that the promoters will not be called upon to advance a dollar of their own capital. The business methods of Messrs. McKenzie & Mann are now pretty well understood. They take no chances in these matters. They build railways with other people's money. And after they have been paid for building them they take possession of them. Their big profit in the promotion of such a scheme as this comes through the manipulation of the stock. The stock is soaked up by the promoters, and the C.P.R. is left with a large amount of stock, which it is unable to carry. The Ontario & Rainy River Railway will probably carry $100,000,000 worth of stock, which will gradually increase in value until it reaches par, as we believe it will before many years. Or, a quicker profit may be made by a majority of the stock to friends of a rival line, such as the C.P.R., which is interested in retaining its monopoly. Does it seem ridiculous for the promoters to hand over this valuable property to a few individuals, whose interests in working it are diametrically opposed to those of the people who have supplied the funds for building it? The promoters will exact in freights as much as they possibly can, or their interests may lie in selling out to a competitive line. The people who have supplied the funds for building it will be left with the lowest possible rates, and the maintenance of an independent line. The arguments in favor of the State building the Ontario & Rainy River Railway are equally as strong as they were in the case of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway. Each is a paying investment in itself, and each would prove an effective check on a great corporation, that enjoys a transcontinental monopoly. If the Crow's Nest Railway had been built by the Government, and if the Ontario & Rainy River Railway were constructed by the Government, we should then be in possession of the more expensive half of a transcontinental system. If the Government owned these two sections, it would not be many years until the gates were connected and a through route established by heading over the Crow's Nest Railway to the C.P.R., the country lost the opportunity of a generation. The great feature about this line and the Ontario & Rainy River is that they will be self-supporting. Moreover, the line which the C.P.R. is extending over the western terminus of the Crow's Nest Railway to self-supporting. A through route running south of the C.P.R., from Lake Superior to the Pacific, would pay handsomely. If the Government had taken the matter in hand properly, it could have secured such a route without taxing the country a dollar. The opportunity, fortunately, has not been completely eluded us. River Railway as a Government line, and with running rights over the Crow's Nest Railway we might still have the basis of an independent transcontinental line. But the chances of securing such a line are daily becoming more remote. It is almost too much to expect the Ontario and Dominion Governments to construct the Ontario & Rainy River Railway as a national work, but there is no doubt that a country demand that it should be so constructed.

GRIT BLUNDERING.

In order to make the preferential clauses of the tariff of 1897 in favor of England operative, it was necessary to have the commercial treaties between Great Britain and Germany and Belgium annulled. Government must have known that by this action Canada was exposing itself to reprisals on the part of these two countries. Our readers will recollect how slightly Sir Richard Cartwright spoke of the value of the German tariff for agricultural or other products of Canada. The January monthly summary of the commerce of the United States shows that that country exported to Germany during the seven months—July 1, 1898, to Jan. 31, 1899—in agricultural products alone, and exclusive of raw cotton or tobacco, produce of the value of a little over $400,000, and this only of such items for which the destination is given.

Mr. Gastrol, commercial attaché to the British Embassy at Berlin, in a report to his Government, says, with respect to the abrogation of the treaty with Germany, that in order to deal temporarily with the commercial relations with England, the Bundesrath on June 11, 1898, issued an official notice that they had resolved "to suspend from July 30, 1897, and until further notice, to the subjects and products of the United Kingdom, and of all her colonies and possessions—with the one exception of Canada—those advantages which are granted by the German Empire to the subjects and products of the most favored nation."

It is claimed by the Dominion Government and its supporters that a leading plank of their policy is the expansion of commerce with foreign nations. In the face of this, they have deliberately closed the German market against Canadian produce, a market which, as above shown, purchases annually about $700,000 worth of United States farm products. They have been spending months of humiliation and expense in a fruitless attempt to bolster up a trade with the United States, which has been closed by the Dominion Government. Canada should attempt to develop a market for its products, while they have ignorantly and culpably closed a market of infinitely greater value, to the serious detriment of Canadian farmers and exporters. What has Canada gained from the abrogation of these treaties? With exuberant gush, Sir Wilfrid Laurier claims that we have secured a nation, and enthusiastic supporters applaud his frothy assertion. The gain has been a serious loss to all but the winner of the Cobden medal.

CHURCH EXEMPTIONS.

A correspondent in another column charges us with inconsistency in advocating protection while we denounce church exemptions. "If it is unjust," says he, "to make those who do not believe in churches pay for their maintenance, how is it right and just to levy toll for the maintenance of such industries on those who are utterly opposed to this nursing process?" The cases are not at all parallel. The taxes levied by the Dominion Government, whether they are just or unjust, are exactly the same for every individual. No one is exempt. If the tariff on manufactured articles is high, everyone has an equal right to take advantage of the fact and go into the manufacturing business. The taxes raised by the municipality, on the other hand, are not levied equitably. Some entirely escape the expense incurred in lighting and policing the city, while the remainder have to bear the whole burden. We do not mean to say that a protective tariff is absolutely tantamount to this at least can be said of it, that it treats the atheist exactly the same as it does the Methodist. If the Assessment Act were constructed on the same principle the church-goer would have no advantage over the man who does not go to church. We believe with our correspondent that the final goal of all legislation should be the abolition of exemptions of every kind.

SONS OF ENGLAND GRAND LODGE.

Report of the Grand Trustees—Mortgage on the Toronto Hall Discharged.
 Ottawa, March 15.—The report of the Grand Trustees was presented at the Sons of England Grand Lodge meeting this morning. It dealt specially with the investments of the Grand Lodge funds, and stated that in consequence of the sale of the Sons of England Hall in Toronto, the mortgage for $5000 on the house had been discharged. The Grand Lodge has decided to meet in future on the second Tuesday in August, instead of in March, at present. The above was the most important amendment proposed at last night's meeting. At last night's meeting the fourth degree will be conferred upon Mayor Payment at one of the hotels. Arrangements are being made to have the delegates photographed in a group on Parliament Hill.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Known Toronto When It Was "Hard-ly York"—Was 80 Years Old.
 Mr. Thomas Bonner, who has lived in Toronto since it was first known as Muddy York, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 47 Ann-street, a house in which he had lived for 45 years. Mr. Bonner was 80 years of age, and had been ill only a week from pneumonia. He was a native of the county of York, and had been in the cattle export trade. At one time he was known throughout Canada as an extensive shipper, but his name has not been heard of lately, as he retired from business some years ago. He was a bachelor, and had five children—James Bonner, the eldest, followed by John, George, and Albert—sons; and John Bonner, Patrick Bonner and Mrs. Bateman of Boston. The funeral will take place Saturday morning at St. Michael's Cemetery.

M., yesterday morning in the undertaking establishment of H. Stone & Son, after which the funeral took place to the Union Depot. Many of deceased's old friends and admirers followed the remains to the station, among whom were: Col. Sam Hughes, M. P., Robert Birmingham, Walter Beatty, M. L. A., B. L. Lloyd, M. L. A., Henry Campbell, M. P., R. H. Gamble, R. S. Stewart and Mr. J. A. Wood of Brockville, brother of deceased. CAPTAIN BARRETT'S STORY

The Wreck of the Allan Liner Castilian Detailed by Her Commander.

FREQUENT SOUNDINGS MADE.

Had Not the Faintest Idea Where They Were—Steamer Cannot Be Got Off.

Halifax, March 15.—Capt. Barrett of the wrecked Allan liner Castilian gives the following statement of the disaster:

When about eight miles from Portland, at Half-Way Rock, as it is called, I shaped the ship's course, and found the compasses accurate. I took my bearings from the rock in the usual way. The night being clear, and having no desire to spare myself and waste time by giving the Nova Scotia coast too wide a berth, I shaped my course so as to clear Seal Island by 16 miles. I could have kept further south and gone comfortably to bed. At the usual hour I went below, giving orders to take soundings at 1 o'clock and to report to me the depth of water. My instructions were to sound at 1 o'clock and at 1 o'clock 6 fathoms was reported. This was exactly as it should have been, and I directed soundings to be taken at 1 o'clock. At this time 37 fathoms was recorded.

Used Lord Kelvin's Lead.

We use on the boats of the Allan Company, you know, Lord Kelvin's patent lead, which records the depth without requiring the stoppage of the ship. A few later order soundings were taken, which were satisfactory and indicated nothing unusual. At half-past 3, however, I ordered a man to go aft and sound again. He did so, and I was startled to hear the ring of the telegraph which is used to transmit the results of soundings when no time is to be lost, by sending a man to report verbally. Seven fathoms was indicated.

Knew Danger Was Imminent.

I knew that danger was imminent, and though I had been forced into shallow water by the tide, I ordered her lead to be hauled to the southward, and went into the chart room to consult my charts. I had seen in there but a brief moment, and I saw that there was something hit on the starboard bow. I came out of the chart room at once, but, being somewhat dazed by the light, was unable to see what he pointed out. The ship's head was then swinging, with the helm hard a-port.

They Felt the Bump.

Suddenly we felt her bump, and then she came to a sharp standstill. I seized the telegraph and sounded full speed astern, but she was on the rocks, and she remained motionless. We had not the faintest idea where we were, though it was quite dark, and the horizon could be seen. I thought we must be on Bloude Rock, though that seemed hardly possible, because in that case we would have heard the bell-boy. I saw that we were almost on the rocks. I was pleased, indeed, when the passengers were ordered to come out of the chart room as long as I possibly could, to be of service. The steamer, in my opinion, cannot be got off Gannet Rocks.

He Found a Feeling of Unrest in Cuba and Much Antipathy Towards Americans.

New York, March 15.—Among the passengers who arrived today from Havana on the Vigilanza was Colonel Ashley W. Cole, President of the State Railroad Commission, who was accompanied by his wife.
