in case an agreement as to the value of the lands cannot be reached by the parties, arbitrators may be appointed by one of the justices of the supreme court. The only information received by the city was given by Mr. Biggar, the G. T. R. solicitor, to City Solicitor Caswell, to the effect that plans had been filed before the railway commission.

Mayor Urquhart is disinclined to discuss the matter until he sees the plans and can not say whether the city will oppose the application or not. The Railway Act apparently gives the companies the power to take the property and the only question is whether it is really needed by them or whether they can not obtain less desirable property in another portion of the city. The mayor is inclined to the view that the Esplanade will be left open to provide for the loading and unloading of freight.

Assessment Commissioner Fleming stated that as yet there had been no of condition, and the horizontal shaft that fitted into the crank was not perfectly square.

As the man on the ground was preparing to make all fast the machine slipped a round. The weight at the other end of the rope came down with a joit, causing the winch to slip again. Then the scaffold with its human freight started down the awful descent, all the time with increasing velocity. At the first hint of the accident the two man seized the ropes at the sides of the plank and clung to them. As the scaffold came to each successive joint in the massive steel structure it bounded out from the chimney, and nothing but their convulsive grip on the ropes saved the men from being hurled to the ground. The spectators below were helpless. To attempt to stop the terrific whirl of the winch was madness, and an effort to catch the rope proved that to be equally impossible. In less time than it takes to tell the scaffold had reached the 40-foot level.

At this point there is a considerable abutment in the stack. When the plank struck this it upset and the men from being hurled to the ground. The spectators below were the plank and Assessment Commissioner Fleming stated that as yet there had been no one to see him in regard to the matter, and he was entirely in the dark as to the intentions of the railroads. It has been stated that the leases given by the city expire on the buildings being destroyed, but this is without foundation. In fact, the lessees alpear to have become seized with an appreciation of the value of their right, as a number of them have paid the ground rents since the fre.

LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY. Much Charitable Work Accomplished During the Severe Winter.

The secretary's report told of a great amount of distress encountered during the winter, attributed largely to the prolonged and severe cold. The great number of consumptives found among the poor this winter was noted. A case was pointed out where three of a family slept in the same room with a victim dying of this disease.

The secretary's report told of a great representing Sherife Sheldrake to have been married to James M. Irwin.

"Also for damages sustained by the plaintiff because of such representation and use."

James M. Irwin went to the land of the Dakotas, and after a considerable residence there became again united in matrimony. Bigamy cannot be alleged, slept in the same room with a victim dying of this disease.

It was urged that the city grant of $1000 be increased, as the the private subscriptions are large the total amount collected each year is not altogether not interfere where intent cannot be

The counsel, E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., and Frank Denton, K.C., for Col. Gray and Frank Gray, yesterday made a strong plea before the court of appeal, and were successful in their endeavors.

It was argued by Mr. Johnston that, while the accused were charged with taking, opening or interfering with the ballots, the evidence and conviction centred on the marking of them, something altogether different.

Chief Justice Moss inquired if this would not come under the word "interfering," but counsel held not; it may have been interference with the voter; but the act of making additional crosses was a silent one.
