RESTLESS GREEKS SEEK AN ISSUE

Republicans Active, But Do Not Favor Resort to Armed Rebellion — New Organization Works With Labor Men.

(By Hamilton Fish Armstrong, Staff Correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post.)

Athens, May 8. — Seven prominent Venizelists, members of parliament and former cabinet ministers, were put in jail the other day for having signed a manifesto in which they spoke well of republican forms of government and called upon the present royalist regime to make a frank statement of its internal policy.

The incident was not very serious, as they were released after spending a few days in the worst jail in Athens, the judges having been unable to discover any direct attack on the person of the king or incitement to violence in a polemic consisting mainly of partisan generalities. I have been unable to find a member of the government who approved of the arrest, and King Constantine himself went so far as to tell me he thought it "quite unnecessary."

The king's reasoning, by the way, was interesting. Greece, he seems, is already a democracy, and consequently it is not a crime to proclaim oneself a democrat. He refused to agree to my suggestion that by putting these men in jail he had given them cause to believe they were right in considering Greece a very limited variety of republic. But he admitted that the seal of his public prosecutor had been most short-sighted.

The proceeding is worth more than a moment's thought, not only as demonstrating the present nervous condition of the king's ministers, but also because it shows that there is a not insignificant wing in the Venizelist party which is committed to republicanism.

Waiting Game for Venizelos.

The policy of Venizelos himself is to avoid attempting any sort of coup d'état to overthrow the Constantine government. He prefers to wait and see whether the government will not of itself return to habits which will allow its followers to resume participation in political life on an equal footing with the royalist and other parties of Greece. He is determined, if one believes his closest personal friends, to avoid the Annunzio role, as also the role of a revolutionary, knowing that either would further impair the already damaged prestige and power of Greece in the international field.

But there are more impetuous spirits in the Venizelist ranks who believe the time ripe for a definite movement toward republicanism. The imprisonment of several of these so-called "Democratic Liberals" has convinced them of the justice of their feelings against the royal government and, equally important, has given them more useful publicity.

The leaders of the "Democratic Liberals" are Constantine Melas, a deputy, member of a well-known Athenian family and formerly aide-de-camp to Prince George; T. Petrasas, formerly professor of international law in the university at Athens; Dr. G. Vilaras, deputy, for some time consul general at Philadelphia, and A. Papanastasiou, a former minister in one of the Venizelist cabinets. All these were in prison. Their general organization committee consists of seventy-nine members, men active in political life in the time of Venizelos and many of them still in the chamber of Deputies.

Revolution is not on their programme. They prefer to make haste more slowly and, they believe, more surely. But they are very active. The new organization is working closely with labor leaders, and will also seek to gain a footing in rural districts.

EDISON TESTS POKER SKILL IN NEW QUIZ

"How Would You Play Three Eights Against a Pat Hand?" He Asks Candidates.

Thomas A. Edison is looking for a right-hand man. Several hundred college graduates have been tested at the Edison plant with a new and improved questionnaire. Thus far, it is reported, Mr. Edison has not found a young man of sufficient intellectual attainment and promise to be his first lieutenant.

The first Edison questionnaire was a test for candidates for positions of lesser importance. The new series, intended to search out a worthy pupil and personal assistant for Mr. Edison, is greatly elaborated and contains new types of questions. The old test was an inventory of the goods in the candidate's mental warehouse. The new questioner bristles with questions designed to show how fast and how well the candidate can think.

Some of the new type of interrogatories may have been borrowed from the college psychology tests, which contain "forensic" questions, the candidate being asked to tell what he thinks he would do if suddenly confronted by a situation calling for decisive action.

One of the most profound questions concerns the management of a poker hand described by Mr. Edison—an idea which may have been appropriated from Manager John McGraw, who used a poker game, it was said, during the spring training season as a psychological laboratory in which he measured the speed and accuracy of the thought processes of "bushers," by their conduct in poker emergencies. Mr. Edison's brain-measuring poker hypothesis follows:

"You have only $10 in the world and are playing poker with a man you have never seen before. On the first deal he holds a pat hand. You have three eights before the draw. There is $50 cents in the pot. He bets a quarter. What are you going to do, and why?"

MOVE TO REGULATE DANCING LIKE BOXING

The American Dancing Masters' Association of the United States and Canada has admitted that modern dances have gone beyond its control, and has endorsed the Duke dance bill, according to an announcement just made public by a group of prominent men and women organized as the "American League."

The Duke bill, which will come up before the legislature at Albany in January, 1923, does not aim at the prohibition of dancing but at its legal restriction, the central idea being that dancing shall be governed by rules just as sports are defined.

MORE TAXIS IN HAVANA THAN PRIVATE MOTOR CARS

The total number of motor vehicles in Cuba at the present time number 19,689 passenger cars and trucks, according to an estimate made from figures given out by the various dealers. Havana is a "city of taxicabs," as shown by the fact that there are 5,688 taxicabs and 8,775 private cars. In addition there are about 2,928 motor trucks and thirty trailers in the city. Only a small number of the cars in Cuba are located outside of the cities, owing to the poor roads in the country. Traffic conditions are congested a good deal of the time, due to the narrow streets in the cities and large number of taxicabs.

Soapmakers to H. M. The King

LONDON - PARIS - TORONTO

A little care and knowledge of how to treat the skin, a little care and judgment in the selection of her toilet soap, just a little determination to make the most of herself, to help nature beautify her and—her skin may glow with the radiance of health and beauty. Her complexion, free from blackheads, pimples, blemishes, etc., will give her wonderful new attraction for her friends—make her beautiful in fact.

Skin cleansing is ALL important
This is not a lecture against the use of rouge and powders. They are good, but the great danger lies in using them over and over again without thoroughly cleansing the skin between each application. Thus, an artificial "skin" of grease, grit and perspiration is formed which clogs the pores, resulting in a coarse, sallow, sickly skin.

WINSOME—the soap paramount
Naturally, the soap is very important. A soap, with cheap, impure materials, or too quickly and improperly made, may cleanse the skin but will do more harm than good. Choose Winsome, the new toilet soap—most pleasant to use, for you can always depend on its supreme quality, its gentle cleansing power, its wonderful purity.

A simple WINSOME treatment
Make a lather in warm water with Winsome Soap. Use both hands and gently massage every inch of the face and neck, work the fingers into the skin and take a little time to it. Then rinse thoroughly and dry with a soft towel. If your skin is naturally dry, use a little Vinolia Vanishing Cream before you wash, and a little after. If your skin is naturally oily, wash in warm water, but rinse in cold. Keep this up daily and neither rouges or powders, nor rough winds or hot sun, can injure your skin. Winsome Soap will make it naturally robust and glowing with colour and beauty.
