Burdis, has tion. laid the views of the organization before the commission. Their desires are simple. They want the tax of $500 on Orientals coming into Canada reduced to the former figure, $100. They argue that, owing to the excessive head tax, no Chinamen have come here within recent years, and that, as a result labor is scarce, while the wages have so increased as to make the work of putting a pack together much more expensive than heretofore. Their tion, however, is clearly outlined in the aforementioned memorial, which follows:

every person needing Chinese helpers, but more especially canners, have found it impossible to procure the necessary hands, and consequently the rate of wages to Chinese laborers has increased about three-fold. You will recognize how seriously this has affected the canners and increased the cost of their packs, as owing to the small population here, it is possible to procure white helpers to take the place of the Chinese. The can ners on Puget Sound, and in Oregon and California, do not experience this difficulty nearly so much, as, with the large population behind them, they can much re easily supply their requirements. The canners respectfully submit that whilst your hon. commission is pursuing its labors here, it would be well, if evidence were obtained in this connection, and, if the effects of the tax are found to be as stated, such representations be embodied in the report as will induce the Dominion government to lower the rate to the former figure-viz., $100. Packers' Association and the Anglo-B. C. Packing Company have canneries at all known suitable points: on the Fraser, Naas and Skeena rivers and at Rivers Inlet and other less important points and contrive to make a profit by averaging up. For instance, the pack at Rivers Inlet this year is one of the biggest on record, while at other places it falls away below the average. Thus the profits in other places will pay any osses they may have on the Straits. Next year will very probably see conditions reversed: the traps highly profitable and other places a loss. No one knows what is going to happen regarding the salmon run, and it is useless to speculate. The more we study the less we find we know "It is doubtful, too, if the traps in Rosario Strait will make a profit this season.
