Which deals with the importation of women.

In the first three months of this year eighty-two white slaves and fifteen slave dealers" were sent back to the country of their former residence. In April thirty-four of the former and seven of the latter were sent away.

The total deportations for five months were 150 white slaves and three wenty-four of the former class and twelve of the latter in the entire fiscal year of 1908. The majority of the arrests were made in New York, Seattle and Montreal.

SON OF SIAMESE TWIN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

With Boy and Workman He Had Taken Has Twenty-One Living, the Eldest 53 and Shelter in His Barn.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., June 16.

—Jesse Bunker, a deaf mute, youngest son of Chang, one of the famous Siamese twins, was killed by lightning today in his tobacco barn in Surry Co. He and his son and a workman took shelter in the barn during a rainstorm. Bunker's hat and shoes were torn to pieces, but the body was not bruised or mutilated. The son and workman were knocked senseless, remaining in this condition for an hour or more. Bunker was 48 years old and prosperous. He was intelligent and entertaining, and enjoyed conversing with his friends through the medium of pencil and paper.

The famous twins married Virginia women. The sons of the Siamese have all been well to do and prosperous men. The peculiar inheritance of deafness was an affliction that added an additional strangeness to the family. The mute was bright and quick of wit, though in each branch of the family there seems to have been more or less freak of nature. The older boys of the Chang family have gone into other sections.

ON THE DEATH OF SWINBURNE.

(By Sara Teasdale).

He trod the earth but yesterday,
And now he treads the stars.

He left us in the April-time
He praised so often in his rhyme;
He left the singing and the lyre and went his way.

He drew new music from our tongue,
A music subtly wrought,
And molded words to his desire
As wind doth mold a wave of fire; golden tones he wrung.

I think the singing understands
That he who sang is still,
And Iseuit cries that he is dead,—
Does not Dolores how her head
And Fragoletta weep and wring her little hands?

New singing now the singer hears
To lyre and lute and harp.
Catulius waits to welcome him, And through the twilight sweet and

Party of Engineers Treated With Courtesy by Buglishmen.

BTRLIN, June 15—The Lokal Angelege of the paid no further attention to him, but on their return from work this evering, seeing the man still lying in the bashes, they investigated with the result above stated.

To get prints a communication from a correspondent speaking enthusiastically of the case with which a party of young German engineers recently accured access to the battleship Albor at Dover.

"Permissions was not only given with the tumost courtesy," says the correspondent, "but the visitors were expondent, "but the visitors were expondent," but the visitors were expondent, "but the visitors were expondent," but the visitors were expondent, but the visitors were expondent and the proposed by the officers and engineers about everything wounded by a lion. The Girl in the Opposite Box

(BY VANCE C. GRISS.) Arch Moseas, civil engineer, read the tolegram he held in his hand through, the second time. He could not have desired a better offer in some respects, but when he realized that it meant an an absence of a year he hesitated. That might ruin his chance of winning Lucille Weston. He was not certain that she cared that much for him, but

Roosevelt started for Africa before being acquainted with the fact that one of the best exponents of the anti-race suicide is John W. Guy, who is the father of thirty children, twenty sons and ten daughters, of whom there are the son, being 53 years old; his youngest,
a daughter of 2 years.

Mr. Guy is a farmer and resides at Melfa station, a few miles south of father on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Raiiroad. He was seventy-five years old on April 6 last. In 1855 the was married to Mary Ann Rayfield, a farmer's daughter, both being in their twenty-second year. To this union seven children were born.

On September 12, 1868, he was joined in wedlock to Margaret Elizabeth Ayers, who was at the time of her marriage 21 years of age. The parents of the bride objected very much to this match. An elopement was planned, and the not-to-be-disappointed wooer, assisted by her brother, sis sweetheart from the house and drove to Newtown, Md., (now Pocomoke), and were married at daybreak the following morning. To this union eighteen children were born.

One of Mr. Guy's sons by his first marriage married a sister of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married a brother of his present wife, and a daughter of his second wife married to his definition. He had taught her the sign languages of the deaf-mutes and they had been do thinking rapidity, he decided to find Miss Weston, tell her test.

He caught a car and was soon at the stable that in a short time he would wait a yea raised twenty-one children, he has three great-grandchildren, while eighteen of his own children are married. At the time of his first marriage Mr. Guy was practically a poor man, and although he has raised three sets of children, starting each son out in life, he has prospered wonderfully, and now is owner of several nice farms in the surrounding country, besides his own home.

In a moment she turned toward hims with a giance of displeasure. Then, with a smile of recognition, she started with a smile of recognition, she started to turn again toward the stage, when the movements of his right hand caught her eyes. "Listen," the man spelled, rapidly, forgetting he was using merely a sign language. Shielding his hand as much as possible with a programme so that he might prevent others fro mseeing what he was doing, he began to spell out sent-mess. "In 15 minutes," he spelled, "I am sailing for South America, to be gone a year. Received telegram tonight, offering me good job."

At that moment Miss Weston's escort said something to her and she glanced away for a second. Almost immediately, however, she again turned her eyes toword Morgan, surprise showing clearly on the face.

IN A MOMENT SHE TURNED TO-WARD HIM WITH A GLANCE OF

BALLOON ASCENSION

"I love you," the hand told her. "If your heart tells you that you love me, I will be the happiest man in the world. When I return at the end of the year, I will be ready to provide a cosy home for you."

Once more Morton Walford spoke to Miss Weston and seemed surprised when she manifested no interest in what he said. With a puzzled ex-with Chairman Aldrich today, declared that its atcion looked to him like a "game of petty politics." He characterized this action as "an effort to hang the senator from Wisconsin up
