On Founder's Day

 Thursday morning a parade of shiny black limousines, slowly wound its way through McLaren Gates. A Division of commissionaires stood ready to hold the pass by the Old Arts Building. Wondering students stood gaping. Had the Mafia arrived, or was it a funeral procession of a notable whose last wish had been for a campus burial, or was the Robichaud takeover spreading to the campus? But no, there was no need for panic. It was just the venerable senate arriving for their tri-annual visit "Up the Hill". The commissionaires were just saving parking space. The occasion, of course, was Founder's Day. All morning the senate sat . . . and sat . . . and sat. What went on was top-secret, confidential, and all that you know, so we can only guess at the subject of their debate.
 Speaking of debates, Tommy Douglas and John Fairchild tangled with George Chaisson and Dean MacNutt in the afternoon on the subject of universal accessibility. For the first time Mr. Douglas basked in the warmth of power, as the leader of the pro-universal accessibility group. You see, his side won "slightly". No one in the audience was disappointed in the afternoon's debate, however, for it was impressive, dynamic and swift-moving. It even attracted a group of MLA's which is more than can be said for other local discussions on the same subject.

 Then on to the Presidential dinner. It was held in McConnell Hall, an unlikely place for such a Lucullan repast. It was a magnificent buffet, such a regular McConnell Hall diners longingly dream of . . . lobster thermidore, tomato aspic, salmon, beef, turkey, ham and pineapple, salads galore and best of all white linen tablecloths and candle sticks with candles on the head table. And please note, there were waitresses. Dessert was made sweeter by a performance of the U.N.B. glee club. Their program concluded with the Alma Mater (nourishing mother) which unfortunately was not recognized by the majority until half-way through, when they floundered to their feet. What is even more unfortunate is that many of those who made it to their feet, only did so because they were following the example of the registrar. Perhaps the remedy to this situation, would be the increased use of this beautiful song at student gatherings. Those persons were then treated to an after-dinner speech by Dr. MacKay. It was as usual, witty and thoroughly enjoyable.

The setting of the last act of Founder's Day was the auditorium of Memorial Hall. The traditional quit rent of one farthing (atrocious, in this day and age when money is so scarce) was paid to Chief Justice Bridges. Then Mr. Douglas addressed a jam-packed house on the subject "The Challenge of the Scientific Revolution". His address was brief, concise and to-the-point — this is in itself a challenge to many speakers.
 A successful Founder's Day concluded with a reception at Lady Dunn. Then a fond farewell to Mr. T.C.D. of the N.D.P. from U.N.B.
