Runway construction begins

These are the days of decision . . . with the biggest one yet to come this week. Up to press time Transport Minister Paul Hellyer was still due to make his decision on the fate of the proposed expansion at Malton Airport.

A panel of judges, has turned down Mississauga council's request for leave to appeal the OMB's major Sherway decision. See page A10.

Another transport decision, this time on the home front, has been made by town council and it is designed to help Mississaugans get around their growing community by bus. See pages A2 and A10.

Airport expansion or not, one thing is clear from the pattern of the week's events — at least one runway at the airport will be extended. More controversy. See pages A3 and A8.

Regional government is back in the news as Peel South MPP Douglas Kennedy slams the Ontario Legislature for dreaming up the idea of merging Peel with Halton County. He has some ideas of his own on the subject. See page A9.

An enterprising company has approached town council with an idea of how to attract more industry and commerce to the town by aiming at "frightened" Montreallers. See page A5.

Ever thought about dead elm trees? Council has discovered that they are more of a pain in the neck that one might imagine — they threaten to bankrupt the town. See page A3.

Then, there's always the brighter side. Take a look at page B30 and you'll see what we mean.

On the youth front, too, there's plenty afoot. Youth in action is the theme of the B1 feature this week.

And, women, there are a few things to tantalize your interests in keeping that young, fresh look while you are partying it up at Christmas. Read story page B11.

The Mississauga News publication date will be moved up for the holidays. Look for your copy on Christmas and New Year's Eves.

Among the numerous events poor old Santa had scheduled Saturday was the Shriners' parade through Clarkson. The Rameses Shrine sponsored the event for the Crippled Children.

Little Donna Joan Lloyd seems confident Santa won't forget her and he didn't. Donna Joan was one of over 70 crippled children from South Peel who attended the special dinner and party sponsored by the Credit Valley Lion's Club, Dec. 16. Santa is assisted by pretty Cathy Sinclair of Applewood Acres.
