BOTHA'S COOL DARING.

His Nerve in Dealing With a Savage Zulu Chieftain.

A story of the cool daring of General Louis Botha. whose name is so inti-mately associated with dramatic epi-nately associated with dramatic opt-sodes in the history of South Africa, appears in his biography written by Haroid Spender. It happened one win-ter when young Botha had taken sheep for pasturage across the Drakensherg mountains and down to the warmer coast lands, which were still in the grip of the Zulus. One tranquil day a young native-rushed hito Botha's camp. He breach-lessly warned the young Boer to its and save his life. Mapelo was 'oot.'' The most bloodthirsty of all the ruf-fianly gangs that were then ravaging Zululand was the well mounted and well armed gang of Mapelo. Only an hour or two before, said the native, he had cut the throat of a missionary at the old mission station, about six rulica from Botha's camp. The native him-self had just left the body of the un-happy man lying still and warm on his own dinke room table.

from Botha's camp. The native him-self had just left the body of the un-happy man lying still and warm on his own dining room table. Both had little time to make up his mind, but one thing was clear—he could not desert his sheep. Most of them belonged to his brothers. So he began to prepare to face the raid-r. Looking at his bandoleer, he found to his dismay that he had only one car-tridge left. Scarcely had he discover-ed the fact when a troop of Zulu horse-men appeared about a quarier of a mile away over a rise of ground in ex-tended order and charged toward the wagon. waving their rifles over their heads and shouting like demons pos-sessed.

Louis at a seased. Louis Botha rose and very deliber-ately mounted the box seat of his wagon. He laid his rifle in a con-spicous place next him. Then he proceeded, with an outward cain very foreign to his own inner feelings, to

Then Mapels and yanced and said that fit siles wore very hundry and wanted some time to eat. Botha gravely demurred at this stormy way of approach and coolly barranined with the invuler of his pace. At last he agreed to give them one sheep on the strict condi-tion that they should withdraw some distance from his camp and not dis-durb him again. The condition was accepted, and so ended an incident that Botha has always described as one of the most disturbing in his whole life.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of thier little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weath-er. Stomach trouble, cholera infan-tum and diarrhoca carry off thousands of little ones every summer. In most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guar-anteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keps the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Prince of Weles Has "Made Good" in South.

While the censor was trying to keep it a secret that the Prince of Wales had reached the Italian front the prince himself was making friends without knowing it in the war zone. His simple manners at first aston-fished the Italians, though they might be used to their own king by now, who goes about like any other officer. But it took some time for the Italian offi-cers and their men to understand that a certain young infantry captain who went about with two British officers was heir to the British throne. While the censor was trying to keep

One afternoon he and two other officers dropped into what is called a "bar" here, that is a store where people, can get coffee as well as liquors, but no wine. A gray-haired, rublcund, weather-beaten lombard ar-fillery captain, who was having a cup of coffee, saw the three English offi-cars come in, went up to them, and, addressing the prince, said: "Allow me, comrade, to offer you and your friends a cup of coffee, a molest sign of comradeship." And he threw down a franc to the bartender, who forth with handed Eng-land's future sovereign a 2-cent cup of coffee. "Thank you very much." said the Prince of Wales, and asked about the war. They talked some time, and having, he said, work at the barracks. He does not know yet that he offered a cup of coffee to the Prince of Wales. The first to recornize the prince in the zone of operations was a young lieutenant of a batialion of bersagileri, who happened to have seen him mass on his way from Udine to the Italian time's vills in the soring of 1916. Measuring Distances.

Professor J. Joly, of Dublin, has suggested an ingenious method of measuring distances by wireless, says the Popular Science Monthly. He re-lies on the fact that disturbances lies on the fact that disturbances iravel with different speeds in differ-ent media. Sound travels 1.100 feet or more a second in air and about 4.709 feet a second in ware, while wireless or light signals travel at equal speeds. Thus, if a shore station sends out these different signals at the same time, they will not be received by the ship simultaneously; there will be an interval of time between them that will increase as the distance of the ship from the shore increases. If a nile from the station, a ship would re-ceive a sound signal in air 4.5 seconds, later than a sound signal in water, and an air sound 5.5 seconds, or a sound in water 1.2 seconds, later than a wireless signal. Therefore, with a knowledge of the interval which elapses between the reception of any two of these different signals, it is a comparatively simple matter to cal-culate the source from which they have been sent. Knowledge of arith-netic is all that is necessary. Minard's Liniment Kelieves Neuralgia travel with different speeds in differ

UP TO HUBBY.

Though He Blamed Wifey for Neglect.

Speaking at a dinner, Senator George W. Norris. of Nebraska, refer-red to the beauty of having a good memory, and fittingly related this story

At eight o'clock in the morning one day last summer the Jones' took trunks, grips and sultcases, and hust-led for the railroad station. Twenty minutes later a taxicab dashed up to the Jones house and out jumped your railroad ticket?" "No," answered Jones, showing symptoms of peevishness. "My wito left a kettle of water boiling on the gas stove. Didn't think of it until we reached the station. You can always depend on a woman to have a mem-ory like that." So saying, Jones unlocked the door and hastened into the house, in about two minutes he came out again wita his features puckered into a peculiar twist.

"What's the matter, old man?" ask-ed a kindly disposed neighbor. "Forget your railroad ticket?"
