Lost Str. Islander Found by Fisherman

Who is Ready to Sell His Information to Those Interested.

The lost steamer Islander, which was wrecked with an iceberg off the northern end of Douglas Island and sank to the bottom of Stephen's passage, about a year ago, carrying with her many passengers, has been located. A fisherman while hunting for salmon in the locality where the steamer went down got his tackle foul of the wreck and had some difficulty extricating it.

Believing that he had caught on some jagged piece of rock he tugged and hauled away until something gave way, and to his surprise a door came to the top. It had become detached from the wreck, probably having been swung to and fro with the action of the currents ever since the steamer met with disaster, until finally it required but little force to break it loose from its fastenings.

The fisherman at once realized the value of his find, and after taking the door to Juneau, refused to divulge the spot in which he had found the steamer. As a result he will probably realize a substantial sum for the information he has now in his possession.

He made the discovery early last week. The location of the islander has never been ascertained from the fact that the steamer was reported to have sunk beneath the icy waters. A Tacoma company has contracted with Captain Cox, the Victoria representative of Lloyds, for the raising of the steamer and taking her to Victoria for repairs, but although having agreed to start the work within 60 days, had not commenced operations up to date. It was reported last week, however, that an expedition had gone north from the sound to make an examination of the submerged craft, preparatory to undertaking the work.—Alaskan.

Opening China

Opposing the request of the commissioners to allow foreigners to reside in the interior of China, the "Universal Gazette," a Chinese paper, is quoted by the Shanghai Mercury as saying:

"The Chinese plenipotentiaries have already replied to the foreign commissioners that the interior is as yet unaccustomed to foreign ways and manners, and that there are so many robbers and evil people generally in the interior, the Chinese penal laws are not being changed, and the foreigners are not willing to put themselves under Chinese law. Hence, if all were to live together there would be endless trouble. We say that unless their government, religion, customs, clothes, food are all like ours, it is impossible to grant foreigners the right of promiscuous residence in the interior. Europe and America have been alike for many years and so they may freely mix without difficulty. But in the case of people who are wholly different such intercourse is impossible. Take Japan as an example. Her new system dates back thirty years and during that time she has been studying everything foreign with great diligence, yet she waited till 1900 before she allowed foreigners the privilege of promiscuous residence in her interior. Although she was so well advanced in foreign acquisitions, yet she was so slow to grant this privilege. How then can China, who is so far behind, possibly think of granting it at this time?"

The Universal Gazette concludes a column of such utterances in this manner:

"Well, if they insist on it, we will insist that we can have the same privilege in Europe. We also will insist that our nations may dwell freely everywhere in their countries. The Americans treat us shamefully. They include our laborers and tax them outrageously if they are already in. They forbid Chinese entering into the hands under their control, e.g., the Philippines and Sandwich Islands. Japan, with all her professions of kinship and affection, allows all other nations to dwell in her interior, but still forbids Chinese doing so. She limits the number and character of the Chinese she permits to enter the country."

Malleable Glass. Muncie, Ind., May 31.—Louis Kauffeld, owner of a glass factory in Muncie, claims to have discovered the secret of manufacturing malleable glass. Kauffeld is head of a lamp chimney factory. He says he can weld patches into broken chimneys. He says:—"The usefulness of this glass is great. Coffee pots and tea kettles might be made of it as easily as of tin or steel, and would no more crack under great heat than articles manufactured from those metals. The housewife in canning fruit might heat the fruit directly in the glass jars before they are sealed."

While Kauffeld's process is unknown to anybody except himself, he volunteered the information that the lime and lead that are used in the manufacture of ordinary glass do not enter into the composition of this. What the substitutes are he would not say.

"The secret lies," he said, "in the chemicals that are used in making this glass and the proportions in which these chemicals are put into it." He says also that the new process is cheaper than the old.

Mr. Kauffeld took a glass chimney of ordinary appearance, put as much water in it as it would hold when it was placed horizontally, and, placing it over a fire, proceeded to boil the water without cracking the chimney. Next this same chimney was heated until it was almost at the melting point and plunged into cold water. The chimney went through the ordeal without injury. Kauffeld followed this experiment by taking up the now cooled chimney and using it as a hammer, driving a good sized nail into a tough board with it. Again the chimney came forth unharmed.

Is La Blanc's Body

The body found seventeen miles this side of Eagle a few days ago proved to be that of Frank La Blanc who fell from the bridge into the Klondike river on May 6th. It was readily identified by the two men, one of whom, Lacasse, was a former roommate of La Blanc's, sent by the Dawson aerie of Eagles, of which order deceased was a member, to confirm the report that it was La Blanc's body as a telegram signed by him was received this morning:

"I have La Blanc's body. Coming on Lorrelei." On its arrival here the body will be taken charge of and buried by the Eagles.

Wholly Recovered

Mrs. Mary Noble, one of the pioneer ladies of Dawson, returned yesterday on the steamer Clifford Sifton having spent the winter in California and the spring in Seattle. Mrs. Noble was in very poor health when she left here last fall and her many friends will be pleased to learn that she has wholly recovered. She was accompanied on her return by her brother Mr. Alexander and nephew Eddie Franklin, both from Missouri, and by Mrs. Newins of Seattle.

Taku Arm Mines

According to the Atlin Claim of May 31st, word has been received that Mr. J. Wash, part owner in the White Moose group on Taku Arm, has had instructions to commence work on the property at as early a date as possible, and he was expected to be on the ground last week. Mr. J. Carplice, of Butte, Mont., is said to be on his way in. He has a bond on the White Moose and will have an engineer to report on the property early this summer.

Little has been heard of the various mines on Taku Arm during the past winter, but work on the Engineer has been going ahead steadily and the result, it is said, is highly encouraging.

The Big Horn group has been bonded for $6500 with a payment down. Considerable work has been done on this property, and a quantity of rich ore is on the dump ready for shipment. Assays give as high as $100 per ton. Arrangements have been made with the W. P. & Y. route to ship ore from any point on Taku Arm to Tacoma, Wash., for $9 per ton. From what can be learned the lead on this property is an extension of the famous Redmond lead, but with this difference, that it is supposed to be the true lead instead of a blanket as the Redmond proved to be.

WHERE IS KIRKPATRICK?

Not Tom Whom Everybody Knows

But Frank of 31 Below on Hunker Who Had a Lay and a Cook.

An absconder with $7,000 belonging to his workmen, a woman betrayed by him who attempts to commit suicide, were the headlines of a thrilling drama supposed to have been enacted on Hunker recently. Like most of the romances in real life these first stories of it proved upon investigation to be overdrawn.

To begin at the beginning and work up to the denouement, Frank Kirkpatrick owned a one-quarter lay on No. 35a Hunker and Attorney de Journal owned the rest. Last October Kirkpatrick took a lay on the property and worked from twenty to thirty men on it all winter and until a week ago. By his workmen, his neighbors on adjoining claims, and the people who knew him generally, "Kirk," as he was called, was regarded as an earnest worker, a good business man and a man who was in every way reliable.

Last Friday week he came to town and called upon Mr. de Journal and said he needed $7,000 to pay off certain indebtedness. All his previous dealings with Mr. de Journal had been of a kind to place him above suspicion. His last wash-up had been $26,000, and he had paid out of this to Mr. de Journal his due proportion amounting to $6,489. The latter therefore had no hesitancy in going over to the Canadian Bank of Commerce with him, where he was loaned the sum of $7,000.

With this sum in his possession he did not abscond. He paid out of it that same day about $1,000 due to the N. A. T. & T. Co., to Bell & Crawford $900, and to his men on Hunker the next day about $3,000, which was about half the amount that was due to them. But, since then, nothing has been heard of him. He has a claim on Bonanza and it was at first thought that he had gone there, when it was learned that he was not in the city. But this proved to be incorrect. He never went there. Nobody knows where he went.

To make a good story there must be a woman in it. There was in this case. Miss Dorcas Kaufman went to claim No. 35a to cook for the boys last December. She is a woman of nearly thirty, a good cook, a housekeeper of pleasing manners and a general favorite with the "boss." There had undoubtedly been some tender passages between them, and "Kirk's" many friends are prone to the opinion that she is in some way connected with his disappearance, although they cite no grounds for it except the subsequent action of the lady herself.

She was in a sorrowful mood yesterday afternoon, and while others had wondered where "Kirk" could be she expressed her conclusion yesterday afternoon to the boy Albert, who is her assistant, that he had cleared out and was not coming back. Between five and six o'clock she began to pack up her trunk, slowly and sorrowfully. When it was completed she said she would make up her bed. In doing so she picked up a revolver that she had kept hidden under it for her protection. Just as Albert was leaving the room he heard a shot fired and turning saw Miss Kaufman fall back on the bed. He called to the boys, who came crowding in and Dr. Clendenin was sent for. He found that she had shot herself through the fleshy part of the left arm and that the wound was not necessarily dangerous. It is reported that the boy Albert volunteered the information to the doctor that she had also poison in her possession and that he was afraid she would take it.

But it might have been an accidental discharge of the revolver after all, and it may be that "Kirk" may turn up in a few days with an entirely reasonable explanation of his absence. Those of his nearest friends, although anxious as to what can possibly have happened to him, are fully confident that he has not left the country.

Miss Kaufman's bill for wages was settled in full by Kirkpatrick previous to his departure.

Not Much Freight

The Vancouver Province of the 6th says that although there is a fair quantity of freight moving northward there is by no means any rush of merchandise as there was at this time last year. But it is more than probable that during the next three or four weeks there will be a noticeable pick-up.

The Connaught left Vancouver on the 5th for St. Michael with 1,900 tons of freight destined for Dawson. The Melvin Dollar was expected any hour at Vancouver to load 1,000 tons more which would be sent north the same way.

Continuing the Province says that if there had been better rates made over the White Pass route this freight, only one lot consisting of 2,000 tons, would have been sent via Skagway.

Get Raised

Juneau, June 10.—The Daily Dispatch last night said: "Judge Brown said in open court today: 'In face of the number of votes cast at the city election and the official census taken in 1900, I doubt if any showing can be made to secure a retail liquor license for less than $1,500 in the city of Juneau, and it will remain $1,500 subject to the submitting of substantial facts showing a population less than 1,500.'"

Railway Conductor Killed

Smith's Falls, May 31.—Conductor George Bentley of Smith's Falls was killed this morning at Dalhousie Mills. He was the conductor of a freight working on the line between Smith's Falls and Montreal, and at an early hour this morning his body was found alongside the track at Dalhousie Mills. He is supposed to have fallen from his train. He was a trusted and capable employe of the C.P.R., and his untimely death is greatly regretted. He leaves a wife and eight children.

ADVANCED EDUCATION

Two Teachers of Aquinas Academy Here

Will Spend a Month in Rest and Recreation Before Returning to the States.

Among the recent arrivals in the city are Sister Josephine and Sister Aloysia, of the Dominican order of St. Rose, teachers in the Aquinas academy for young ladies which is located in Tacoma. The sisters are here upon a two-fold mission and are combining business with pleasure. The present being the season of the summer vacation they have made the trip north for the purpose of rest and recuperation and upon their return they will take under their care any girls or young ladies whose parents may desire to enter them in the academy at the beginning of the fall term.

Aquinas academy is located at the corner of North Twelfth and G streets, Tacoma, has been in existence a number of years and ranks with any of the young ladies' seminaries on the coast. The location is more or less renowned for its beauty and healthfulness. Situated on an elevation overlooking picturesque Puget Sound, it commands a view of the surrounding country with the perpetually snow-tipped Olympic mountains on the left and Mount Ranier, the loftiest peak in the States, on the right. The grounds surrounding the school give ample room for out door recreation while the plan of instruction carried out in the institution gives every advantage which can contribute to a substantial and refined education. A beautiful new building equipped with every modern convenience adds much to the comfort of the pupils.

The sisters will remain in the city about a month during which time they will visit the creeks and all points of interest.
