The Presbyterian Sewing circle, of Lower Horton, are making arrangements for holding a "Hot Supper and Fancy Sale" in Borden's Hall, Grand Pre, on Thursday, Oct. 15th, and promise a good time to all who attend. We hope they will be liberally patronized and encouraged in this worthy effort to raise money for church purposes. The evening will be light by that time, and it would be a pleasant drive from here.

Before the close of the year Kentville will be lighted by electricity. A company has been organized, to be known as the Kentville Electric Light and Power Co., to undertake the venture. The capital stock of the company is $10,000, of which $5,000 is subscribed. The vacant lot adjoining the Porter House has been bought, and the station will be built there. EDITOR ACADIAN.—Can you tell me if there is any law compelling the public to shut the gates on the middle dike road? Several animals have been killed on the railway during the past few years which would have not been done if the gates had been kept closed. Perhaps the Commissioners can tell us if there is a law, and if so why it is not enforced.

Death of Edwin Rand.

The death of Edwin Rand occurred at the house of his brother, Rufus E. Rand, Upper Canada, Cornwallis, on Saturday last. Mr. Rand was 61 years of age, the second son of Thomas W. Rand, of Canada. For several years he was one of the prominent business men of Canning, as a member of the firm of Dickie, Rand &amp; Tupper. After the dissolution of that firm, he went to the city of New York, for a few years. From New York he came to Wolfville, where he was doing a large and flourishing business there, as Rand Bros., he went to British Columbia, settling first at New Westminster, and later at Vancouver.

He came to Cornwallis with his wife, daughter of the late David Ellis, in July last, for a somewhat extended visit among his relatives and wide circle of friends. He was in excellent health and evidently greatly enjoyed revisiting the scenes of his childhood, and meeting the friends of youth and manhood. His intelligence, his affability and his genial hearty enjoyment of his friends made him a welcome visitor wherever he went and increased the regard of his old friends toward him. He was in Wolfville for some time visiting his brother, Mr. G. V. Rand, during which time he made his acquaintance. He was expecting to leave on his return to his home in Vancouver, when he was suddenly stricken down by fever and in spite of all medical aid and nursing could do for him, he died in a few days. A very large and representative concourse followed the remains to their final resting place in the Canada cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. S. B. Kempton, pastor of the Canada church, of which Mr. Rand was a member before his removal from the place. During the years of his residence in Canning he was a deacon in the Baptist church there and of his past used to say, that he was a tower of strength to him. At the time of his decease he was a deacon in the Baptist church of Vancouver.

Wherever his residence, he sought to maintain the Christian life and continue his church connections. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of much attached friends and acquaintances in Nova Scotia and in British Columbia. His excellent wife expects soon to return to Vancouver. The return journey will be a lonely one to her.
