Policeman Vandine Shot and Seriously Wounded.

Two of the would-be Murderers arrested.

ONE STILL AT LARGE.

Monday afternoon the culmination was reached in the series of outrages committed by a gang of desperadoes who have infested the city for some time. Newton Lee George Lee and Thomas Virtue are noted as bad characters. The first named is a son of George Lee sen. and the latter a grandson, being a son of Wm. Lee, who lately ran away to escape a charge of rape. Newton Lee is wanted in Bangor for burglary and it is said for murder also. These are the men who attempted to shoot Policeman Vandine last week, and the Police Magistrate Monday morning. On Saturday last Vandine laid a complaint against them as follows:

"That Newton Lee, George M. Lee and Thomas Virtue of the city Fredericton, did, on Thursday, the twenty-seventh day of July instant, at the city aforesaid, in the County of York, unlawfully and feloniously shoot with a certain gun or other firearm, loaded with powder and silver leaden shot, at and against him, the said Dow Vandine, with intent then and there, and thereby feloniously, unlawfully and with malice aforethought the said Dow Vandine to kill and murder."

A warrant was issued on Saturday, and two of them were followed for some distance by the Police, but not arrested. Policeman Phillips, during Monday morning, heard that they were at home and prepared to resist arrest.

Policeman Vandine, Phillips and Wright accompanied by City Marshal Woodward at two o'clock proceeded to George Lee's on Westmorland Street in the purpose of making arrests. They went into the cellar which they searched, but finding no one proceeded directly into the barn in the rear. The barn is quite a large building one part being occupied by Mr. John Richards and the other by George Lee. The lower part is fitted up for cattle and the upper part is a hay loft. At this time a horse and a yoke of oxen were in the stable. No person being inside on the ground floor of the building Policeman Phillips made search in the cellar and Policeman Vandine started up the ladder in one of the stalls by which the hay loft in Lee's part of the barn was reached. Woodward and Wright remaining on the ground floor as soon as Vandine reached the roof and shoulders were above the level of the floor his body being turned slightly towards Queen Street, he called out "see them" and immediately after there came a report of a gun and a man ran out of the door. The marks were plainly to be seen upon the sleeve of his coat where the shot had entered, the whole sleeve being riddled. He was supported by his comrades to King Street where he was met by the Rev. Mr. Brewer who was driving up the street. Mr. Brewer at once took the wounded man in his carriage and conveyed him to Dr. Atherton's residence, being sent for Dr. Coburn afterwards to examine the wounds. Vandine accordingly took weak.

BORE UP BRAVELY. He bled quite profusely and his arm when uncovered looked as though it had been torn by a sharp instrument. As soon as Dr. Coburn arrived, which was after a very slight delay, the sufferer was put under the influence of ether, and seven or eight large sized pikeons were extracted from the arm. At five o'clock he was resting comparatively easy, and was quite conscious.

THE DOCTOR'S OPINION. Dr. Atherton says that it is difficult to express any opinion as to the chances for recovery. Shot wounds are necessarily dangerous, and particularly in cases of this kind where a large part of the charge yet remains in the arm. The bone appears to have been struck and there is of course some danger from inflammation, and some of the shot appear to have struck the arteries and sloughing may ensue. For eight or ten days the condition of the patient will be critical, but he has a good constitution and stands a fair chance of pulling through all right. The gravity of the injury cannot however be overstated.

Meanwhile all was excitement on Westmorland street. A crowd was soon gathered as the alarming news was spread. Many suggestions were made as to how the miscreants should be dislodged from their hiding place in the barn, but no one seemed to care to venture upon what seemed

AN ERRAND OF DEATH. It was proposed by some to call to the Fire Department and set fire to the building by others to tear it to pieces with the aid of the Hook and Ladder Company; by others to call out a squad of volunteers and have them riddle the barn with bullets. After some delay Policeman Phillips entered the building in company with George Lee, Sr. He searched pretty thoroughly but saw no trace of any one. Sitting Magistrate Richards also made a partial and unsuccessful examination. After a little, word was brought that the fugitive had escaped into the yard attached to the premises owned by Dr. Brown on Queen Street. Chase was at once given, and they made their way back under the barn.

NEWTON LEE crawled out into the yard attached to Colwell's Carriage Factory. Mr. C. Hatt, who was standing there gave the alarm and the pursuit began. Lee ran across King Street and into the Plair premises with Phillips close at his heels. Phillips fired several shots at the fugitive without effect. The pursuit kept up across Brunswick Street and through George Street, until they reached to George Street. One time Lee turned and made as though he would draw a pistol on Chas. Hatt, but that young gentleman presented his revolver and said he would not be shot again on the same day. As he sprang over the fence into George Street, a representative of the Herald was a few feet from him. He started in pursuit, Lee ran in the alley above Hudson's house and climbed upon the wood-pile.

Phillips came up at once and fired again at him but without success. He presented his pistol again when it missed fire, and he then threw it behind him when he was handed him another and larger weapon. The Herald man had in the meanwhile opened the gate and the three started in Phillips firing one or two shots none of which took effect. Lee ran through McGarrity's premises and out on Charlotte Street in the meantime Mr. Brewer had taken Woodward in his carriage and driven him out so as to intercept the prisoner. Lee seeing that escape was thus rendered impossible ran into McGarrity's house. Phillips and Woodward immediately went into the house and after some search found that he had concealed himself in a bedroom room on stairs, Phillips summoned him to surrender, but he refused. Phillips then fired through the door, whereupon Lee partly opened the door and came out with a

LARGE KNIFE DRAWN. Phillips covered him with his revolver and told him to lay down the knife and give himself up. Lee went slowly to the table and laid down the knife and advanced again and Phillips having handcuffed him he was taken into the street. As the policemen came out of the house with their rioter they were greeted with cheers. These were followed with shouts of

"HANG HIM!" "HANG HIM!" but before the "HANG HIM" he was not molested. The temper of the crowd was such, however, that a word or two would have led to the meeting of a speedy justice. The prisoner was taken at once to the lockup and a quantity of loose powder, buckshot and caps. He was placed in custody, and the policemen, who were reinforced by James Roberts, returned to the search. G. Lee, Sr., made himself somewhat conspicuous by his representations that the others had escaped, but the Police Magistrate, who had remained on the ground during the chase, felt sure that they had not. It was then thought that the very low, and crawling to the extreme end, he found

FLOOD THE CELLAR. An alarm was sounded and the engine brought out, but their services were not required. Roberts, who made a pretty careful study of the surroundings, said he knew where one of them was, and starting into the cellar, which was very low, and crawling to the extreme end, he found

GEORGE LEE, JUNIOR, lying in the pig pen between two hogs. He dragged him out. Upon being taken to the lock-up and searched the prisoner was found to have a box of cartridges upon him. Search was continued for Virtue for some time, when it was learned that he had quietly walked out through Lafors's tin shop when the crowd thought he had gone under the barn and had made his escape at least for the time. Several persons said he had gone towards the river and a young lad named Pollock said that he saw him about half past four looking out from a hiding place in Hatt's wharf. About seven o'clock the prisoners were brought before the Police Magistrate, with whom was Mr. Richards, and the charge upon the warrant issued having been read over to them they were remanded until Friday next.

After they had been remanded, the Police Magistrate told Policeman Phillips to say to the gaoler that he would hold him responsible for the safe keeping of these men until Monday next, when they would be brought before him. He is rather fine looking in physique, with sandy hair and mustache and blue eyes. He has a dark-devil look about him, as though he was prepared for any reckless deed.

GEORGE LEE, JUNIOR, has a stolid, ugly face. He is about 25 years of age. His whole appearance is brutal.

These prisoners say that it was Virtue who fired the shot.

The weapon with which Vandine was shot, a common fowling-piece, was found reloading, by the Police Magistrate in the barn.

There is reason to think that Virtue escaped across the river in a small boat a fortnight before four o'clock, and that a team from the city drove him up the highway road towards Keswick. Pursuit was made.

Protection of the Salmon Fisheries. A week or two since a party of gentlemen ascended the South West Miramichi for the purpose of having some sport Salmon fishing. As usual thanks to the fraternal care of the Fishery Department, they found the spears did not work. One of the party was a professional gentleman from New York, he concluded to make terms with the enemy and invited the poachers to share his enticement with him providing them among other things with some excellent Virginia tobacco. The spears promised faithfully at their departure to leave the pool where the party was camped alone. Our American cousin however a little doubtful concluded to watch operations. Just at midnight a sudden gleam of light from a torch which one of the trespassers had lit cast its beams over the pond and showing an uplifted spear ready to descend upon a salmon which darted through the water beneath.

Quick as thought the American gentleman seized his rifle and fired in close proximity to the spears body; and out popped the torch in a moment, yet the watcher of the fisheries continued firing until twenty balls had whistled over the heads of the poachers who were seen no more that night. Next day the party succeeded in capturing a lot of splendid salmon, the spears have not been heard from since.

The Conference was to have met yesterday at Constantinople, to receive M. Onov's communication, explaining Russia's motives in abstaining from the deliberations in the Conference.
