THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

MANNERS.

When you speak of a gentleman you naturally think first of his gentle ways and polite manners. You think of his courteous bearing to those whom he meets, and his graciousness to all. He may not be a great personage in mind or means; he may never have heard of Chesterfield or Dante or been able to buy a new suit every year, but the very pleasantness of him attracts you, of course there are manners which are very much on the surface and plainly "put on." There are some that are attentive for a purpose and of course generally overdo it. Your true gentleman is rather quiet than boisterous and forces his attentions on no one. He is above everything considerate for others.

A walk up and down Water Street and a visit to the many stores reveal the fact that a man's manners are tested to the full behind the counter.

Generally speaking, it is impossible not to say that gentlemanly clerks are in the majority. But that there are ungentlemanly and perhaps ungentle lady clerks is unfortunately true. The number of this class is small but it is quite enough to cause comment.

I have in mind a certain girl goods shop where I have gone in and come out again without being served, yet I could see a small group of clerks behind a pile of blankets discussing no doubt an interesting subject. It is very trying also to shop when the clerk who is serving you insists upon carrying on his conversation with a fellow-clerk at the same time. It is absolutely rude.

It costs little to be polite, even if it is only outwardly, and no matter how hard the conditions are under which clerks labour, the customer is grateful for any attention and has every right to expect it.

THE CLERK'S LOT.

And having said this I am all ready to sympathize with the lot of the clerk. I feel for him when a lady comes in and after insisting on seeing almost everything in the shop, buys a reel of cotton; I feel for him on bargain days when he has to pass from one customer to another without stop; I feel for him when he has to try to keep up a certain style and a miserable salary and is expected to dress well; I feel for the girl clerks who in some cases are too ill-paid to render efficient service. It seems a miserable salary and the customer is not allowed to sit down in business hours. I daresay it makes the clerks steal away sometimes to get a rest somewhere.

GIRL EMPLOYEES.

And I daresay that perhaps one of the main causes of bad service is bad pay. I know that the girls in some of the stores do not get enough to be independent, and if they were not independent, could not exist at all. I fail to see if girls are employed and on the face of it give as good service as men, why they should not get as good a salary as a man. Surely if they did not give good service they would not be employed, and why then should such advantage be taken of their sex and their honest labour be half paid. By employing a girl, a man acknowledges her right to work. Why then should he not acknowledge her right to be paid for it? Why should she be expected to live on half a man gets as salary or even less?

I confess that I cannot figure out in the majority of cases why a woman's work should be rated in money so much inferior to man's. It reacts too on the man's value. If a man employs a lot of girls at $3.00 per week, these girls are really taking the place of men, and if men are taken on they are rated lower because it is possible to get girls so much cheaper.

I don't know that I advocate wholesale employment for girls, but I can find any objection to their being independent especially in spheres for which they are best fitted. And there are cases when it is imperative that they should work to help the home or to help clothe themselves. But I certainly think that their work should be rated higher and this would, I am sure, make them regard their work more, and would help in no small degree to raise the standard of their work higher.

THE CLERKS.

The story of the clerk has been told more than once. For most of them, and especially those who have ventured to start a home, it must be a struggle to make both ends meet. They have to keep up appearances, and having friends who can afford luxuries of furniture and food, try to emulate them, and the consequences must certainly spell anxiety. Of course it may be possible to live within one's income, but it means a firm handling of the purse strings and a "doing without" that hurts sometimes. Restraint is good for the body and the soul, but to bring up a family on $600 a year must mean a superhuman restraint in these days.

BEEF.

If there is anything that now waits the Man, it is the fresh meat business. Here we are in a country of green fields and yet we are forced to buy frozen foreign beef. Suppose by some means (and it is not at all among the possibilities) that we were shut off from the rest of the world. Suppose freight boats could not get here and our meat supply was cut off. We probably would be out of meat in a very short time and the price would be prohibitive to the great majority of us. It is a situation which may come, however safe we feel now.

Can we not take a tip from Germany in this connection. For a number of years the German Government prohibited the importation of meat and thus forced the people to raise beef themselves if they wanted it, and the result was that in a short time there were few families that were without their hogs or live stock of some kind.

Either let the Newfoundland Government start several cattle raising farms or give people encouragement to raise cattle and live stock themselves. The situation is too serious to pass over and I should like farmers and those of their ambition. If bad motives and evil deeds were used, the structure cannot stand, and must fall to the ground sometime, but if the structure is based on good motives, and that I know are longing every week for a bit of fresh killed local beef. Cattle raising is an industry that we should encourage, and it ought to be the aim of every government to make us as a people self-supporting, as far as we possibly can be. Will others offer their opinions on this?

"LET DOWN YOUR BUCKETS."

You have doubtless heard of the sailing vessel on the Southern Atlantic, whose sailors sent a signal of distress to another vessel far out on the ocean. "We are dying of thirst." And the other vessel replied: "Let down your buckets; you are at the mouth of the Amazon River." There they were at the mouth of that great river, which was pouring forth its sweet fresh waters far out into the ocean; but they were ignorant of the fact and would have perished then and there had it not been for the timely message received in answer to their signal. So there are thousands of us thinking that we are sick in mind and body and do not realise all the power that is within us to make us healthy and happy. Over two thousand years ago it was said: "The Kingdom of God is within you," and the truth of it is today almost as little appreciated as it was then. We have within us the power to become whatever we wish. No force of circumstances, no environment can prevent us from having our desires if we pursue them with undoubting faith. And this is true of bad as well as good desires and it accounts for the apparent success of some bad men; they set their

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.

"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.

The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance. Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!

Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

The master of the house has hot shaving water and a bath, whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife, then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Latter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates, and the removal of dirt and ashes.

The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may22,15 ambition on gaining a position and they get there, but of course the staying there depends on the structure and foundation of their ambition. If bad motives and evil deeds were used, the structure cannot stand, and must fall to the ground sometime, but if the structure is based on good motives, and that I know are longing every week for a bit of fresh killed local beef. Cattle raising is an industry that we should encourage, and it ought to be the aim of every government to make us as a people self-supporting, as far as we possibly can be. Will others offer their opinions on this?

MAN'S DIVINITY.

May there not be something in the following fable: "The gods having stolen from man's intellect the fire of council to discuss where they should hide it. One suggested that it be carried to the other side of the earth and he was elected to carry it. The man who was elected to carry it, hid it in his hat. The gods, finding out, sent a man to search for it. The man searched in all places, high and low, far and near, before he thought to look within himself for the divinity he sought. At last, slowly, dimly, he began to realise that what he had imagined was far off hidden in the 'paths of distance' is nearer than the breath he breathes."

Pilot Brown Takes Big Steamer North.

Mr. James Brown, pilot, a careful and skilful man, in the capacity goes as pilot in the S. S. Norburn, the big pit prop steamer now in port awaiting a chance to get north and load up. This step of sending a man who knows the coast as adviser with a strange captain who is not accustomed to our coast line, is considered very essential particularly in view of the accidents recently to pit prop steamers, notably the striking of the Manchuria which came here and was dry docked for repairs, having sustained considerable damage to her hull below the water line; also the Neath's mishap which vessel is now ashore at Beach Point, near Alexander Bay. It is not unlikely that Pilot Brown, competent and capable as he is, will be engaged for the rest of the season piloting strange steamers bound to various places on the northern section of the coast for pit prop cargoes.

Will Enforce Law to Collect Arrears.

The report of the office committee of the Civic Commission, which was submitted at last night's meeting, reveals some startling disclosures re the non-payment of taxes. A list of the delinquents has been prepared by the Secretary, and at last night's meeting the Board decided to have the names and the amount of arrears handed over to lawyers for collection. Should those who are in arrears fail to pay, the law will be rigidly enforced, and the Board will levy on their property. From a study of the list submitted it has been found that approximately $10,000 is owed by about 100 persons who in the opinion of the committee are well able to pay.

Mr. Gracian Killed at the Front.

We are told that a young man named Albert Walsh, son of the late Mark Walsh, of Courage's Beach, Harbor Grace, was killed at the front one day this week, word to that effect having been received on Wednesday past. Mr. Walsh was a blacksmith by trade, and was engaged in that calling with the Canadian Army at the front. We are informed that a shell struck the forge in which he was working, and killed him instantly.

Fish Plentiful.

Capt. A. Keane, of the s.s. Prospero, wires from Coachman's Cove as follows: "We have reached Quirpon, calling at all ports. There is no destitution, nothing worse than a tobacco famine. The people are considering cutting pit props at St. Anthony's to Griquet, but no salt. All ice is in the bays, none on the outside."
