BRITISH CASUALTIES.

Premier Asquith in a written reply to a request for information says that the total British casualties in all fields of operations up to January 9, were 549,457 of which 24,122 were officers and 525,335 of other ranks.

EXPECTS JOINT ACTION.

LONDON, Jan. 28.
Commenting on the American protest, the Daily Chronicle says evidently we ought to confine the delay of matters proper within the narrowest limits practicable and be willing to give an assurance and make any arrangements which may have that result subject to our keeping adequate control over traffic in parcels. The Chronicle expresses satisfaction that Great Britain will consult with her allies so that the reply will represent the opinion of the Allied nations as a whole.

THE LABOR CONFERENCE.

BRISTOL, Jan. 28.
The Labor Conference, to-day, by a card vote of 1,000,674 against 289,000, confirmed the action of the Executive Committee of the Labor Party in Parliament in allowing Labor representatives to assume office in the Coalition Government.

PROHIBITION ON TOBACCO.

LONDON, Jan. 28.
The Government proposal for the restriction of imports is commented on in the press this morning, the believed being expressed that the proposed prohibitions will bring the war much closer home to the people. Prohibition on tobacco is regarded as an unnecessary hardship by some conditioners who point out that the ship space occupied by a year's tobacco importation is less than one-twelfth of that occupied by wood pulp.

TAKING ADVANTAGE.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 28.
Owing to the announcement that the Government was considering restrictions on the importation of raw tobacco, prices of raw leaf took a jump of two to three cents a pound to-day.

FRENCH OCCUPY SMALL TOWN.

PARIS, Jan. 28.
A despatch says that French blue jackets have occupied the small town of Antiphilo, on the coast of Asia Minor, opposite Castorlorizo.

WEATHER FAVORS THE RUSSIANS

LONDON, Jan. 28.
A despatch to the Telegraph from Petrograd says a thaw in Ogniski Canal district has caused rivers to flow through the country sweeping away trenches and fortifications which the Germans built when the ground was frozen hard. According to the telegram received here from Dvinsk, all railways and roads have been turned into swamps and the German temporary field railways have been washed away. The Germans are working waist deep in the water trying to extricate their guns keeping up heavy and protective rifle fire, meanwhile.
It is said that the washing away of a bridge at Lida caused the wreck of a troop train in which one hundred persons were killed or injured.

GERMAN SUBS. NUMEROUS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.
Numerous German submarines have been sighted in the war zone around the British Isles during the past few weeks, according to passengers who arrived to-day on the California from Liverpool. The sailing of the steamer was delayed one day owing to the reported presence of U boats, and the California was escorted by torpedo boat destroyers until safely outside of the war zone.

AMERICAN NOTE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.
The United States is asking all European belligerents to make a general agreement to square their submarine warfare with the principles of humanity and international law. Washington has taken the position that under changed conditions of naval warfare, merchant ships should carry no armament whatever. All quarters have been notified that unless they subscribe to such principles, armed merchantmen would be denied entry to American ports, except under conditions which apply to warships. Such a proposal is now in the hands of the belligerent Governments. The actual language is substantially as follows: It is assumed that all governments addressed are equally desirous of protecting their own subjects, citizens who are now combatants, from the hazards of submarine warfare. Respecting the appalling loss of life to non-combatants, which results from the destruction of merchant vessels without removing passengers and crews to places of safety, which is held to be a violation of the principles of humanity and of international law which should govern maritime warfare, the United States at the same time does not feel that belligerents should be deprived of the right of the use of submarines in view of the usefulness they have developed since the outbreak of the present war. That a formula may be found completely within the rules of international law and of humanity, a trifling change in the practices which have obtained in the past and in the present war, which formula would be just and fair to all belligerents, it is proposed that, first, a non-combatant has the right to traverse the high seas in a merchant ship entitled to fly a belligerent flag, and rely upon the rules of international law and the principles of humanity, if the vessel is approached by a belligent warship. Second, a merchant vessel of any nationality should not be subject to attack until the belligent warship has warned her to stop.

Third, that any belligerent-owned merchant vessel should promptly obey any order from a belligent warship to stop. Fourth, that no such merchant vessel should be fired upon unless she tries to flee or resist by force. Even in such case, any attack upon her by a warship must stop as soon as flight or resistance ceases. Fifth, only in case it should be impossible for military reasons, for a warship to supply a prize crew or convey the merchant ship into port, will she be justified in sinking such merchantmen. In that case the passengers and crew must be removed to a place of safety. The State Department fully appreciates the obstacles to submarines, because structural weakness, before the present warfare on the high seas has always been conducted by battleships or cruisers carrying heavy guns. It is true that merchantmen were permitted to carry defensive armament, but these were light compared with warships and did not change their nature as merchant vessels. This was based on the superior defensive strength of warships, and limitations upon their armaments was for the purpose of limiting their power of resistance to contact with pirate and privateers. The introduction of submarines into naval warfare has changed all this. This craft is almost without powers of defence beyond its ability to submerge and escape. An enemy gun, even of light calibre, on a merchant ship, may successfully defend herself against submarines. There are now no more privateers. The practice of privateering has been abandoned by civilized nations by general agreement. Therefore there can be no reason for the maintenance of even small calibre guns, unless it is designed to make them superior to the submarines, and thereby deprive that class of warships of their undoubted right with safety in war to search such merchantmen.

In reality in any such armament, a merchant vessel now might be regarded as an offensive armament. If submarines should be required to stop and search merchant vessels before attacking them, and remove the passengers and crews to places of safety, it is not fair that submarines should be compelled to expose themselves to destruction at the hands of merchantmen. Therefore by general agreement among the belligerents, submarines should be required to adhere strictly to the present provisions of international law, and search merchant ships. On the other hand merchant vessels should not be permitted to carry any armament at all. There is grave doubt of the legal right to carry armament on merchant ships, and it is submitted that all nations should be animated by a desire to save the lives of innocent people. They should not insist upon the exercise of any supposed technical right. It is your government willing to make such a declaration conditioned on a similar declaration by its enemies? The States' Government has been very much impressed with arguments that have been advanced in certain quarters that any merchant vessel which carries guns in any position, capable of use against warships, has forfeit her non-combatant character. The forfeiting is substantially the note which Secretary Lansing yesterday announced he had transmitted to foreign powers. He refused to discuss the subject further.

UNEASY ABOUT BRITISH STEAMER

LONDON, Jan. 28.
Grave anxiety is felt regarding the British steamship Appam, which left Dakar for Plymouth on Jan. 11th with 166 passengers and 134 of a crew.
When four days out, wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased.
