She's Never Wrong.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What is the matter with Mrs. M.?" I asked a neighbor the other day. "She is generous and kind-hearted, and she simply loves to do things for people and yet no one seems to like her."

"She is one of those people who antagonize other folks by never being wrong," explained my neighbor. "She knows about everyone's business than do themselves. She loves to do things for people, but she must always do them her own way and tell the people she helps how much better that way is."

Did you ever meet Mrs. M., reader friend?

Not in the flesh, but in the type I mean?

Both Pathetic and Exasperating

I have, again and again, and sometimes I'm exasperated by her and sometimes I'm sorry for her.

The daughter-in-law of another neighbor of mine came to visit her last summer with her children. She is an attractive, capable woman and the mother-in-law really looked forward to the visit, her first.

Unfortunately the younger woman had the defect that so often goes with the virtue of capability—the habit of imposing her own ideas on others.

Whenever an entertainment was suggested she had another plan which she regarded as superior; when a meal was planned in her hearing, she knew of a dish that was perfectly lovely that she would like to prepare. If she were allowed to wash the dishes she started in to scour every shelf and cupboard, thereby suggesting to the housewife that she was extremely slovenly, which was far from being the case.

And She Only Meant To Be Helpful.

Of course she meant to be very helpful, and equally, of course, she succeeded in setting her mother-in-law on edge. The latter couldn't conceal her feelings and the daughter-in-law felt hurt and resentful that her well-meant helpfulness should not be better received.

If this woman had had half as much capableness and twice as much tact, she and everyone about her would have been happier.

Rightness, no matter how well founded, if not held in check by tact, becomes positiveness and arouses antagonism.

It Doesn't Cost Anything To Say "I Think."

People who always say "Such and such a thing is so," and never "I think such and such a thing is so," are never popular.

Suppose you do know a thing, does it do any harm to soften your statement by an "I think"?

When people find out how wise you are they will only honor you the more for not being self-assertive.

How many people would win love instead of antagonism if they could only learn to use tact and to say "I think" now and then?

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs,—I had a Bleeding Tumor on my face for a long time and tried a number of remedies without any good results. I was advised to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, and after using several bottles it made a complete cure, and it healed all up and disappeared altogether.

Your Boys and Girls.

The moods of a child are nature's sign posts. They tell us which way to go to guide the child to the best manhood and womanhood, how to save waste of strength and time in training. Watch a child, and it is allowed to indulge in its moods unchecked, and unrestrained you will be able to tell just what it will be by and by.

Put half a dozen children together at school or play and while everything goes easy they will be very much alike, but let something unusual happen, and the real nature of each child will show itself.

If the children ask for something and it is denied, then the real character is uppermost directly. Some will cry, others sulk, some rage and others whine, while the well behaved children who have confidence in Mother's wisdom, as well as in her love, will be sure that there is a good reason for the denial, and will not allow it to mar their cheerfulness or spoil their joy.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Mr. Sam Rose sings the catchy novelty song: "You're a Dangerous Girl," at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. The Picture programme is the usual first class Crescent quality. Edith Story and Ewart Overton are presented in the three reel Broadway star feature: "A Man's Sacrifice." A big reel of animated news is the "Ford Canadian Monthly." Mr. and Mrs. S. Drew are featured in "The Deceivers," a clever Vitagraph Drew Comedy. Professor McCarthy presides at the piano. On Wednesday Miss Jackie Saunders in "A Daughter of the Woods," a three reel Knickerbocker star feature.

Where to Go To-Morrow

Amongst the holiday events set down for to-morrow is the annual garden party at Torbay for church purposes, which event has always been a treat in the past and promises to be no exception this year.

Excursion trains to railway points between St. John's, Carbonear, Placentia, Heart's Content and Trepassay. Performances at the various Theatre Halls in the afternoon and night.

BACK FROM LABRADOR.—The schr. Meteor has arrived back from the Labrador with 200 qts. of fish.

ROUGH WEATHER.—A HINDRANCE.—Owing to the strong N.E. wind and heavy sea raging, local fishermen could not venture out to the grounds in their boats yesterday or again this morning. Similar adverse conditions were experienced by fisher folk in other sections of the coast.

COLLEGES COMMENCE NEW YEAR.—This morning the Bishop Field College and the Methodist College commenced their first term, for 1916-17. Both colleges have suffered big losses in their senior classes owing to a large number of the pupils enlisting in the Newfoundland Regiment. A number of last year's pupils from the outports are again attending, but not as many as was expected.

CAMPAIGN WHISKERS.

W. MASON

Charles Fairbanks is a man of sense, whose discourse gives delight. I leaned against his cow lot fence, and talked with him all night. I said, "I wish you would discuss the issues of the day," and, with no sign of futile fuss, he spoke a while this way: "I voice my views at your behest—my words come from my heart; I think chin whiskers are the best, viewed as a work of art. It is a whiskery campaign that now pervades the land; and whiskers fancy, whiskers plain, are seen on every hand. So far as whiskers are concerned, each man must dress his beard, and some men say they would be denied before they'd wear a beard; and some men wear a bunch of hay to every zephyr flung, and there the oracles, in May, build nests and rear their young. I do not favor drastic laws to govern whiskeriness; let men still grow upon their jaws and chins their patch of greens. If laws were passed our beards to kill, we'd surely take it hard; let whiskers flourish as they will—but sideboards should be barred."

Imitation salmon, sold to patrons of East Side fish stands in New York, represented until recently codfish or tilfish carefully dipped in a solution of red ink. It is reasonable to assume that much of it found its way into the homes of fish connoisseurs in that densely-populated quarter, but there is no demand for it now except from the Department of Health. The originators of this adulterated food have long since retired from business, and some of them are being held under lock and key in well known local penitentiaries. But red ink still continues to be useful, and some of our foreign fishermen will probably never give up tinting the gills of fish which have laid long in the open air on the counter. Fish smoked with liquid smoke and other cured varieties known only to a section of the West Side and the great fishermen a bit to the south, this sort of practice goes on, in one way or another, in spite of the diligent efforts of the authorities to stop it.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

LAST HOLIDAY.—With the exception of Christmas Day, to-morrow will be the last whole holiday for 1916. Weather conditions on whole and half holidays for the past season have not been all that was desired, several important events having to be cancelled or postponed. On such occasions unfavourable things were said about the weather man and it is hoped he will redeem himself to-morrow.
