Archbishop Roche at St. George's.

Beautiful weather, joyful people, and an enthusiastic committee all doing their very utmost, combined to make the first official visit of His Grace, The Most Reverend E. P. Roche, Metropolitan of Newfoundland, one of those gems of happy occasions which ever shine from the happy cabinets of memory with increasing brilliance as the days which tend to dim the glimmer of ordinary events glide slowly or swiftly away.

Strings of bunting arched the roads by the railway track and the way to the church grounds; pink, white and green flags ornamented the long sweep of the palace lawn and the Convent property; a mighty arch with twin towers—a dainty replica in "Nature's sweetest color, restful green" of His Grace's loved basilica graced the wide entrance to St. Joseph's Cathedral.

The Archbishop's party had been accompanied from St. John's by His Lordship Bishop Power, who, after the reception at Bay of Islands attended them to his beloved St. George's. On arrival at St. George's they were met at the station by the committee and the people who accompanied them to the palace. The road to the Cathedral was lined by the Boy Scouts under command (in the absence of Scout Master Ryan) of Sergeant Leo J. O'Reilly and Corporal White, who fell in behind the distinguished visitors, to the accompaniment of a lively march air rendered under the supervision of Band Master McLellan. The soldierly bearing of the boys was much admired by the visitors, and it was even noted that many of the father's, looking at the lads with pride in their eyes, could not forbear assuming a little bit of a military swagger. A tiny lady from Port au Port clapped her hands in open admiration: "Oh, Aunt M.,—," she exclaimed, "look at the dear little soldiers!" And while the father's smiled, the mothers sighed.

The reading of the addresses was postponed till the following evening; but with night came the illumination of the town, the most fairy-like and beautiful display (to the minds of some) of the whole reception. And now the Boy Scouts, who had carried themselves so soldierly, and sedately during the parade, proved, in the carrying of the tar-barrels that they were "just boys" after all, and gave evidence, by their cheers and lusty shouts, that they had lungs fit for soldiers.

Next day His Grace Pontificated at Mass, and many of our people had an opportunity of seeing for the first time our leading churchman, a native of our dear Newfoundland, worshipping at the altar of God with supreme humility and devotion. Monsignor McDermott, the honored Administrator of the Archdiocese, acted as master of ceremonies. The solemn ceremonial of the grand Pontifical High Mass was most impressive.

His Lordship Bishop Power, with his usual winning eloquence, publicly tendered a welcome to His Grace on behalf of the people and himself.

After Vespers there was an open air concert, in honor of the Archbishop, given in the spacious cathedral grounds, and here, at the close of a glorious evening the addresses of welcome were read. That of the people, presented by the Committee, was read by His Honor Magistrate McDonnell, in his rich and mellow South of Ireland voice and with the grace and fluency of his long parliamentary practice. Ireland might be proud of her representatives on the field that day in the person of Monsignor McDermott, Rev. Father Callan, and the venerable Magistrate, each showing, in vigor of physique, the hearty stock from which they had sprung.

Then began the reception, and as His Lordship Bishop Power stood side by side with his honored guest, I felt a thrill of pride in the fact that both these distinguished men are sons of the soil—true and ardently patriotic Newfoundlanders, and a thrill of admiration at the wisdom of the Church, which is everywhere so careful of the best interests of the Master, and so keen in the recognition of merit.

Merrily went the music and pleasantly the reception. His Grace winning golden opinions of the people by the hearty interest displayed in the welfare of each individual. It would be hard for any one to come and steal the affections of St. George's, so firmly are they fixed on their kind-hearted, courteous, and witty-eloquent Bishop. But if the thing were possible to be done, His Grace of St. John's might be the dangerous man.

A word of praise is due to the music, the singers, and to the exquisite taste displayed in the selection of a program.

May St. George's live to offer many more hearty welcomes to Archbishop Roche, and to Monsignor McDermott, and may they ever pass off as flawlessly and as pleasantly.—Com.
