

The 1921 Sensation to the St. John's Public.

As St. John's is heavily stocked with imported Readymades, we have decided to conduct the most Sensational Sale ever organized in the City.

We are offering our Entire Stock of High-Class Readymade Clothing for Men & Boys Direct from Factory to Consumer at Wholesale Factory Prices.

WE ARE DOING THIS in a determined effort to break the "buyers strike" and give them the goods at the cut prices for which they have been waiting.

WE MUST MOVE our large made up stock before we can again employ our staff.

150 OPERATORS who are now out of employment.

We have a large assortment of "up-to-the-minute" OVERCOATS, TRENCH COATS, SUITS, PANTS, MACKINAWs and OVERALLS, at prices not seen in St. John's since 1914.

PERFECT FITTING READYMADES.

TERMS: STRICTLY CASH.

SPECIAL PRICES FOR THE WHOLESALE TRADE

The sale will be conducted in our own Factory Wareroom and will commence SATURDAY, JANUARY 15th. Hours--9-1 a.m.; 2-6 p.m.; 7-9 p.m.

The WHITE CLOTHING MANUFACTURING CO., Ltd.

259-261 DUCKWORTH STREET

Late Smallwood Building

Foot of Church Hill

S. U. F. Club Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the S.U.F. Club was held on Tuesday, January 11, at their rooms George Street, and was largely attended. The Secretary-Treasurer gave a statement of expenditure for the year showing a substantial balance on hand, which speaks well for the efforts of those in charge. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place. President, Bro. J. Rendell, who was one of the originators of the Club, was unanimously re-elected for the third successive year. Bro. R. Le-Drew, also an original member, was unanimously re-elected for his third year as Vice-President. The Secretary-Treasurer also seems by unanimity a fixture, as Bro. W. Muford, also one of the promoters, again was given charge of the money bag. The Executive Committee was then balloted for and elected. The lots fell on Bros. Geo. Reid, W. McGillvary, E. Burridge, J. Harnam, R. Skiffington, J. Briden, A. E. Withycombe, S. Jenkins, W. T. Lever and H. Hynes. No doubt the executive will continue to inspire that confidence in the members which has been so predominant in the past. After the meeting closed, the usual refreshments were served, and the following Toast List gone through: "The King," prop. The President; Resp. "God Save the King"; Song by Bro. R. W. Sheppard; "The Chairman," Prop. Bro. Wm. Muford; Resp. The President; "The Grand Lodge," Prop. Bro. W. McGillvary; Resp. P.G.M. Bro. Phillips; "The Grand Master," Prop. Bro. R. Le-Drew; Resp. (Proxy) Bro. A. E. Withycombe, W.G.S. The gathering dispersed about 11.30 with the singing of the National Anthem.

Many a man thinks he can read a woman like a book till he tries to shut her up.

Backache tells of kidney trouble. The most prompt relief is obtained by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the well-known home treatment. One pill a dose. 25c a box, all dealers.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills
GERALD S. DOYLE,
Water Street, St. John's,
Distributing Agent.

Iceland's Hot Water Service.

The hot water fountains of Iceland are on an average averaging seven feet in height, the top of each of which forms the edge of a sort of basin. From these basins the steam of boiling water can be seen rising and the overflow of water is continuous. The contents of these basins is as clear as crystal and one can see to a great depth, while just below the surface are many wonderfully beautiful white incrustations to obtain samples of which many a visitor to Iceland has burned his fingers. The petrifications caused by the boiling water streams from the geysers include birch and willow leaves, grass and rushes seemingly converted into marble. At no time is it entirely safe to loiter in the vicinity of one of these bottomless basins, for the geyser has a way of spouting and gives no advance warning. Sometimes there will be a shoot of boiling water to a height of fifteen feet, followed by a succession of jets. The highest shoot of which there is any record was ninety feet. Occasionally a basin will for some unexplained reason become entirely empty, or will give forth a "spasm shoot," which, in the form of a column of spray and vapor at least sixty feet in height, present a really magnificent spectacle.

This Week's Wisdom.

Love has all the sense except common-sense.

Take things as they come, but mind no one is looking.

All men are not homeless, but some are more homeless than others.

Lumberman's Friend.

The Original and only Genuine
MINARD'S
"KING OF PAIN"
LINIMENT
YARMOUTH, N.S.

"Red" Army Organizing in Britain.

Those who read brief cable despatches about the arrest of Lt.-Col. E. Strangely Malone, M.P., for making speeches prophesying a happy time approaching when the "Reds" would hang leading British statesmen from lamp-posts, may have been disposed to regard him as a harmless madman, or, because of his name, identify him with the Sinn Fein. Madman he is, but by no means harmless, for he earned a brilliant military record during the war; Sinn Fein he may be by temperament, but not in fact, for he is a British M.P. elected for East Leyton in 1918 as a supporter of Lloyd George. Speeches like those of Col. Malone are made every Sunday in Trafalgar Square and Hyde Park, and the good-natured London "bobbies" firmly enforce a hearing for the "soap-boxers," as we call them on this side of the Atlantic. Since everyone is free to talk about hanging British statesmen in circumstances where words are unlikely to produce action, it was rather obvious that the authorities had other reasons for apprehending the gallant Colonel. What they were is now divulged. "Saturday Night" has been privileged to peruse a manual for the training of officers of a "Red Army" to be mobilized in Great Britain, of which Col. Malone was the partial, if not the sole author. It is a treatise as elaborate and scientific as any military manual used by the British and German staffs during the war. Of Colonel Malone's competence to prepare it there is no doubt. Though he is but thirty years old, his war record was remarkable. A midshipman at fifteen, he was one of the first naval officers to identify himself with flying, and was many times mentioned in despatches for services in the North Sea. Later he was commander of the East Indies and Egyptian, sea-plane squadron, and in 1918 was brought to Paris and became Air representative on the Supreme War Council at Versailles—a very signal tribute to a man so young. What has happened to the brain of this young man to turn him into a virulent "Red" is it impossible to say. His manual shows that he not only sees red, but thinks red. In stating the purpose of the manual he addresses "Soldiers of the International Red Army who fight or soon will fight in every country of the world," and he denounces as a fool and a traitor every professed Communist who hesitates before the necessity of wiping out capitalism through the sole alternative of bloodshed. He suggests as a stimulus to resolution and to revolution a study of two political books, "The Civil War in France," by Karl Marx, and "History of the Revolution of Brest-Litovsk," by Leon Trotsky. If bloodthirsty harangues were all that the manual contained, it would be of small moment, but with an expert knowledge which omits nothing, Col. Malone and his assistants (if he had any) lay down rules for the training of the men who are to head the Red forces, which are to destroy government and capitalist institutions in the motherland. The form of oath, the methods whereby companies of recruits may be drilled in secret and confined places, provisioning, erection of barricades, assault, siege, defence and minor details as to the course of action to be pursued. What to do after banks, mines, post offices, telegraph and telephone systems and factories are seized, is laid down with a scientific precision that is diabolical to read, when it is remembered that the individuals whom the "Red Army" are directed to kill or enslave are their own countrymen. Much in the book is based not only on Col. Malone's own military knowledge, but on the experience, successful or otherwise, of the Bolsheviks in obtaining power in Russia, through civil war. It is all rather blood-curdling, but a clear demonstration of what might happen should a considerable number of wild spirits of military training and ability, seriously and secretly undertake the task of turning Britain into a shambles for the sake of the Communist cause. The curious conception of freedom involved in the manual contains for the conscription of the civil population to work in the factories and public utilities under the supervision of armed forces of the Reds.

New Light on the Ex-Kaiser's Flight.

Count Dietrich von Moltke, a former officer of the suite of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, has just issued a pamphlet giving some new and curious details as to the manner in which the former German Emperor bolted into Holland in November, 1918. Before an attempt was made by the German Government to induce him to abdicate on November 1, when he refused, declaring that if he went abroad he would follow. On November 2 he paid his last visit to the front, and the Allied airmen improved the occasion by making an attack on his train. He was not in it at the moment, but there was a stampede of frightened people from it, including the cook of the imperial dining-car. Two days later telegraphic and telephone communication with Berlin began to break down, and the Kaiser took to sending aircraft themselves, but these did not return. He was isolated. And the German Government called more and more upon him for his abdication. On November 9 he considered the use of armed force against the revolution in Germany, but had quickly abandoned that idea. He hoped, however, after the armistice to "ride" back at the head of the German "army," till he was bluntly told that "the army will not march under the Majesty's order," and was warned against himself. At last, most reluctantly, he accepted down and wrote an abdication letter. German Emperor but on condition that he remained King of Prussia. In a very "the unbroken army" back home. This was as far as he could be in the deduced to go. To his dismay there came the news who are a that the German Government, to which he had not yet abdicated, had decided to crown Prince had also renounced his rights, two hours before he had signed of the Me ed his provisional abdication. There was consternation at Spa. The Kaiser was furious. "He" were sou peatedly asserted that he was still the C.C. King of Prussia and would not leave his army. But during the afternoon there came the news that the Kaiser had broken out on the German front while the Spa garrison fastidiously declined to fight for him. He still determined to remain there. He changed his mind and decided to go to Holland. As he passed the German post he was received with military honors, but with show of always re-echoed. The main facts of his journey through Holland are known, but it has not been noticed that his progress was watched by thousands of the Dutch with jeers and hootings. His suggestions that he ought to be a

By arrangements, which had been previously made with the Dutch Government he was carefully protected and (nominally) conducted to his present safe asylum, where he enjoys an income of $500,000 a year.

When Low is High.

(From Set Square, Toronto.)
"Let me have sleeping accommodations on the train to Ottawa," said to the man at the window, didn't seem at all concerned. "I took the trip or stayed home."
"For a single passenger?" he said.
"No," I replied. "I'm married. I'm not taking anybody with me. A single shelf will answer."
"Upper or lower?" he asked.
"What's the difference?" I enquired.
"A difference of fifty cents," was the answer.
"Our prices to Ottawa are $2.00 and $3."
"You understand of course," claimed the agent, "the lower price is for the lower berth. If you want it lower you'll have to go to the lower. It didn't need to be but we found everybody wanted lower. In other words the higher the better."
"Why do they all prefer the lower?" I broke in.
"On account of its convenience," he replied. "Most persons don't count of it being higher, and when you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed, and then down when you get up. I would advise you to take the lower, although it's higher than the upper, for reason I have stated, that the lower is lower than the lower because higher. You can have the lower you pay higher; but if you going to go higher it will be lower

MUTT AND JEFF

THE BOYS ARE FULL OF THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT.

—By Bud Fisher.

