SKATED 868 MILES.

A Young Follow Starts South on the Frozen Mississippi. QUINCY, Dec. 30,--J. H. McLaren, 25 years of age, has arrived here from St. Paul, having made the entire trip on a pair of skates. He was in need of employment, and not being able to find work in St. Faul of skates. He was in need of employment, and not being able to find work in St. Faul concluded that he would go to St. Louis. His worldly effects consisted of a $5 bill and a pair of skates, and as the money would not carry him very far in a Pullman ear he concluded that he would make the journey on his skates. He left St. Paul at 9 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 21, and made the $68 mHos in a little less than seven days. The skating was very rough from St. Paul to Dubaque, but he found it smoother from Dubaque to Quincy. He started at daylight every morning and kept going all day, seeking ledging at farm houses on the bank of the river st night. He had some rough experience, and once or twice he had to skate several hours after dark before discovering a friendly light. His skates show very rough usage.

When he atrived here he was tired, cold hungry and flat broke. He has postponed his visit to St. Louis until next summer, and readily accepted a job in a livery stable here in order to earn something to eat.
