

AGONIZING STOMACH PAINS!

Messrs. RADWAY & CO.

Dear Sirs.—I know a business man on the east side of town who has for years been ailing and suffering agonizing pains in the stomach. The doctors, from Prof. Jacoby down to others by the dozens, could neither effect a cure nor could they even tell what the malady was. He, a few years ago, crossed the Atlantic to consult German doctors, without result. I used to call at his store every few months and hear his tale of woe. He said while he was never able to retain his food, and at certain times of the day he was racked with agonizing pain which lasted about an hour. Yesterday, after a lapse of 18 months, I asked him about his health. He said he had been well for over a year, and had gained 40 pounds in weight. I wanted to know what doctor he had consulted. He told me: About a year ago over a man came to his store, telling him he had been sick very much the same as he was for some time, and tried Radway's Pills, which quickly cured him. He at once decided to use the pills. The druggist did not have any, and tried to give him another kind, but as he insisted on Radway's they were procured for him the next day. He only took one at night, and he immediately felt better. He kept up a time to take the pills, and from the first day to this day his malady never returned.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON.

Author of "Lady Mary of the Dark House," "The Woman in Gray," "Queen Sweetheart," "Fortune's Sport," "The Barn Storm," "The Yellowed Face," "The Questions and Answers which I have repeated to bring me here to you."

"Not at all. I called upon him as soon as I learnt what had happened, and expressed myself as extremely interested in the fate of that client, whose intimate friends were my friends. I even offered to serve him in any way consistent with my position. Certain if I had not formerly acquired a good amount of influence with Monsieur Duplessis, he might not have trusted me even as far as he did. But he told me the accused had been used to injure the accused man, even if my intentions were malevolent; and as my presence here should prove that they are not—rather the contrary."

"I do not read the proofs that way," I sneered. "But you have called here to tell me certain things. It will save time—will it not?—to come to the point."

"In a word, then, the point is this: One of the most important questions asked by the Judge d'Instruction, after hearing from Monsieur Brent an explanation of a letter sent upon him by the police—ah, you start! The thought of a document being found upon the prisoner is not agreeable to you."

"I braced myself desperately to self-control under the cruel fox-eyes which watched me hungrily. "It may be that Mr. Brent had a letter from me," I answered. "It is never agreeable to have one's name mentioned by strangers, even if one is an actress."

"Ah, only a letter! But the public is your slave. It would forgive you any indiscretion, especially if it was in the name of the situation is to be intensified by another such avowal as was made to the Commissary of Police last night. There would be few exceptions; yet there might be one or two, as Monsieur d'Almeida, for instance. He is said not to be of a forgiving disposition."

"I flinched under this blow, but I trust not visibly. "You interrupted yourself in speaking of the scene with the Judge d'Instruction," I remarked, icily.

"To be sure—since that interests you more. The important question which the Judge d'Instruction sprang upon the accused murderer was in relation to a letter found upon him. It was in English, ill-spelt, and without any point at the very address where the crime was committed. It was, in fact, a request from a person styling himself a jeweller's assistant or messenger, for the delivery of the letter, call and return a case containing valuable jewels committed while traveling from London in very eccentric fashion to his care—indeed, without his knowledge, another packet being exchanged for it—if I made my meaning clear. Monsieur Brent explained this letter to the Judge d'Instruction by the sensational statement that his pocket had been picked in the train of a letter-case containing papers entirely personal, of no value to anyone but himself."

"What was in the case which the murdered man slipped into your pocket?" asked the Judge d'Instruction. "A necklace," answered Monsieur Brent.

"A necklace of diamonds?"

"They looked like diamonds?"

"Ah! This was the necklace which you gave to Mademoiselle de Nevers at the Ellysse Palace the night before the next question flung suddenly at Monsieur Brent."

"Am I to hear from your lips what followed according to your informant?"

AQUEDUCT OPENS.

New York, April 15.—The metropolitan racing season of 1903 was ushered in at Aqueduct today under the most unfavorable conditions. A light drizzling rain fell throughout the day, and the cold northeast wind drove the rain far into the stand. However, fully 7,000 persons were present.

The first feature was the Carter handicap, at seven furlongs, won by Ahumada at 5 to 1. Thirteen horses started, with Lord Bridger favorite. The Dalt pair, Himes and Illyria and Ahumada were equal second choices. Paul Clifford and Duellist were added starters. Dr. Saylor was the best bet, and then won by a nose. Duellist shot to the front with Yellow Tail second and Illyria third. Rounding into the stretch Illyria went to the front, with Yellow Tail close up. When well straightened out for the run to the wire Ahumada moved from seventh place to fifth. One hundred yards from the finish he was on even terms with the leader, and then won by half a length from Yellow Tail, who only beat Illyria a head for the place.

DONATED A GOLD MEDAL.

Toronto, April 15.—The Canadian Horse Show committee has accepted the offer of the Hackney Horse Society of Great Britain of an addition to the medals already stated in the catalogue, a gold medal for the best mare or gelding exhibited in single harness, with a colored hackney sash. THE WHEEL.

BICYCLE VS. TROLLEY.

After waiting what seemed an interminable time on a corner for a street car and then crowding on and standing all the way home, one certainly endures the cyclist. They go flitting by at a great pace, and, choosing the shortest or the longest way home, as the mood or the necessity of the moment requires. Certainly wheeling is taking a great boom this season, and every day sees more of them out. The dealers seem to be greatly rushed, and most of them are behind with their orders. Wheels of a much higher grade are more in demand this season.

YACHTING.

RACES OFF YESTERDAY.

Weymouth, England, April 15.—No racing between the Shamrocks is expected today. Apart from the light breeze prevailing, the challenger's mainsail requires a complete overhaul. It set like a gunny sack during yesterday's race, and the crew, superintending the alterations. Fears are again expressed that the fault lies partly with the gaff and boom. Many people are of the opinion that they are too light to do good work in a hard breeze.

BASEBALL.

THE NATIONAL OPENING.

New York, April 15.—The National League was scheduled to open the baseball season today with games in St. Louis and Philadelphia, Chicago playing in the former city and Boston in Philadelphia. Enthusiasts of the metropolis have to wait a day longer for their opening game, the first game of the season in New York having been set for tomorrow, when the ancient rivals, Brooklyn and the New Yorks, will make their initial appearance of the year at the Polo grounds.

The American League teams have a week longer for practice, as their season will not open until April 20, when Philadelphia plays two games in Boston. The other teams of the league do not take the field until the 22nd, and the first game on the new grounds in New York is set for April 30. The Eastern League will start its serious work on April 22, after a meeting of the New York State League on May 8.

All the games scheduled for today were postponed till tomorrow owing to rain or wet grounds.

AWARDED TO BINGHAMPTON.

Burnaby, N. Y., April 15.—Senator Farrell today made the decision of the National board in the matter of the dispute of the New Orleans Baseball Club and the Binghamton Club in regard to the 1903 season.

The board is practically unanimous in its award of this manager's services to the Binghamton Club. The appeal of the Helena, Mont., Club for a ruling of the same case was denied, and the player's services awarded to the Denver Club.

HEATHERBLOOM'S GREAT JUMPING

Former Local Horse Leaps Seven Feet Six Inches at a New York Horse Show.

The New York Telegraph has the following concerning Heatherbloom, which was foaled and raised in this district:

During the judging of classes at the horse show given at the Durland Riding Academy last week the programme was so long that the jumping classes, which always closed the programme, were not noticed in the reports of the show in the newspapers, because the papers were in press before the classes were judged. Consequently the wonderful work of Howard Willett's great jumper, Heatherbloom, winner of the championship at the Chicago show last fall, was not noticed as it should have been.

Heatherbloom holds the record for the high jump of the world, having cleared feet 8 inches at the Chicago show last fall. At the close of the show at Durland's last Thursday evening, Heatherbloom, ridden by the fearless Dick Donnelly, who has trained and ridden him in all of his engagements, was put over the bars at 7 feet 6 inches, and did it so easy that it was the opinion of all the experts that he could have equalled or exceeded his record.

Mr. Donnelly also owns and rides the noted jumper Hitt, which will be seen in many of the horse shows this year.

Wear

A picture is only the right colors put in the right place—but it takes a genius to put them there.

So in shoe-making it requires the highest specialized skill combined with materials on which it is safe to risk the "Slater" shoe reputation, to produce a shoe with the maximum of wear.

The real test of a shoe is its wear. And wear is only good materials rightly put together.

And that's the genius of
