

The ADVERTISER'S PICTORIAL PAGE

One of the giant hangars that are under construction for French dirigibles. Each contains only parking space for one of the craft.

One of the largest crowds to witness a horse race attended the St. Leger, run on the famous course, Town Moor, Doncaster.

Miss Grace Li, daughter of the president of the Chinese republic, is completing her studies on this continent with a companion. She declares she has never seen a man she wanted to marry.

Miss Sidney Pepler of the Toronto Golf Club defeated the best lady golfing talent in Canada to win the Canadian ladies' closed golf championship at Mount Bruno, Que., recently.

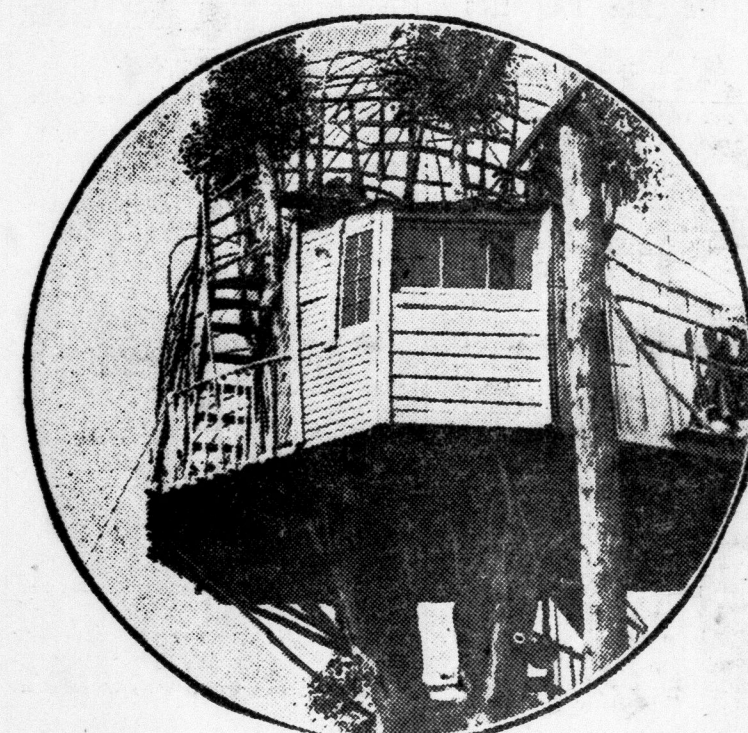

Miss Audrey Griffin of Victoria, B.C., is looked upon as one of the greatest swimmers in America.

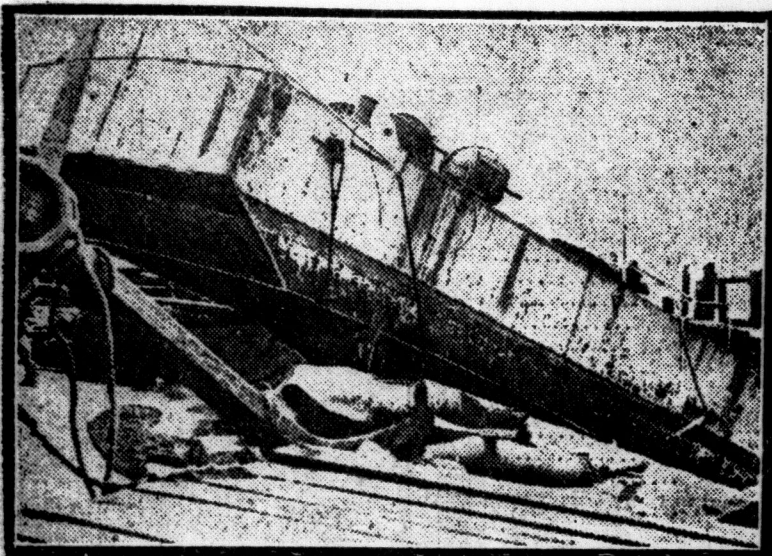

Despite her domestic duties, Princess Mary still finds time to attend horse races. She is seen visiting entries in the paddock at the Doncaster races.

This is Steve Donoghue himself, England's premier jockey, in cricket garb. He will ride Papyrus in America.

His landlords haven't got him up a tree. A war veteran constructed this dwelling for himself at a soldiers' home.

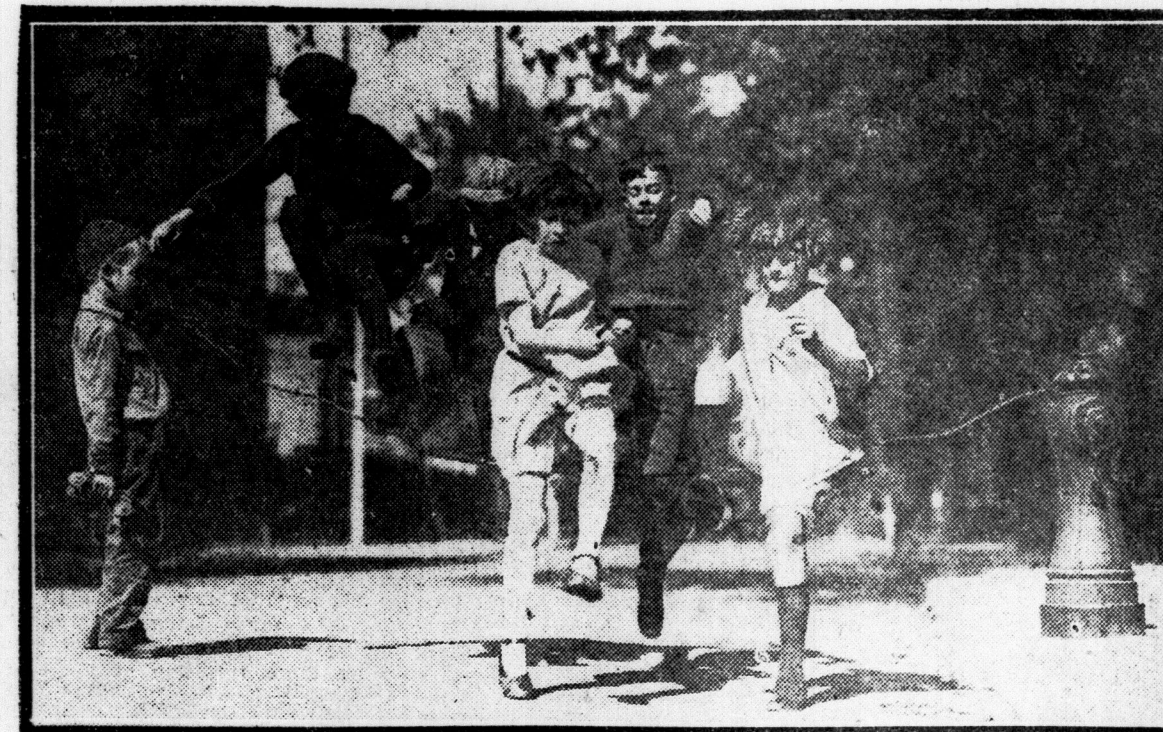

Many workmen at Yokohama lost their lives when a scow was thrown up on the docks in the recent disaster. Note how the huge anchor was tossed about.

The fur tam-o-shanta, to match the roll collar, and the swagger stick give this advanced fall costume a sporty air.

Chief Joseph F. Montour (Wiscalongue) and Chief A. G. Smith (De-ka-nen-ra-nah) are two of the loyalist faction of the Six Nations Indians who are strongly opposed to efforts for Indian independence.

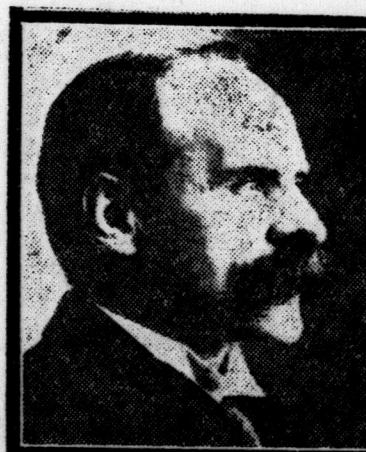

Although spring is far away, these healthy young Canadians have not yet thrown away their skipping rope.

One reason why "they shall not pass" became "they did not pass." A French army tank is seen in maneuvers in the valley of the Rhone.

The military town of Folkestone, so well known to Canadian troops, is now witnessing steeplechasing again. "Hoo" is leading, but subsequently fell.

J. B. S. Haldane, British scientist, believes that in 2123 the power for the world will be supplied by windmills.

Lieut. James Bos of Canada (centre) was one of the contestants who took part in the international rifle matches at Port Perry. With him are Col. Andre Regaud of France and Lieut. Von Spreckens of Holland.