AMERICANS IN THE YUKON. It is not easy to decide whether an article in the New York Commercial Advertiser, headed "Canada's Treatment of American Miners" is sarcastic or serious.

The people of the Dominion either do not care or they do not. At present they are under the impression that they do, and that being the case it might be just as well if the newspapers across the boundary line would tune their criticisms and comments to a different key.

The case stands this way. The Yukon river is partly in Canada and partly in Alaska. Auriferous gravels occur on both sides of the boundary line.

The Berlin Tageblatt says that Great Britain's intention to form the Mother Country and the Colonies in a customs union will not induce her to restrict her trade with Germany more than is necessary to accomplish that object.

The Kreuz Zeitung thinks the step in the direction of protection, but that Great Britain's interests are so immense and so diversified that there is no cause for alarm.

The Hamburgische Correspondent contents itself with showing the immense importance of Germany's trade with the British Colonies.

The Kolnische Zeitung believes that Great Britain is actuated by a desire to supplant Germany in the markets of America, and that if an attempt should be made to discriminate against her, she would put forth such an effort that Germany would at once lose all she has gained by years of struggle.

The Leamington, Ont., Post prints the Colonist's appeal to the Eastern press in regard to the claims of British Columbia cities to the trade of the Yukon, and another Colonist article of the same tenor, and in the same issue a list showing how a Yukon outfit should be made up, coupled with the statement that the place to buy the goods is Juneau.

THE DENOUNCED TREATIES.

The comments upon the denunciation by Great Britain of the Belgian and German treaties, because they stand in the way of trade relations between the Mother Country and the Colonies, are interesting reading.

The London Times says the reason for the denunciation is well understood in Berlin and Brussels, where no disposition exists to magnify the event or anticipate an economic war.

The Morning Post is informed that the British government has notified the German government that it is willing to enter into a new treaty, which will not affect Great Britain and her Colonies, but will extend to Germans all the privileges they now enjoy in Great Britain; and it anticipates the formation of a "fresh and satisfactory compact."

The Morning Advertiser says the Colonies are Great Britain's nearest concern, and if Germany propose retaliatory duties against British goods, as is probable, "we must not be dismayed at the prospect."

The Daily Chronicle thinks the United States will not like the new arrangement, because it will strengthen the commercial position of Canada, but that the Germans will get over their pique when they come fully to understand what is meant.

The Daily Graphic says: "By denouncing the treaties we set our colonies free." The treaties were "silly" in the first place. As to German hostility, "it is difficult to see what practical expression that wrath can take."

Morning promises the denunciation "a bloodless violence for British commercial policy without any loss to Germany." It believes that a new treaty can be framed more satisfactory to both parties.

The Westminster Gazette assures Germany and Belgium that the new step is not intended as a departure from free trade, which is "maintained not for their benefit or pleasure, but because we believe it to be the best possible policy for ourselves."

The Sheffield Independent says: "What the denunciation proves is that free trade within the Empire is perfectly consistent with English free trade with all the world." "Where, then," it asks, "is the triumph of protection? It is farther off than ever."

The Journal des Debats says: "It is in fact the great idea of Imperial Federation that is to be furthered. In commencing the execution of this project, the British government has shown the world that it is determined not to allow itself to be hindered, even by obstacles hitherto considered of the most serious character."

The Temps says: "To the dreams of Pan-Americanism is to be opposed a more grand and perhaps less chimerical conception, that of a vast Britannic Union, which, while dominating the world, could, if need be, suffice for itself." It regards the denunciation of the treaties as the British answer to the protectionist theories which aimed at isolating Great Britain, and says that if French statesmen do not learn the lesson which the event teaches "they will have nothing left them but to sign over the isolation of France and the irreparable downfall of our commerce."

The Berlin Post warns Canada that the new arrangement may prove a two-edged sword, but admits that the consequences of the new step cannot be foreseen.

The Volkszeitung says: "It is a matter of indifference whether we have any treaty of commerce with Great Britain or not," adding that there is no reason to expect that Great Britain will adopt a protectionist policy.

The Kreuz Zeitung says that Great Britain's intention to form the Mother Country and the Colonies in a customs union will not induce her to restrict her trade with Germany more than is necessary to accomplish that object.

THE RESULT OF YUKON MINING.

Where one of the Argonauts of the North succeeds a hundred will fail. Some persons will put the proportion of failures even higher. Although the forward rush is only a few months old, the backward rush has begun, and we may presume that the experience of Cariboo will be repeated, of which the old miners say that as many men were not coming out as were going in.

The London Times says the reason for the denunciation is well understood in Berlin and Brussels, where no disposition exists to magnify the event or anticipate an economic war.

THE SONGHRES RESERVE.

The following self-explanatory correspondence shows that a speedy settlement of two questions long under discussion between the Dominion and provincial governments may naturally follow the impending visit of two Dominion officials.

OTTAWA, 4th August, 1897. Hon. J. H. Turner, Prime Minister, Victoria, B. C.

Sir, -Your government has already been advised through the usual channel that Mr. J. A. J. McKenna, of the Department of Indian Affairs, has been commissioned to proceed to Victoria in effect with your government, subject to the approval of the Governor-General-in-Council, an arrangement for the removal of the Songhres Indians, and the exchange of their present reserve for another location.

I find that in addition to the question of the removal of the Songhres Indians, the general question of the rights of the Dominion and the province in reserves in British Columbia has been the subject of correspondence, and that upon a recent meeting of your government in the issue of a lease by the Department of Indian Affairs for mining purposes of the coal measures in and under the Indian Reserve at Nainaimo, an agreement was come to for the reference of the question to the Supreme Court, and that the law officers of both governments have been in communication on that end.

It has occurred to me that it would be in the interest of both governments to come to an amicable understanding in the matter without incurring the expense and trouble incident to the proposed reference, which in the end may not afford a satisfactory basis upon which both governments may in future proceed in respect to Indian reserves.

I am, therefore, authorizing Mr. McKenna on my behalf to discuss the matter with a representative of your government, with a view to making possible an arrangement, which, while safeguarding the rights of the province, would afford this government the means of administering the reserves in the interest of the Indians, which under the present condition of affairs is found impossible.

I am also authorizing Mr. McKenna on my behalf to discuss with a representative of your government questions which have arisen in connection with the railway belt. In your interview with me you expressed the desire to have these questions discussed in a satisfactory arrangement come to. The mass of correspondence which has passed upon matters connected with the railway belt has furnished, I think, a basis for a satisfactory arrangement, and I think a good workable understanding can only be come to by conference. Mr. T. C. Rothwell, law clerk of the Department of Indian Affairs, will act with Mr. McKenna in conferring with your government in respect to the railway belt.

As it is in the public interest and in the interest of both governments that these questions should be settled, I have no doubt that when they are taken up in a friendly way a satisfactory solution will be found. Of course the present arrangements which may be made by the representative of your government and Mr. McKenna will require to be confirmed by orders in council before taking effect. Messrs. McKenna and Rothwell will leave for Victoria about the 17th instant.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant, (Sd.) OLIVER B. SEXTON, Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs.

BY WAY OF VARIETY. Reporter - Are you willing to tell me your story? Convict - Yes, but I'm not at liberty. - Truth.

Mrs. Kingsley - You say you like colored servants better than white because they are slower. How is that? Mrs. Bingle - It takes them longer to leave. - Brooklyn Life.

"Yes," said Jiggers, as he looked wise, "I have just discovered a way to keep fish from smelling in hot weather." Seven men of families rose as one man and united in the chorus "How?" "Simply by cutting off the nose of the fish." - Philadelphia Inquirer.

Deacon Hasbeen (laying down his paper) - I have just been reading that alcohol will remove grass stains from the most delicate fabric. Mrs. Hasbeen (sewing) - "Think so?" you gain again, Jason, trying to find some excuse. Just remember you have no grass stains in your stomach. - Judge.

"You Nawhruahs," said the gentleman from Mississippi, "seem to have none of that high sense of personal honor that pervades the sunny South." "Think so?" said the Hoosier. "Just you go down to one of the barrel houses and call the bar-keeper a slob, if you think the high sense of personal honor is extinct." - Indianapolis Journal.
