W. B. Saunders & Company desire to announce to the profession that they have established a branch of their business in New York. For this purpose they have secured a suite of rooms in the Fuller Building, centrally located and easily accessible from all parts of the city. Dr. Reed B. Granger, for many years managing editor of the New York Medical Journal, together with a representative who is thoroughly familiar with the methods of the Philadelphia house, will be connected with this new branch, and Mr. W. B. Saunders personally will divide his time between New York and Philadelphia.

It is the intention to apply to this New York office the same systematic business methods that have proved so successful in the conduct of the Philadelphia and London houses; and the firm confidently believes that through these three centres, aided by the many other agencies located throughout the country, and by an efficient corps of canvassers, representing years of valuable experience, the demand for their publications will be greatly increased.

The Fuller Building, erected on the triangular plot bounded by Broadway, Fifth Avenue, Twenty-second and Twenty-third Streets, is one of the oddest structures in the world, and because of its peculiar shape is known as the "Flatiron Building." From the offices, purposely located on the seventeenth floor, can be obtained an unobstructed panoramic view of the city.

Physicians visiting New York are cordially invited to make these conveniently appointed offices their headquarters, where they can receive and answer their correspondence, obtain an interesting panoramic view of the city from a most favorable point, and where they will always be courteously welcomed.
