

- * Nintendo of Japan has signed a six year licensing agreement with Archer Communications Inc. of Calgary, for their new computer software-hardware system called Q-sound, which promises to "revolutionize" audio visual recording and playback. A system that enables engineers to place sound elements exactly where they will be heard, Q-Sound works with virtually any 2-speaker stereo system.

- * Litton Systems Canada Ltd., Etobicoke, Ontario has supplied flight inspection systems valued at $11.5 million (1990).