

Living Longer And Better

People are living longer and better lives in South Asia. During the past few decades, the quality of life has improved for the average person in South Asia. Ten years ago, only half of the population had access to safe water; now 80% do. Twenty years ago, life expectancy was only 49 years – in 1998 it was 63.¹