

112

November
Seventeenth 1922.

Major-General Sir C. M. Kavanagh, K.C.B., 31, Throgmorton Street,
London, E.C.2, England.

My dear General:-

I am very glad to hear of you again and can well appreciate what you say about the shrinkage of your income owing to the situation in Ireland in recent years.

I am enclosing herewith a letter to Mr. G. C. Cassels, London Manager of our Bank, and I hope that it may be possible for him to put some business your way. Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager whose name you mentioned, lives in Montreal where the Head Office of the Bank is situated.

Many changes and new experiences have come to many of us since when we met and worked together in France. For some seven or eight months after my return to Canada I acted as Inspector General of the Canadian Forces, but was glad to give up that position to come to Montreal as Principal of this University, the oldest University in Canada and the only distinctly national one. Montreal, as you know, is the largest and most interesting city in Canada. It has been very kind to me and I am very happy here, finding the work becoming more congenial as I become more familiar with it.

Macdonell, who, you will remember commanded the Strathcona Horse when they first went