IISSIONARY WORK WITH THE ESKIMOS

Bishop Stringer Gives Very Interesting Address at St. Mark's Church.

YUKON DISTRICT

Many Hardships Undergone by Those Engaged in Spread of Gospel.

The parishioners of St. Mark's Anglican Church were given an opportunity of hearing some very interesting facts concerning the missionary work being done by the Anglican Church among the Eskimos'in the Yukon, when Bishop Stringer, who for the past twenty-one years has labored in that district, delivered a very interesting address on the subject at the morning service yesterday.

In glowing terms he referred to the heroic work of Archdeacon MacDonald and the late Bishop Bompas, who preceded Bishop Stringer as bishop of the Yukon, in labofing among in Eskimos in the Yukon and around the mouth of the Mackenzie River. He told of the hardships' which he and the other missionaries were forced to undergo in spreading the Gospel.

The speaker devoted considerable time in citing instances to show the faithfulness of the converts. He mentioned especially the case of a merchant, who did not profess to have anything to do with the church, but who was so struck with the church, but who was so struck with the church in a district in which it was badly needed.

Bishop Stringen closed his address with sin earnest appeal for more missionardes to continue the work in this region.

The bishop is a native of Bruce County, and about twenty-one years ago he engaged in missionary work in the north country. Twelve of these twenty-one years were spent within the Arctic circle. About five years ago the newspapers devoted considerable space to his experiences and hardships while lost in this district.

Sunday Dinners

UNDAY dinners are always the best meals of the entire week, no maiter whether they are elaborate or very plain, for that is the time when the family group is complete, and when good home cooking can be discussed and appreciated at length.

can be discussed and appreciated at length.

It is a good idea to make ready for this meal, as far as possible, on Saturday, but it is absurd to condemn a family to eat food that has been cooling for twenty-four hours and has lost its flavor in the process. There are many favorite dishes that are better when reheated.

The French cookery of which we hear such praise, is largely composed of "rechauffes," and these are, in English, made over foods; that is, the food is partly cooked, or blanched, and when needed for serving, is finished with a quickly made sauce or dressing.

Soup is an article that can be made on Saturday for Sunday dinner baked meats may be heated in their own liquor and be juicier and rice or standing thus over night, vegetables, if well drained, do not sufficient the second serving. All sauces and spiced dressings, like white sauce or salad dressing, have a smoother, rich flavor if made the day before their are needed. In some families the favorite baked dishes are only served on Sunda

They are keenly enjoyed and the meals looked forward to by the me folks, who never suspect that they are prepared twenty-four hours ahea of time and reheated so mother-cook can attend Sabbath services.

The best recipes for Sunday foods come from New England homes, a this one for baked beans will testify: Three pints Navy beans soaked set

Put in the retrigerator. When ready to use, chop a little parsley, chives, onion and celery, mistakes with the potato and cover with the salad dressing.

Rice pudding is a fine dessert for Sunday dinner; the colder it is when served the better, and any sort of plain cake is good with it. A preture way to dress it, that is not too fancy, is to pour cream over each helping and then have the stiffly beaten white of egg, sweetened, at hand and place a spoonful on the top, and on this a bit of crab apple jelly.

Other desserts that may be prepared the day before using are those made with gelatine. Directions for using the different brands of this ingenuity will enable any cook to prepare many different dishes with the
