President Fenwick was in the chair, and introduced Hon. A. E. Kemp, M.P., who responded with a sparkling address on the humiliating position of Canada in regards to her protection of her shores. The fact that the opposition had prevented the granting of necessary funds to build the warships which would have been of great assistance to Great Britain, had forced the largest British colony to retire in favor of even little New Zealand. He was enthusiastically received. Secretary Birmingham of the Central Conservative Association touched lightly on the subject of the proposed split but was of the opinion that the Conservatives of the ward would forget their lifferences as heretofore and present a solid front in the coming election.
