REMINGTON PLANT WILL BE TIED UP

Negotiations to Prevent Big Strike Have Definitely Failed.

BEGIN AT

All Work in Ships Likely to Close Within a Week.

Negotiations tobring about an amicable settlement of the difficulties between the machinists of Bridgeport and the Remington Arms and Am-munition Company, engaged on a gigantic scale in the manufacture of war munitions for the allied armies have failed. Labor leaders announced tonight that the first of the machinists would throw down their tools and walk out at noon tomorrow. They added that within a week all work within the Remington shops and in the shops of sub-contractors would be at a standstill. Just how far the strike might spread in other manufacturing communities of New Eng-land, the labor leaders were unable to

The announcement was made by J J. Keppler, international vice-president of the Machinists' Union, and John A. Johnston, vice-president of the Structural Iron Workers, follow-ing a lengthy meeting in the machin-ists' hall, which was attended by members of the machinists' union and by more than a dozen heads of internationa. labor organizations. Mr. Keppler and Mr. Johnston were the committee appointed Friday by the machinists to present their demands to Major W. G. Penfield, works manager of the Reminston Company Mr. ager of the Remington Company. Mr. Johnston, surrounded by a half dozen labor leadrs, including Mr. Keppler,

At Noon Today. "The strike will start at noon to morrow," said Joinston. "We first will pull all the men out of the Rem-ington plant. That includes all ma-chinists, die sinkers, die makers, drop forgers and tool makers." It was said that it was planned to have in the neighborhood of 500 men walk out at first. Then, according to the plans made by the labor leaders tonight, one after another of the various shops would be emptied of ma-chinists. The hod carriers working on the new buildings being erected by the Stewart Construction Com-pany for the Remington Company have already taken a strike vote to follow the machinists out. There are 600 hod carriers employed at the Berlin Paper Alleges That in Negotiations Three Years Ago, Germany Offered Terms of Neutrality Which Britain Would Not Entertain.

LONDON, July 19, 9 p.m.—The Berlin Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung publishes what purports to be the descriptions. Germany then proposed:

"Should one of the contracting partails of the negotiations in 1912 lookng to Anglo-German rapprochement in which Viscount Haldane, then British secretary of state for war, took a arricle is contained in a despatch from Berlin, received by Reuter's Telegram Co., by way of Amsterdam and the article is published "in order to disprove Viscount Haldane's statement that his efforts for peace were frustrated by Germany." trated by Germany."

According to an official statement, the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung points out, Germany offered different forms of neutrality. The first draft of the treaty ran;

"Should one of the contracting parties become engaged in war with one or more powers, then the other contracting party shall adopt at least an attitude of benevolent neutrality and exert every effort to localize the conflict."

England's Proposal.
England declined to accept this, and made the following counter-proposal:
"England shall make no unprovoked attack on Germany and shall refrain from aggressive policies with regard to Germany. An attack on Germany forms the basis of no treaty, nor is such object aimed at in any combina-tion to which England belongs, and England will not be a party to any arrangement which aims at such an

"Unprovoked Attack." Sir Edward Grey (British secretary tracts. or foreign affairs), rejected this, but In h made the following proposal:
"Since both powers mutually desire ensure peace and friendship among themselves, England declares that she will make no unprovoked attack on Germany and will not participate in such. England will also refrain from an aggressive policy towards Ger-

This sentence was to replace the first sentence in the previous proposal. Germany assented to discuss the pro-posal, but made further negotiations dependent on assent to the following

"England will naturally preserve a benevolent neutrality in the event of war being forced on Germany."

Sir Edward Grey, however, because of the decision of the British cabinet declined to go further than the proposed formula, basing his refusal "on the fear of otherwise endangering existing friendly relations between England and other powers," elastic to form the basis of a special treaty of friendship, in that the assurances contained in the English protinue the negotiations.

LONDON, July 20.—(2 a,m.)—In an recruiting, the work of the Red Cross editorial today, The Times makes another strong plea for the making of cotton contraband. The newspaper refers to its Washington correspondent's reports that the American Government refuses to admit the legality of the British blockade, and that the British Government's explanations had not had the slightest effect in changing American opinion regarding the right of export to neutral countries.

Arguing at considerable length that Great Britain acquiesce in the Ameri-can Government's extension of the blockde during the civil war, The Times says Has Same Right as U.S.A.

WINNIPEG, July 19 .- Before the oyal commission today C. P. Wilson, Liberal counsel, commenced his ar gument on the evidence submitted about the parliament buildings con-

In his speech in the Manitoba Legis lature, A. B. Hudson had charged, Mr. Wilson said, that the contractor, Thomas Kelly, had been overpaid ap proximately $857,200. He declared that was far below the mark. In the matter of the caissons alone, counsel said, the report of John Woodman, an expert appointed by the commission to enquire into the building, would show there was an overpayment of $544,000. Mr. Woodman had been in conference with the commission this morn ing, and, according to counsel had indicated that the caissons for which Kelly received $844,000 less $64,600 on account of the piles super-seded, were worth only $300,000 and that if proper material had been used could have been put in for even less. Another Overpayment.

Coming to the steel work, Mr. Wilson declared the evidence of Prof.
Brydone-Jack clearly proved that Dr. Montague paid for the north wing $230,100 instead of $126,000, an over-payment of more than $100,000. In connection with the $802,000 contract which was destroyed, counsel said it was the most serious matter which had ever come before the notice of had ever come before the hottee of the commission. Dr. Montague and Premier Roblin had grown frightened about that deal, had called in Shank-land—and Brydone-Jack and on this expert advice that the contract would not stand the flat had gone forth that should be destroyed root and

The play unfolds a unique story. An old man, John Argyle, is murdered. His son is suspected of the murder, as also is his adopted daughter. A famous detective is called upon the scene, theft and attempted fraud. ous detective is called upon the scene, and, after sizing up the situation, realizes that neither the son nor the daughter has committed the deed. A clue points to a recently-engaged law-tor of Argyle's. As the plot develops, associates are involved.

The Strand Theatre's exceptionally attractive program of photo-play of-ferings this week is drawing large crowds. The cascades, which run 22f gallons of water per minute over the picturesque rocks and boulders, maker cascades form quite a scenic novelty A Lasky production, presenting Blanche Sweet in "Stolen Goods," was the feature film yesterday, and continues today. Its sub-title is "The Story of a Red Cross Nurse in Belgium." The acting is clever. The scenes depicting the destruction of a Belgian village and the inhabitants fleeing from the advancing German army are quite realistic. Weber and Fields in "The Delicatessen Shop"
