It astonishes the wise home-maker and housekeeper to learn of the endless varieties of bright, clean, white find corn flour and the kinds of cake, breads, dressings, puddings, pones and other dishes that can be made from it.

Corn flour is cheap, nutritious and abundant, and, therefore, unfashionable. Its inherent good qualities as a palatable and destrable food makes it a particularly valuable sid to the cure of constipation, one of the worst foes to the health of those engaged in sedentary occupations.

ADELE GARRISON'S NEW REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Are There Stirrings of Shame and Regret in Harry Under-

With a swift, sudden movement I twisted my wrist from Harry Underwood's grasp and put my hand behind me. Intultion, swifter far than reason, told me that the longer I could keep him from learning that the paper him from learning that no flat him to vixenish schoolgirl I thought shamefacedly the next moment, as I caught a glint of sardonic amusement in his

"I have no paper," I returned, glad that I could tell the truth in letter if not in spirit, gladder still that Lillian had had the forethought to remove the precious paper from my trick watch to the safest hiding place in her carefully guarded library.

"You're learning fast," Mr. Under—"You're learning fast," Mr. Under—"The paper and looked at me steadily.

Feed Your Nerves

What tired nerves need is nourishment. Your blood has failed to supply this.

To get the system right again you must supply nutrition in condensed and easily assimilated form, as it is found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

The blood is quickly enriched, the vigor of the nerves is restored, digestion is improved, and soon you feel through the whole body the energy and vigor of health

The origin of corn and barley as foods for man is lost in the twilight of antiquity. The Indians told the English settlers on the James River, Virginla, in 1605, that corn, was given directly into their hands as a food by the Creator. Its discovery is linked with a legend simplar to that of Jacob. The Indian boy wrestled with an angel every day for five or six months and green plumes. He burled him, weeded the earth, kept it fresh and soft, and in due time beheld the golden weeded the earth, kept it fresh and soft, and in due time beheld the golden fruit come forth. It was called Mondant—or the spirits grain. Long-fellow sings of ith "Hiawatha."

As his mocking voice rattled on, a plan to throw him off the track flashed into my mind. I looked at him steadily.

"Let me understand you aright." I said. "I have your promise that I am not to be disturbed again, and that my father isn't to be harmed."

Into his eyes there flashed a look of anazement, quickly changing to an expression which I couldn't fathom.

"I took my hand from behind inv back, unfastened the watch and held it out to him.

"Please—go—now." I faltered.

A unique feature of the costume is the practical pockets which are found inside the coat. The coat turns back below the belt, forming these huge pockets. These are also outlined by the scarlet braid, and when opened, repeat the diagonal lines of the revers.

The skirt is plain and rather scant, and opens slightly to one side, where it is stitched with the braid.

A smart "flair" is given the costume by the black and white silk tape scarf which can be thrown around the neck once or twice, tying loosely either in back or at the side.

"What if your arms would fly off some time when you act like that?" laughed his mamma. "Wouldn't it be dreadful?"
Billy lay a long time looking at the silver moonbeams dancing on the curtain after his mamma had closed the door, wondering how it would feel to be without any arms.

"Nothing ever files to pieces when it's mad." he mused.
"Is that so!" exclaimed a tiny voice, and a Moon Imp floated through the window and settled on Billy's coverlet. "If you don't believe it, come with me and I'll show you a little fellow who files to pieces when things don't suit him."

Before Billy could blink his eyes he was standing on the beach.
"Where does he live?" asked Billy, as the waves touched his toes.
"The waterland," replied Moon Imp, then he waved his magic Moonstick over Billy's head. "Now the water would reat your clothes wet."

O YOU realize who it is that has borne the brunt of Germany's hellish submarine campaign? It is not the Navy, for the U-boat tries to keep out of the way of our fighting ships. Not the shipowners, for insurance covers their losses. Not the insurance companies, for high rates protect them.

No! It is the 300,000 men of the Merchant Marine and the widows and orphans of the 15,000 that have made the supreme sacrifice.

The submarine has hit hardest in the thousands upon thousands of homes which have been robbed of the breadwinner. Widows may mourn their loss in poverty, for governments make no provision for this service, as is done for the soldier and sailor of the Army and Navy.

To protect us, to protect our trade, to let our soldiers cross the seas in safety, and to feed our soldiers and the Allied people in Britain, in France and the other theatres of war, our Merchant Marine has "carried on"-submarine or no submarine.
