

The Underwood Typewriter

ADOPTED by the leading governments, large railroad, telegraph and financial institutions, and the leading legal and commercial offices on the continent.

Why ?

Because it has distinct features contained by no other machine made. One glance at the Underwood Typewriter convinces the operator that the writing is always in front, in full view. The writing of one line forces the conviction that it is the speediest machine ever written upon; that the touch is light and elastic; that corrections can be inserted quicker, easier and better than ever before; and that fewer errors will be made.

By the time half a page has been written, there will have been discovered the additional advantages of the tabulating stops and key, which open a new field of usefulness in billing, etc.; the wonderful accuracy of the paper-feed; the simple operation of the line spacing; the reduction in noise; and the beauty of the machine.
