The difficulty between the local manager and the young lady operators at telephone central office has been in two very efficient operators, Miss McLellan and Miss Manuel, leaving the service, while Miss McDougall will leave at the end of this month. In the meantime the patrons must put up with an inefficient service until the new operators get accustomed to the work. The company has notified the occupants of summer cottages that this year they must pay $18 for a phone instead of $10 the former price. This arbitrary increase in rates is not calculated to make the company popular.—St. Croix Courier.

RYDER GOES FREE TO BE A BETTER BOY

WAS BEATING LITTLE CHAP ON THE BEACH

Boy With Revolver in Belt Chased by H. M. Davy Some Days Ago—Wooden Daggers Not Recent Novelty With McLaughlin

Another instance of brutality to a small boy by a youth about sixteen years of age was brought to light this morning. About ten days ago, while H. M. Davy, of Ottawa, engineer in the public works department who is superintending the boring operations in Courtenay Bay, was returning from the vicinity of Battery Point, where the boring machine is at work, he heard cries coming from one of the bathing houses on Rockaway Beach. Hurrying to the spot he was just in time to see a young fellow run off and, thinking there was something wrong, he gave chase, but the boy, being evidently more familiar with the surroundings, eluded him and got away.

Mr. Davy then returned to the bathing house where he found a little boy about five or six years old crying bitterly. He said the big boy had been beating him. After seeing that the lad was able to go home alright Mr. Davy left the scene. He described the bigger boy as being apparently about 16 years old and rather swarthy complexion. He wore knee pants and a light overcoat. In running away his coat flew open and disclosed a revolver in a brown leather case attached to a belt. There was quite a number of spectators in the police court this morning, evidently expecting that the case of Charles McLaughlin, the young lad charged with a series of assaults on children was to be dealt with, but they were disappointed, for he was not brought from his cell. Yesterday the boy's picture was taken for a position in the chief's collection, but young McLaughlin seemed very reluctant to pose.

On December 7, 1907, he was arrested on a charge of stealing $40 in cash from the store of G. H. Arnold, Charlotte street, and was sentenced to two years in the Boys' Industrial Home.

For a time before this, young McLaughlin was employed in Geo. Nixon's store in King street, but was discharged. Mr. Nixon said this morning that the young fellow at that time frequently carried hand-cuffs with him, and wooden daggers as well. On one occasion, becoming charged at one of the employees of the store, he rushed at him with one of the daggers in melodramatic style.

A few days ago when coming to work one morning, Mr. Nixon said he found a ladder outside the rear of his store. Futile attempts had been made to reach the second story with it. Before McLaughlin had been sent to the Home, Mr. Nixon said he was surprised one night on returning to his store, to find a boy talking with the description of McLaughlin, and though he had just entered by a back door. He fled on seeing the owner.

He would not say whether or not the members of the train crew would be disciplined or if any changes were contemplated.
